FINAL ULTIMATUM TO SURRENDER GIVEN REDS AS YANKS CROSS 38

Administration May Request Billions To Help Europe Arm

Indicated By Economic Chiefs' Visits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — The Truman administration probably will have to ask Congress early next year for billions to help Europe increase its own arms production. The funds would be in addition to those already provided and planned for actual fighting tools.

This became apparent today as State and Defense Department officials rushed preparations for a series of high level meetings with European leaders on setting up and equipping an international army powerful enough to defend Western Europe against Russia.

Expectations are that this force may eventually total around 75 to 80 divisions, including both American and German contingents. How to provide it with weapons, and how to pay for the production of those weapons without unbalancing the still lean economies of Western Europe is one of the most critical problems now under discussion among the 12 Atlantic treaty nations.

Ministers Meet Oct. 24

Hugh Gaitskell, Britain's minister for economic affairs, was due here today for talks with Treasury Secretary Snyder and other American officials. The impact of rearmament on British recovery will be a major subject.

French Finance Minister Maurice Petsche will arrive late in the week to press France's case for large scale American financial help and to urge acceptance of French proposals for creation of a defense financial pool among the Atlantic pact powers.

On Oct. 24 the defense ministers of all 12 treaty nations will gather in Washington to pass on military staff plans for the organization of the international force.

Timetable Is First Step

An important part of the defense committee's work will be to determine the size of the force, and the amount and types of equipment it will need by specified dates.

State Department officials said that not until this timetable is laid down can the financial and economic experts of the Atlantic nations decide what the cost will be and how it will be met.

Enough information, however, is already available to indicate that the funds which Congress voted in the last session for foreign arms aid—totaling $5,225,000,000—are only a starter. There is some worry lest a public and congressional letdown after victory in Korea may make more money hard to get.

"GANGBUSTER" — Appointed by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee to head a five-man special squad, Boris Kostelanetz (above), nationally-known "gangbuster", will probe gambling and vice conditions in New York and New Jersey.

Arms Sabotage Plan Called Off By French Reds

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP)—In a radical change of plan, communists in France evidently have called off direct sabotage of rearmament because it was doing the party more harm than good.

Barely a year ago, the Cominform told the French communists to get "hard" and there was a great purge of indifferent communists.

One highly - placed government source indicated today that the orders for a "cease fire" came from Moscow about three weeks ago, accompanied by a blistering criticism. French communists, this source said, were criticized for failure of their ballyhooed determination to stop shipments of American arms into France and to stop French arms manufacture.

Policy Backfired

Further, the same informant said, they were accused of having let the sabotage policy alienate many Frenchmen who were sympathetic with other communist aims.

Foreign sources said they knew of no direct end-the-sabotage orders from Moscow or elsewhere outside France. They agreed, however, that in recent weeks there had been no direct sabotage of arms shipments from America nor of arms production.

They agreed that some new policy clearly has been adopted. The new policy was intended, among other things, to heal a growing breach between the communist-dominated General Labor Federation, and the two non-communist organizations, Workers Force, and Christian Unionists.

New Policy Reported

The new policy, as indicated in statements of party leaders, calls for a type of attack on armament designed to please Frenchmen, not to shock them. In place of violence, the new proposal calls for:

1. Union with other leftist groups, politically if necessary, to demand higher wages for workers of all classes.

2. Denouncing of rearmament as a waste of French money, a trick of American militarists bent on destruction of peaceful Russia.

600 Homeless In Fire

CONCEPCION, Chile, Oct. 8 (AP)—Fire destroyed 65 houses and left more than 600 homeless today in nearby Lota, a coal mining town where 34 workers were killed in a mine explosion Thursday. Origin of the fire was not determined.

Step Up Defense, Acheson Warns

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (INS)—Secretary of State Acheson warned tonight that the Western Allies must step up their defense program to counteract Soviet aggression or face "certain disaster."

Acheson said that the task of building an integrated military defense to preserve peace and freedom must be enhanced despite the present "period of great peril."

The Secretary, who received the Freedom House Award for 1950, reported that "great progress" has been made in achieving collective security, but he added that "a vast amount still remains to be done, and there is not much time in which to do it."

Acheson said that a strong North Atlantic alliance can halt Russia's march toward "world domination" and "open a door on many possibilities for the peaceful adjustment of differences" existing between Moscow and the free world.

At present, he explained, the "great military inequality" which divides Russia and the West makes a "broad compromise" impossible.

Rural Areas Hold Crime Spotlight With 7% Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — The country crossroads continued to hold the crime spotlight during the first half of 1950, an FBI report showed today.

The bureau's semi-annual report listed an increase of 7.4 per cent in rural crime compared with the same period in 1949. In the first half of last year, rural crime jumped 7.6 per cent.

The 1950 upswing for rural areas was registered in every category except negligent manslaughter and automobile theft, which were down 3.7 per cent and 3.9 per cent respectively.

Rural murders were up 1.6 per cent; rape 4.8; robbery 3.4; aggravated assault 4.7; burglary 14.9, and larceny 5.6.

In contrast, the bureau's report showed that city crime increased only 1.9 per cent.

U. N. Will Speed Its Preparations For Korea Relief

Program Should Be Ready In 3 Weeks

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 8 (AP) — United Nations machinery goes into high gear this week to speed relief to Korea in the wake of military advances and U. N. Assembly political action guaranteeing unification of the country.

All organs of the U. N. — the new Korean commission, the Economic and Social Council, the specialized agencies for health, feeding and technical assistance, and the U. N. staff — are working on plans to coordinate the program authorized by the Assembly in its 47 to 5 vote Saturday.

Cost Already $34,000,000

Secretary-General Trygve Lie said the emergency relief program alone now totals more than $34,000,000 and is growing. The long term rehabilitation program to set Korea on its feet again cannot be guessed at until the new seven-nation Korean commission gets into the country for a survey.

Lie prepared over the weekend a detailed report on emergency needs to present to the Economic and Social Council Tuesday. He said the council should have its first Korean relief and rehabilitation plan shaped in three weeks.

Lie emphasized in a U. N. radio broadcast that "it is essential that all member nations bear in mind the high significance of this phase, not only for the people of Korea but for the peace and stability of the world."

Peace Program Debate Set

Diplomats and U. N. officials have been preaching — ever since the Korean unity and rehabilitation program was broached in the U. N. over Russian opposition — that U. N. forces have proved aggression can be stopped and now the U. N. must prove it can help reconstruct the country.

The outlines of the program were hammered out in Political Committee and General Assembly debates in two weeks — fast time in U. N. procedure. The Sunday recess and important debates beginning in the Political Committee tomorrow on a U. S. peace program furnished only slight delay to getting the ponderous and far-flung U. N. machinery moving.

"Land Week" Begins

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP)—"Maryland Land Week"—seven days set aside to make the state more aware of its soil—began today with special church services in most counties.

Agriculture Dept. Denies VFW Charge It Would Have U. N. Flag Fly Over Old Glory

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars today accused the Agricultural Department of "an apparent effort to flood the country with United Nations flags" to take the place of Old Glory over the nation's schools.

A spokesman for the Agriculture Department promptly retorted:

"It is grossly false to say that the U. N. flags would supercede the American flag. The proposal is to display U. N. flags parallel to the American flag, just as it is displayed over Gen. MacArthur's headquarters."

Charles C. Ralls, the VFW national commander, who made the accusation, also said he had been informed the program was under direction of a former Agriculture Department advisor on Russia.

The Agriculture Department spokesman said that facts will show Rall's "charges and unfair insinuations to be sheer nonsense." This official also said:

"As to the alleged former Russian adviser, the commander does not believe his own story, or he would have named the man."

Ralls protested in a statement issued here what he said was a program by the Agriculture Extension Service to supply U. N. flag pattern kits to 4-H and women's farm clubs and urging members to become "modern Betsy Ross's" by making such flags at home.

"These flags, I am told, are to fly over the nation's schools," Ralls said.

"Could there be some significance in this effort to 'sell' the United Nations flag as a symbol to supercede the American flag?" he asked.

The VFW strongly endorses the United Nations, Ralls said, but added that he was disturbed that any attempt should be made to have the U. N. banner supplant the national flag of this or any other nation.

Mother Roars As Keeper Holds Triplets

Worried Tillie roars disapproval behind the bars of her cage at Griffith Park Zoo, Los Angeles, as the chief animal keeper, Charles Allen, holds her 10-day-old triplets, Sheba, Cleo and Leo. Father of the triplet lions is Gilmore III, a 15-year-old tenant of the zoo.

Legion Unit Would A-Bomb Russia In Retaliation For Any Aggression In Future

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP) — A resolution calling for use of the atom bomb against Russia in retaliation for any future aggression was adopted today by the National Executive Committee for the American Legion.

The resolution is to be recommended tomorrow to the national convention.

Terming this "the crucial moment in our lives," the executive committee urged the sponsoring of a "resolution by the American delegate to the United Nations to the effect that further aggression in any part of the world by Soviet Russia will meet the full force of retaliation by the United Nations police authority, including, if necessary, the release of atomic weapons on Soviet Russia."

The committee also urged that President Truman replace Dean Acheson as secretary of state with someone "who will gather around him advisors dedicated to eliminating the forces of communism everywhere."

The Legion opens its 32nd annual convention tomorrow with Erle Cocke, Jr., of Georgia, the solid favorite to be elected national commander.

A total of 3,277 delegates, representing 3,000,000 legionnaires throughout the world, have been accredited, and Pennsylvania, boasting more than 300,000 members, has the most delegates, — 283. On the basis of delegate strength it will take 1,634 votes to elect the national commander to succeed George Craig.

Contesting with Cocke for national commander will be Don R. Wilson of West Virginia, a lawyer, and Arthur J. Connell of Connecticut.

Much of the political maneuvering in the convention depends upon the "kingmakers" of the Legion, who have been guiding its destinies ever since the first convention at St. Louis in 1919. This group includes such men as former Gov. John Stelle of Illinois; James Ringley of Chicago; Ed Lindsky of Pennsylvania; Maurice Stampeer of New York, and John Quinn of Los Angeles.

Louis Johnson, former secretary of defense, is to make the principal address at tomorrow's opening session.

Tribute To Peron

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Argentine railroad union staged a five-minute work stoppage today in a tribute to President Juan D. Peron on his 55th birthday. Bus drivers made a similar demonstration.

200 Feet Of "Live" Power Line Stolen

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP) — Somebody — either very experienced or just plain lucky — swiped 200 feet of a "live" power line of the Baltimore Transit Company today.

A company trouble truck, tracing a break in its line on the outskirts of town, found the gap in the wire.

The line had been hacked in two, police said, and about 200 feet of one-inch copper cable cut off.

The company did not say how much voltage was on the line but indicated it was high.

Steel Pact Talks Will Open Today

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8 (AP) — The powerful, million member CIO United Steelworkers, starts wage talks tomorrow which will go a long way toward shaping the nation's economy.

Philip Murray, blunt-speaking president of both the CIO and the steelworkers, wants a wage boost for his men now averaging $1.70 an hour.

Murray isn't saying how much he wants — only that he expects a "very healthy and substantial wage increase."

The steelworkers' contract provides reopening for wage talks November 1 but Murray asked that the date be advanced.

Among steel firms which have accepted are Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation in Pittsburgh, the fourth largest producer in the nation.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP) — The Hammond Times said today it had obtained the first detailed information on demands to be made by the CIO United Steelworkers in wage negotiations for 1,000,000 workers.

The Times said the steel workers will ask a 25-cent hourly wage increase, time and a half pay for Saturdays, double pay for Sundays, paid holidays, double-and-a-half time for holiday work, severance pay and "some liberalization" of the vacation program.

4 Children Suffocated In Beds By Small Fire

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 8 (AP)—Four children perished today when a small fire suffocated them in their beds as their baby-sitting uncle was burned in a futile rescue attempt.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olson Bluto, were away.

The victims were Keith, 10; Judith Ann, eight; Donna Lee, six, and Darrell James, one.

Their uncle, Olman Bluto, about 30, suffered severe body burns.

Poland Rejects German Protest Of Border Pact

Bonn Leaders Blast East German Action

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Polish military mission here rejected today West Germany's protest of the Polish-East German agreement ratifying the Oder-Neisse border between the two countries.

The rejection came as West German leaders clamored anew for return of war-lost territories and assailed the communist zone regime for agreeing to give them up.

The frontier settlement was worked out tentatively by the United States, Britain and Russia at Yalta but has never been officially confirmed by the Western Powers. Since World War II Poland has moved up to the Oder-Neisse line, occupying nearly 40,000 square miles of former German territory rich in agriculture and industry. The pact between Poland and Soviet-sponsored East Germany was concluded three months ago.

Protest Is Returned

Col. Hubert Meller, acting chief of the Polish mission here, returned the West German protest, denying that the government at Bonn had the right to issue any statements on the Polish-East German settlement.

The protest note was drafted by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet. Copies were relayed last week by the Allied high commissioners for Germany to Gen. Vasily I. Chuikov, chief of the Soviet control commission for Germany, to the Polish and Czech military missions here and to all foreign missions in Bonn.

The note rejected the Polish-East German agreement on the grounds that final territorial changes could be made only in a peace treaty.

West German Rally

West German leaders, pressing home their objections to the Oder-Neisse line, held two rallies here today. Mayor Ernst Reuter of West Berlin and two West German cabinet ministers fired an oratorical broadside against the East German government for its position on the frontier.

Their denunciations were meant to be heard by 18,000,000 East Germans who are under pressure to endorse a communist single list of candidates at their "democratic republic's" first election Oct. 15.

Polish Ship Searched With Special Devices

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Fifth Customs Service agents using "special instruments" they took from large black valises combed the Polish ship Batory from stem to stern today before it was allowed to enter New York harbor.

Herman Lipsky, chief of the customs service enforcement division, said the instruments employed in the three-hour security check of the Gdynia-America Line motorship never had been used on the Batory before.

Lipsky refused to identify the instruments that appeared for the first time in searches now being made of all vessels arriving in this country from ports within the Soviet sphere.

M'Arthur, Ready For Knockout Blow, Demands Speedy Reply

GIs Cross Line Without Opposition

TOKYO, Monday, Oct. 9 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur today gave Communist North Korea its "last chance" to surrender.

With South Korean forces deep inside red territory in force and the first U. S. troops also north of the 38th parallel, the United Nations commander told North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

MacArthur's final demand was broadcast from Japan and relayed throughout Korea from the Seoul radio station one week and a day after he first told the North Korean high command to surrender or face total military destruction.

Today's ultimatum included the text of a resolution adopted Saturday by the United Nations General Assembly in New York authorizing the unification of Korea. This gave MacArthur a free hand to take appropriate steps to stabilize the country which has been divided by the 38th parallel into communist north and republican south.

MacArthur Ready To Strike

The U. N. commander apparently was ready to strike the knockout blow against the Red Korean army at any time he chose if the communist government continues to ignore the surrender ultimatum.

At his command were 12 infantry divisions and overwhelming air and sea forces. U. N. warships were operating freely along both coasts. All North Korea was within easy range of ground-supporting fighter planes and fighter-bombers.

More than 40,000 soldiers — mostly South Koreans — already are across the artificial boundary that has divided Korea since the country was liberated from Japan at the end of World War II.

The South Korean Third Division was reported within 10 miles of the east coast port of Wonsan. This division has advanced more than 90 miles since crossing the 38th eight days ago. They were in sight of Wonsan bay after penetrating the reds' outer defenses.

On the west side of the peninsula patrols of the U. S. First Cavalry Division walked north of the boundary Sunday for the first time. They crossed without opposition from captured Kaesong, two miles south of the parallel.

Perhaps larger American forces already had followed them across. Fifth Air Force pilots said one cavalry prong was driving north of Kaesong while another was advancing north and west.

Speedy Reply Demanded

In all, five U. N. divisions were into North Korean territory in whole or in part. Whereabouts of the other seven was shrouded in the secrecy of MacArthur's plans to strike if there was no quick response to today's surrender demand.

The U. N. commander's message said:

Truman Slated To Complete ESA Setup This Week

Cyrus Ching May Head Wage Panel

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — All signs pointed today to quick completion of the central machinery for price and wage stabilization but it may be weeks or months before curbs—if any—go on paychecks and price tags.

Dr. Alan Valentine, 49-year-old Rochester, N. Y., educator and businessman, is ready to go to work this week as top man on the job. He was named by Persident Truman late yesterday to be administrator of the new Economic Stabilization Agency at a probable salary of $17,500 a year.

Ching May Head Wage Panel

The White House at the same time said selections may be expected soon for the main ESA lieutenants — a price stabilization director and a nine-man wage stabilization board.

Cyrus S. Ching, 73-year-old federal mediation director, reportedly is Mr. Truman's choice for chairman of the wage panel, though all the White House has said publicly is that he is one of those under consideration.

The same sources which rated Ching as the Truman choice expected an answer quickly—perhaps tomorrow—on whether the job goes to him. Ching now knows who his chief would be and Valentine has had a chance to get in a word on the selection.

Assuming Ching is in, the President now has two-thirds of his economic triumvirate for the defense emergency.

Labor, Industry Represented

Remaining members for the wage board still would have to be picked, but the chairman is the key man. Three members will represent labor and three management. In any clash they could be expected to cancel each other out. Real power, therefore, presumably would rest with the three who represent the public. The chairman normally would hold the balance.

Speculation on the identity of the price chief Mr. Truman will name has been a scatter-gun affair, hitting at least a dozen men. The only definite word from White House aides is that the President will not select any of the familiar World War II OPA figures such as Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles or Paul Porter. One official explained that any of these "would have two strikes on him to start with."

Severe Quake Recorded

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 8 (AP) — Poona meteorological office reported tonight that its seismograph recorded an earthquake of "great intensity" with its epicenter near Timor. That island is in the Pacific north of Australia.

Hagerstown Couple Dies In Plane Crash

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP) — A Hagerstown, Md., couple were killed today when their light plane crashed into a cornfield eight miles from here.

State Policeman Owen Gibble identified the couple as Wayne F. Crider, 50, and his wife, Iva A., 52.

Gibble said Crider, the pilot, seemed to be attempting an emergency landing when the plane dropped out of control.

Crider was identified as a Civil Air Patrol commander for the Hagerstown district.

Pennsylvania Leads States With 1,509 War Casualties

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — Pennsylvania counts more Korean war casualties among its servicemen than any other state, 1,509 up to now.

Down at the other end of the grim column is little Nevada, with 14.

An Associated Press survey today showed the totals of men killed, wounded, missing, injured or prisoners were proportioned generally to the population size of the states.

But there were exceptions. Pennsylvania was one of them. Its 10,435,000 population is about the same as California's which had 1,444 casualties. New York, which counts 1,250 casualties, is the nation's biggest state, 14,743,000.

Texas' 1,273 casualties were the fourth highest, from a population of 7,677,000. Ohio, with a slightly larger population than Texas, had 1,061.

The Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force casualty figures by states, as shown by the Associated Press tabulation, include:

The committee also urged that President Truman replace Dean Acheson as secretary of state with someone "who will gather around him advisors dedicated to eliminating the forces of communism everywhere."

The Legion opens its 32nd annual convention tomorrow with Erle Cocke, Jr., of Georgia, the solid favorite to be elected national commander.

A total of 3,277 delegates, representing 3,000,000 legionnaires throughout the world, have been accredited, and Pennsylvania, boasting more than 300,000 members, has the most delegates, — 283. On the basis of delegate strength it will take 1,634 votes to elect the national commander to succeed George Craig.

Contesting with Cocke for national commander will be Don R. Wilson of West Virginia, a lawyer, and Arthur J. Connell of Connecticut.

Much of the political maneuvering in the convention depends upon the "kingmakers" of the Legion, who have been guiding its destinies ever since the first convention at St. Louis in 1919. This group includes such men as former Gov. John Stelle of Illinois; James Ringley of Chicago; Ed Lindsky of Pennsylvania; Maurice Stampeer of New York, and John Quinn of Los Angeles.

Louis Johnson, former secretary of defense, is to make the principal address at tomorrow's opening session.

Tribute To Peron

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Argentine railroad union staged a five-minute work stoppage today in a tribute to President Juan D. Peron on his 55th birthday. Bus drivers made a similar demonstration.

200 Feet Of "Live" Power Line Stolen

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP) — Somebody — either very experienced or just plain lucky — swiped 200 feet of a "live" power line of the Baltimore Transit Company today.

A company trouble truck, tracing a break in its line on the outskirts of town, found the gap in the wire.

The line had been hacked in two, police said, and about 200 feet of one-inch copper cable cut off.

The company did not say how much voltage was on the line but indicated it was high.

Steel Pact Talks Will Open Today

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8 (AP) — The powerful, million member CIO United Steelworkers, starts wage talks tomorrow which will go a long way toward shaping the nation's economy.

Philip Murray, blunt-speaking president of both the CIO and the steelworkers, wants a wage boost for his men now averaging $1.70 an hour.

Murray isn't saying how much he wants — only that he expects a "very healthy and substantial wage increase."

The steelworkers' contract provides reopening for wage talks November 1 but Murray asked that the date be advanced.

Among steel firms which have accepted are Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation in Pittsburgh, the fourth largest producer in the nation.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP) — The Hammond Times said today it had obtained the first detailed information on demands to be made by the CIO United Steelworkers in wage negotiations for 1,000,000 workers.

The Times said the steel workers will ask a 25-cent hourly wage increase, time and a half pay for Saturdays, double pay for Sundays, paid holidays, double-and-a-half time for holiday work, severance pay and "some liberalization" of the vacation program.

4 Children Suffocated In Beds By Small Fire

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 8 (AP)—Four children perished today when a small fire suffocated them in their beds as their baby-sitting uncle was burned in a futile rescue attempt.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olson Bluto, were away.

The victims were Keith, 10; Judith Ann, eight; Donna Lee, six, and Darrell James, one.

Their uncle, Olman Bluto, about 30, suffered severe body burns.

Bonn Leaders Blast East German Action

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Polish military mission here rejected today West Germany's protest of the Polish-East German agreement ratifying the Oder-Neisse border between the two countries.

The rejection came as West German leaders clamored anew for return of war-lost territories and assailed the communist zone regime for agreeing to give them up.

The frontier settlement was worked out tentatively by the United States, Britain and Russia at Yalta but has never been officially confirmed by the Western Powers. Since World War II Poland has moved up to the Oder-Neisse line, occupying nearly 40,000 square miles of former German territory rich in agriculture and industry. The pact between Poland and Soviet-sponsored East Germany was concluded three months ago.

Protest Is Returned

Col. Hubert Meller, acting chief of the Polish mission here, returned the West German protest, denying that the government at Bonn had the right to issue any statements on the Polish-East German settlement.

The protest note was drafted by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet. Copies were relayed last week by the Allied high commissioners for Germany to Gen. Vasily I. Chuikov, chief of the Soviet control commission for Germany, to the Polish and Czech military missions here and to all foreign missions in Bonn.

The note rejected the Polish-East German agreement on the grounds that final territorial changes could be made only in a peace treaty.

West German Rally

West German leaders, pressing home their objections to the Oder-Neisse line, held two rallies here today. Mayor Ernst Reuter of West Berlin and two West German cabinet ministers fired an oratorical broadside against the East German government for its position on the frontier.

Their denunciations were meant to be heard by 18,000,000 East Germans who are under pressure to endorse a communist single list of candidates at their "democratic republic's" first election Oct. 15.

Polish Ship Searched With Special Devices

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Fifth Customs Service agents using "special instruments" they took from large black valises combed the Polish ship Batory from stem to stern today before it was allowed to enter New York harbor.

Herman Lipsky, chief of the customs service enforcement division, said the instruments employed in the three-hour security check of the Gdynia-America Line motorship never had been used on the Batory before.

Lipsky refused to identify the instruments that appeared for the first time in searches now being made of all vessels arriving in this country from ports within the Soviet sphere.

Agriculture Dept. Denies VFW Charge It Would Have U. N. Flag Fly Over Old Glory

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars today accused the Agricultural Department of "an apparent effort to flood the country with United Nations flags" to take the place of Old Glory over the nation's schools.

A spokesman for the Agriculture Department promptly retorted:

"It is grossly false to say that the U. N. flags would supercede the American flag. The proposal is to display U. N. flags parallel to the American flag, just as it is displayed over Gen. MacArthur's headquarters."

Charles C. Ralls, the VFW national commander, who made the accusation, also said he had been informed the program was under direction of a former Agriculture Department advisor on Russia.

The Agriculture Department spokesman said that facts will show Rall's "charges and unfair insinuations to be sheer nonsense." This official also said:

"As to the alleged former Russian adviser, the commander does not believe his own story, or he would have named the man."

Ralls protested in a statement issued here what he said was a program by the Agriculture Extension Service to supply U. N. flag pattern kits to 4-H and women's farm clubs and urging members to become "modern Betsy Ross's" by making such flags at home.

"These flags, I am told, are to fly over the nation's schools," Ralls said.

"Could there be some significance in this effort to 'sell' the United Nations flag as a symbol to supercede the American flag?" he asked.

The VFW strongly endorses the United Nations, Ralls said, but added that he was disturbed that any attempt should be made to have the U. N. banner supplant the national flag of this or any other nation.

M'Arthur, Ready For Knockout Blow, Demands Speedy Reply

GIs Cross Line Without Opposition

TOKYO, Monday, Oct. 9 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur today gave Communist North Korea its "last chance" to surrender.

With South Korean forces deep inside red territory in force and the first U. S. troops also north of the 38th parallel, the United Nations commander told North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

MacArthur's final demand was broadcast from Japan and relayed throughout Korea from the Seoul radio station one week and a day after he first told the North Korean high command to surrender or face total military destruction.

Today's ultimatum included the text of a resolution adopted Saturday by the United Nations General Assembly in New York authorizing the unification of Korea. This gave MacArthur a free hand to take appropriate steps to stabilize the country which has been divided by the 38th parallel into communist north and republican south.

MacArthur Ready To Strike

The U. N. commander apparently was ready to strike the knockout blow against the Red Korean army at any time he chose if the communist government continues to ignore the surrender ultimatum.

At his command were 12 infantry divisions and overwhelming air and sea forces. U. N. warships were operating freely along both coasts. All North Korea was within easy range of ground-supporting fighter planes and fighter-bombers.

More than 40,000 soldiers — mostly South Koreans — already are across the artificial boundary that has divided Korea since the country was liberated from Japan at the end of World War II.

The South Korean Third Division was reported within 10 miles of the east coast port of Wonsan. This division has advanced more than 90 miles since crossing the 38th eight days ago. They were in sight of Wonsan bay after penetrating the reds' outer defenses.

On the west side of the peninsula patrols of the U. S. First Cavalry Division walked north of the boundary Sunday for the first time. They crossed without opposition from captured Kaesong, two miles south of the parallel.

Perhaps larger American forces already had followed them across. Fifth Air Force pilots said one cavalry prong was driving north of Kaesong while another was advancing north and west.

Speedy Reply Demanded

In all, five U. N. divisions were into North Korean territory in whole or in part. Whereabouts of the other seven was shrouded in the secrecy of MacArthur's plans to strike if there was no quick response to today's surrender demand.

The U. N. commander's message said:

Truman Slated To Complete ESA Setup This Week

Cyrus Ching May Head Wage Panel

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — All signs pointed today to quick completion of the central machinery for price and wage stabilization but it may be weeks or months before curbs—if any—go on paychecks and price tags.

Dr. Alan Valentine, 49-year-old Rochester, N. Y., educator and businessman, is ready to go to work this week as top man on the job. He was named by Persident Truman late yesterday to be administrator of the new Economic Stabilization Agency at a probable salary of $17,500 a year.

Ching May Head Wage Panel

The White House at the same time said selections may be expected soon for the main ESA lieutenants — a price stabilization director and a nine-man wage stabilization board.

Cyrus S. Ching, 73-year-old federal mediation director, reportedly is Mr. Truman's choice for chairman of the wage panel, though all the White House has said publicly is that he is one of those under consideration.

The same sources which rated Ching as the Truman choice expected an answer quickly—perhaps tomorrow—on whether the job goes to him. Ching now knows who his chief would be and Valentine has had a chance to get in a word on the selection.

Assuming Ching is in, the President now has two-thirds of his economic triumvirate for the defense emergency.

Labor, Industry Represented

Remaining members for the wage board still would have to be picked, but the chairman is the key man. Three members will represent labor and three management. In any clash they could be expected to cancel each other out. Real power, therefore, presumably would rest with the three who represent the public. The chairman normally would hold the balance.

Speculation on the identity of the price chief Mr. Truman will name has been a scatter-gun affair, hitting at least a dozen men. The only definite word from White House aides is that the President will not select any of the familiar World War II OPA figures such as Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles or Paul Porter. One official explained that any of these "would have two strikes on him to start with."

Severe Quake Recorded

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 8 (AP) — Poona meteorological office reported tonight that its seismograph recorded an earthquake of "great intensity" with its epicenter near Timor. That island is in the Pacific north of Australia.

Hagerstown Couple Dies In Plane Crash

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP) — A Hagerstown, Md., couple were killed today when their light plane crashed into a cornfield eight miles from here.

State Policeman Owen Gibble identified the couple as Wayne F. Crider, 50, and his wife, Iva A., 52.

Gibble said Crider, the pilot, seemed to be attempting an emergency landing when the plane dropped out of control.

Pennsylvania Leads States With 1,509 War Casualties

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — Pennsylvania counts more Korean war casualties among its servicemen than any other state, 1,509 up to now.

Down at the other end of the grim column is little Nevada, with 14.

An Associated Press survey today showed the totals of men killed, wounded, missing, injured or prisoners were proportioned generally to the population size of the states.

But there were exceptions. Pennsylvania was one of them. Its 10,435,000 population is about the same as California's which had 1,444 casualties. New York, which counts 1,250 casualties, is the nation's biggest state, 14,743,000.

Texas' 1,273 casualties were the fourth highest, from a population of 7,677,000. Ohio, with a slightly larger population than Texas, had 1,061.

The Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force casualty figures by states, as shown by the Associated Press tabulation, include:

Airplane Photos May Give Clues To Uranium, Gold

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP) — Would you like to prospect for diamonds just by looking at air photos taken from a mile or two up?

Or uranium? or gold, tin, iron, lead, oil?

All this can be done, and much more, with Cornell University's airplane photos of the earth's land surface. This ney 'map" was described today.

The pictures are black and white. They cover about a third of the land of the entire earth. The clues were developed by Prof. D. J. Belcher, of the school of civil engineering.

This is an outgrowth of World War II when Belchor wrote Gen. MacArthur's staff suggesting that they could discover by looking more closely at aerial photos. He was instructed to catch the next plane.

Some clues are almost incredible. Drainage pipes, buried underground, and not visible when you walk over them, shown as thin white lines. The earth is a little drier directly above them. This causes a slight change in color of vegetation which shows white.

White spots the size of pin points in the Midwest were identified as ant holes. For several feet around each hole the ants track the vegetation enough to change the colors.

Gold deposits have been discovered on photos by earthquake faults. Iron by a slight change in colors of leaves. Air oil prospecting is widespread.

Around uranium deposits there is usually colored earth, mainly yellow. This shows white.

MacArthur Ready

"In order that the decisions of the United Nations may be carried out with a minimum or further loss of life and destruction of property, I, as the United Nations commander-in-chief, for the last time call upon you and the forces under your command in whatever part of Korea situated to lay down your arms and cease hostilities."

MacArthur added:

"And I call upon all North Koreans to cooperate fully with the United Nations in establishing a unified independent and democratic government in Korea, assured that they will be treated justly and that the United Nations will act to relieve and rehabilitate all parts of a unified Korea."

His first demand included no time element, but this time MacArthur demanded a quick reply. He said:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government, I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

The U. N. commander addressed this second ultimatum to the premier of North Korea. His first demand had been addressed to the North Korean commander-in-chief which position the premier also holds in the red regime.

Supporting the American crossing of the 38th parallel, fighter-bombers concentrated along a sector north of Kaesong where a main highway to Pyongyang, the red capital, cuts through the hills. Pyongyang is 85 air miles northwest of Kaesong.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)

IF ANYBODY has ever wondered why sportswriters are born, listen to pop. Sportswriters were born for the single purpose of getting World Series and fight tickets and race badges for relatives and friends.

Their writing is just incidental. Their true purpose in life is to serve as intermediaries between the glint-eyed business offices of the sports racket and the dewy-eyed public.

Certain difficulties line their path as they go about their real work. More often than not, the business offices have only a limited love for them. Business offices have the kind of memories that are the envy of every elephant who ever lived. They can remember a rasping article, or even phrase, for years after they've forgotten that the writer also prostituted his trade by plugging the office's product when criticism would have been more honest.

So most of the time the writer isn't in a very good position to barge in and demand something choice in the way of a block of seats, even though he comes bearing a fistful of certified checks.

• — • — •

But the friends and relatives never know this, because sportswriters (like all writers) must have more than a soupcon of ham under their hides—else they would have stuck with their mail order diesel studies. They are vaguely flattered when Uncle Jake or good old Charley Muckenfuss (whom they haven't heard from since the last big sports event) calls to tell them how good their stuff has been lately, ". . . . and by the way, I need two good seats for . . . ."

If the stiff told the truth then and there—to the effect that he just ain't the man for the job—it would save a lot of headaches. But he won't, for that would mean a loss of "face" in front of the pleader. So he lets the guy go on talking, and finally the guy says, a little irritably:

"I'm willing to pay for the seats."

That's always a great concession and it overlooks the fact that passes get a little scarcer every year, and that the so-called "complimentary" tickets now carry a tax and "service" charge double that of what openly bought tickets of the past used to cost.

So the guy says okay and, hat in hand, tries to wheedle the tickets out of the man who's got them.

"We gotta take care of our regular customers," the man always says. "Gotta take care of the people who pay the freight day in and night out—not the special fellows who come in just a couple times a year and think they've got a right to. . ."

• — • — •

So you get the tickets, and thank the man as if he's just given you a journalism award for courage over and beyond the call of duty, and then you have to find Uncle Jake or Charley, who are out somewhere, stiff, and when you find them they want you to deliver the tickets—or find a messenger to bring them over to Room 1313 at the Fleabag.

The sportswriter doesn't hear much from them thereafter, and he's afraid that if he duns them for what the tickets cost him they'll say to him, "What kind of expert are you, getting stuck like that? Everybody else in the sportswriting racket gets passes."

But if their paths do cross, in time, good old Unc and dear old Mucky aren't ones to forget about the tickets. "Holy cripes," they'll say, sometimes in unison. "You certainly fixed me up good that time. Right behind a post in the last row of the cheapest grandstand."

Or if it was a fight, they'll swear they were so deep in the outer reaches of the ringside section that they thought Joe Louis was a flyweight.

Or if race badges were concerned, they'll say, "Brother! You certainly got the unluckiest badges in the world. Lost our shirts," and the sportswriter has an unhappy feeling that he's somehow responsible and will be asked to refund the money lost.

Personally, I'm through. . . at least until the Army-Notre Dame game, when I (along with many confederates) expect to catch hell for not placing our friends in Eisenhower's lap on the fifty.

Family Tragedy Leaves One Dead

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 8 (AP) — A young mother — distraught, police believed, by her husband's recall to the Navy—tossed one daughter out a third story window today, then followed with her infant daughter in her arms.

Four-month-old Lorraina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Pelletier, died at Salem Hospital.

Her older sister, Lina, 3, who police said preceded her out the apartment window, was in fair condition at the same hospital.

Their mother, Theresa, 27, who, like Linda, suffered head and possible internal injuries, was listed on the danger list in "very poor" condition.

Police said all three hurtled 35 feet from the window of the Pelletier apartment, landing on a gravel driveway.

Here's Something For The Book

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 8 (AP)—Here's something for the book: Library workers found the following things that were used by readers for page markers and forgotten and returned with books.

A strip of raw bacon, salted cracker, scissors, a rosary, playing cards, coin, receipted bill, picture proofs, wedding invitation, old films, school notes, jewelry, draft card, and—a $20 bill.

Dynamite Blamed For Mystery Blast

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—A dynamite explosion some five miles southeast of here was blamed today by police for the mystery blast which shook parts of the city last night.

Sergeant C. E. Rives, of the Virginia State Police, said he found a huge hole in the ground and uprooted trees atop Candler's Mountain. The intensity of the blast, Rives said, indicated that nearly a case of dynamite was used. He could offer no explanation for anyone setting off the explosion.

Sun Tan Treatment Given Duce Diplomats

UDINE, Italy, Oct. 8 (AP)—Russian police gave nine Mussolini diplomats a month's sun tan treatment to remove their war prison pallor before they were returned to Italy last week, one of the group related here today.

The diplomats, arrested in the Italian legations at Bucharest and Sofia in 1943, came here yesterday after seven years confinement in Russia. They were turned over to Italian authorities in Vienna by the Russians.

Army Spending 500% More For "Hardware"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Army said today it is spending 500 per cent more for "hardware"—guns, tanks, ammunition and other weapons—than was planned before the Korean war and the rearmament program.

Similarly, it said the outlay for equipment to be sent to the Atlantic pact allies under the military defense assistance program has been upped 400 per cent.

The Army set forth its report in a press release summarizing expenditures on major items under the present program.

Four Of Family Die When Home Burns

MANCHESTER, Ia., Oct. 8 (AP) — Four members of a farm family perished today in a fire that destroyed their home.

The bodies of the victims were found near the back door. This indicated they had tried to escape.

The dead were Charles D. Morris, 84, his wife, 82, and their children, Earl and Mabel, both about 50.

A hired hand on the nearby Louis Ryan farm saw the flames about 5 a. m. but the house burned down before help could reach the scene.

Kitchenette Cooking

The bride who learns to cook in a kitchenette apartment does have some problems to solve. Suppose, for expample, there is a range with no heat regulator to show when the oven reaches the right temperature for baking a cake.

The answer is to use a portable oven thermometer. One that is compactly designed to stand on or hang from the over shelf is convenient. Made of black metal with chrome trim, this thermometer has a round, clock-like face which shows at a glance the temperature inside the oven. This is a reliable guide to the new cook in regulating the heat to maintain the temperatures needed for baking or roasting.

Navy Military Sea Transportation Service Reveals Enviable Record

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Navy's Military Sea Transportation Service, now a year old, has disclosed it's remarkable record.

Officials said that the service has successfully met the challenge of transporting thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of tons of vitally-needed war materials from the United States to the combat area in the Western Pacific.

The service is foregoing any celebration tomorrow of the first anniversary because it is too busy hauling military supplies.

MSTS is the main transportation system by sea for the military. It carries all troops and supply, except in rare instances when transportation is undertaken by aircraft carriers.

A steady stream of men, ammunition, food, aircraft, tanks, gasoline, medical supplies and all other equipment necessary to the support of a major fighting front has been moved across the Pacific in the past two months by MSTS ships.

Not one infantryman or a piece of equipment has been delayed for lack of shipping, it was announced.

In the two-months period following the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, 200,000 passengers were transported a total of three-quarters of a billion passenger miles. That represents more than 775,000 route miles.

(These are world-wide statistics and also covers what is known as "the Atlantic lift.")

In addition, under the heading of cargo, 1,625,000 measurement tons were carried. That cargo was lifted a total of seven and one-half billion ton miles.

On gasoline and other petroleum products the figures show twelve and one-quarter million barrels were transported over five and one-quarter billion ton miles.

In accomplishing this lift, it was announced, about 230 commercial vessels were used under charter by the navy. They carried a total of two and one-half million dead weight tons of shipping.

Naval officials made no effort to conceal their pride in what the MSTS has accomplished since it took over the transportation by sea of Army men and material just one year ago.

Bridegroom Of Day Dies In Auto Crash

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP)—A honeymoon trip ended in death today for a young bridegroom of one day.

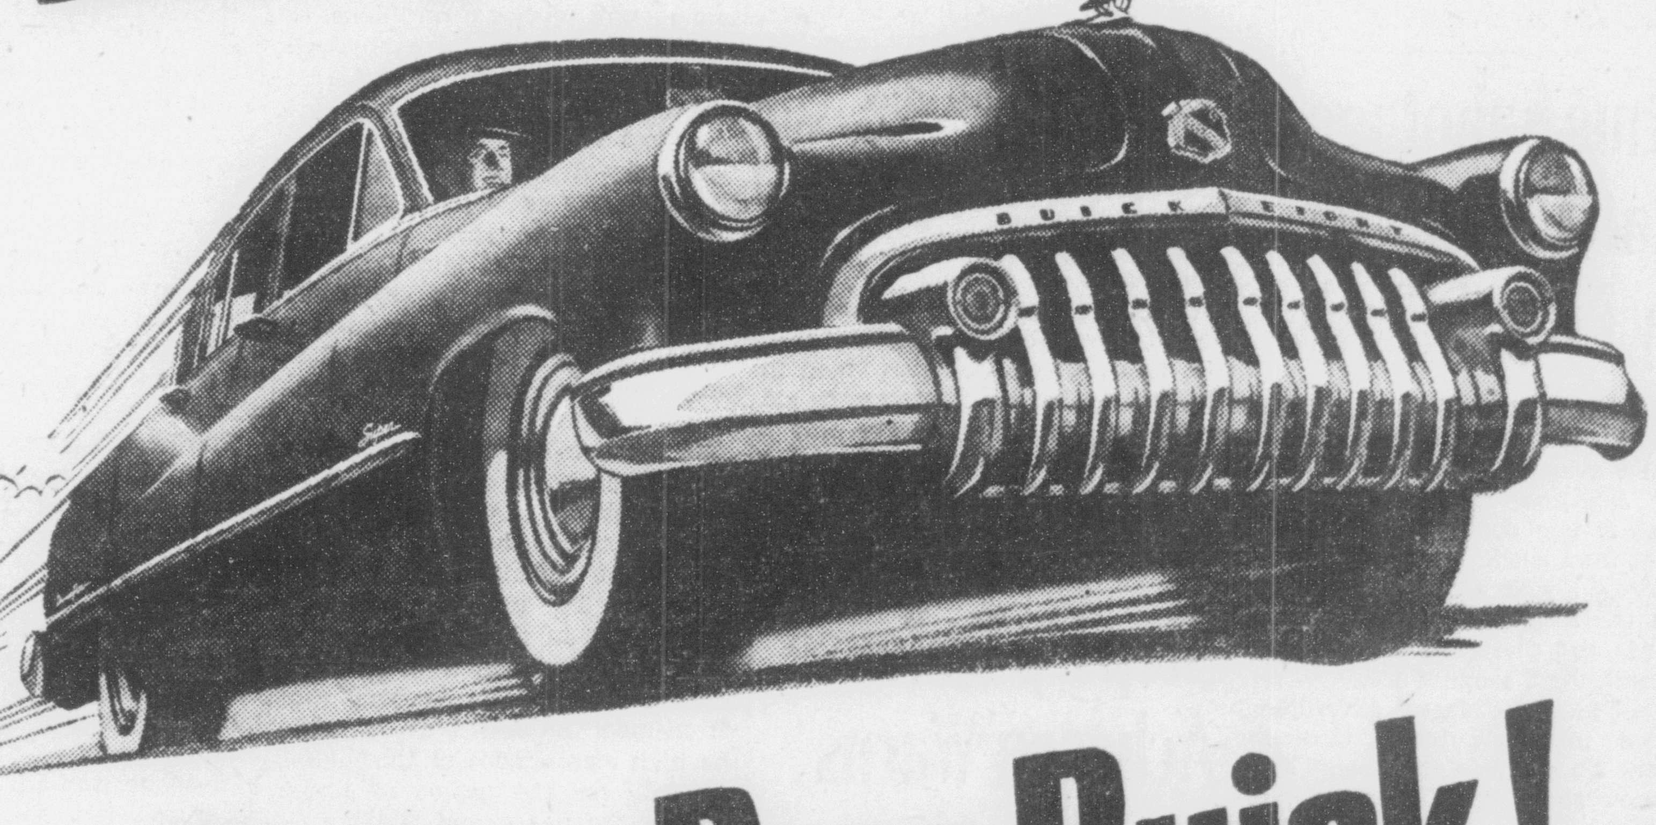
Looking for POWER?



Better Buy Buick!

THAT bold bonnet that stretches out before your eyes on a 1950 Buick isn't there just for show.

Lift it up, and you'll find that the space beneath is abundantly occupied, by one of the biggest hoodfuls of power you'll find in any motorcar.

What you're looking at is Buick's modern version of the high-compression valve-in-head engine, which gains extra wallop from the fact that it uses the exclusive Fireball combustion principle.

We could list a lot of mechanical reasons why fuel gives up extra power in a Fireball engine—how it's wrapped in a swirling, ball-shaped charge—how it burns with a smooth, clean thrust that delivers maximum action.

But the best way to find out what all this means is to touch off the eager horsepower out on the highway by a gentle nudge of your toe—and feel your shoulders press deep in the cushions behind them.

Now all this sounds thrilling, you say, but how about the feed-bills for all these horses? How about miles-per-gallon?

The practical answer to that one is found in this year's experience with the SUPER and SPECIAL—and even the ROADMASTER.

In all three, the horsepower was stepped up at the start of the year—and in all three, happy owners report the best mileage in modern Buick experience.

This is due to a little-known but authentic engineering fact—which is that an engine burns less gas when it doesn't have to labor. At any normal driving speed, therefore, extra power is extra thrifty.

So we say again—if you're looking for power—mighty power—buoyant power—silken power— thrifty power—better buy Buick.

Your Buick dealer is eager for the chance to demonstrate how sound this hint really is.

Only BUICK has Dynaflow Drive* and with it goes HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD fore-front, taper-through fenders • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube

Airplane Photos May Give Clues To Uranium, Gold

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP) — Would you like to prospect for diamonds just by looking at air photos taken from a mile or two up?

Or uranium? or gold, tin, iron, lead, oil?

All this can be done, and much more, with Cornell University's airplane photos of the earth's land surface. This ney 'map" was described today.

The pictures are black and white. They cover about a third of the land of the entire earth. The clues were developed by Prof. D. J. Belcher, of the school of civil engineering.

This is an outgrowth of World War II when Belchor wrote Gen. MacArthur's staff suggesting that they could discover by looking more closely at aerial photos. He was instructed to catch the next plane.

Some clues are almost incredible. Drainage pipes, buried underground, and not visible when you walk over them, shown as thin white lines. The earth is a little drier directly above them. This causes a slight change in color of vegetation which shows white.

White spots the size of pin points in the Midwest were identified as ant holes. For several feet around each hole the ants track the vegetation enough to change the colors.

Gold deposits have been discovered on photos by earthquake faults. Iron by a slight change in colors of leaves. Air oil prospecting is widespread.

Around uranium deposits there is usually colored earth, mainly yellow. This shows white.

"In order that the decisions of the United Nations may be carried out with a minimum or further loss of life and destruction of property, I, as the United Nations commander-in-chief, for the last time call upon you and the forces under your command in whatever part of Korea situated to lay down your arms and cease hostilities."

MacArthur added:

"And I call upon all North Koreans to cooperate fully with the United Nations in establishing a unified independent and democratic government in Korea, assured that they will be treated justly and that the United Nations will act to relieve and rehabilitate all parts of a unified Korea."

His first demand included no time element, but this time MacArthur demanded a quick reply. He said:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government, I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

The U. N. commander addressed this second ultimatum to the premier of North Korea. His first demand had been addressed to the North Korean commander-in-chief which position the premier also holds in the red regime.

Supporting the American crossing of the 38th parallel, fighter-bombers concentrated along a sector north of Kaesong where a main highway to Pyongyang, the red capital, cuts through the hills. Pyongyang is 85 air miles northwest of Kaesong.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)

IF ANYBODY has ever wondered why sportswriters are born, listen to pop. Sportswriters were born for the single purpose of getting World Series and fight tickets and race badges for relatives and friends.

Their writing is just incidental. Their true purpose in life is to serve as intermediaries between the glint-eyed business offices of the sports racket and the dewy-eyed public.

Certain difficulties line their path as they go about their real work. More often than not, the business offices have only a limited love for them. Business offices have the kind of memories that are the envy of every elephant who ever lived. They can remember a rasping article, or even phrase, for years after they've forgotten that the writer also prostituted his trade by plugging the office's product when criticism would have been more honest.

So most of the time the writer isn't in a very good position to barge in and demand something choice in the way of a block of seats, even though he comes bearing a fistful of certified checks.

But the friends and relatives never know this, because sportswriters (like all writers) must have more than a soupcon of ham under their hides—else they would have stuck with their mail order diesel studies. They are vaguely flattered when Uncle Jake or good old Charley Muckenfuss (whom they haven't heard from since the last big sports event) calls to tell them how good their stuff has been lately, ". . . . and by the way, I need two good seats for . . . ."

If the stiff told the truth then and there—to the effect that he just ain't the man for the job—it would save a lot of headaches. But he won't, for that would mean a loss of "face" in front of the pleader. So he lets the guy go on talking, and finally the guy says, a little irritably:

"I'm willing to pay for the seats."

That's always a great concession and it overlooks the fact that passes get a little scarcer every year, and that the so-called "complimentary" tickets now carry a tax and "service" charge double that of what openly bought tickets of the past used to cost.

So the guy says okay and, hat in hand, tries to wheedle the tickets out of the man who's got them.

"We gotta take care of our regular customers," the man always says. "Gotta take care of the people who pay the freight day in and night out—not the special fellows who come in just a couple times a year and think they've got a right to. . ."

So you get the tickets, and thank the man as if he's just given you a journalism award for courage over and beyond the call of duty, and then you have to find Uncle Jake or Charley, who are out somewhere, stiff, and when you find them they want you to deliver the tickets—or find a messenger to bring them over to Room 1313 at the Fleabag.

The sportswriter doesn't hear much from them thereafter, and he's afraid that if he duns them for what the tickets cost him they'll say to him, "What kind of expert are you, getting stuck like that? Everybody else in the sportswriting racket gets passes."

But if their paths do cross, in time, good old Unc and dear old Mucky aren't ones to forget about the tickets. "Holy cripes," they'll say, sometimes in unison. "You certainly fixed me up good that time. Right behind a post in the last row of the cheapest grandstand."

Or if it was a fight, they'll swear they were so deep in the outer reaches of the ringside section that they thought Joe Louis was a flyweight.

Or if race badges were concerned, they'll say, "Brother! You certainly got the unluckiest badges in the world. Lost our shirts," and the sportswriter has an unhappy feeling that he's somehow responsible and will be asked to refund the money lost.

Personally, I'm through. . . at least until the Army-Notre Dame game, when I (along with many confederates) expect to catch hell for not placing our friends in Eisenhower's lap on the fifty.

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Family Tragedy Leaves One Dead

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 8 (AP) — A young mother — distraught, police believed, by her husband's recall to the Navy—tossed one daughter out a third story window today, then followed with her infant daughter in her arms.

Four-month-old Lorraina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Pelletier, died at Salem Hospital.

Her older sister, Lina, 3, who police said preceded her out the apartment window, was in fair condition at the same hospital.

Their mother, Theresa, 27, who, like Linda, suffered head and possible internal injuries, was listed on the danger list in "very poor" condition.

Police said all three hurtled 35 feet from the window of the Pelletier apartment, landing on a gravel driveway.

Dynamite Blamed For Mystery Blast

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—A dynamite explosion some five miles southeast of here was blamed today by police for the mystery blast which shook parts of the city last night.

Sergeant C. E. Rives, of the Virginia State Police, said he found a huge hole in the ground and uprooted trees atop Candler's Mountain. The intensity of the blast, Rives said, indicated that nearly a case of dynamite was used. He could offer no explanation for anyone setting off the explosion.

Sun Tan Treatment Given Duce Diplomats

UDINE, Italy, Oct. 8 (AP)—Russian police gave nine Mussolini diplomats a month's sun tan treatment to remove their war prison pallor before they were returned to Italy last week, one of the group related here today.

The diplomats, arrested in the Italian legations at Bucharest and Sofia in 1943, came here yesterday after seven years confinement in Russia. They were turned over to Italian authorities in Vienna by the Russians.

Army Spending 500% More For "Hardware"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Army said today it is spending 500 per cent more for "hardware"—guns, tanks, ammunition and other weapons—than was planned before the Korean war and the rearmament program.

Similarly, it said the outlay for equipment to be sent to the Atlantic pact allies under the military defense assistance program has been upped 400 per cent.

The Army set forth its report in a press release summarizing expenditures on major items under the present program.

Four Of Family Die When Home Burns

MANCHESTER, Ia., Oct. 8 (AP) — Four members of a farm family perished today in a fire that destroyed their home.

The bodies of the victims were found near the back door. This indicated they had tried to escape.

The dead were Charles D. Morris, 84, his wife, 82, and their children, Earl and Mabel, both about 50.

A hired hand on the nearby Louis Ryan farm saw the flames about 5 a. m. but the house burned down before help could reach the scene.

Kitchenette Cooking

The bride who learns to cook in a kitchenette apartment does have some problems to solve. Suppose, for expample, there is a range with no heat regulator to show when the oven reaches the right temperature for baking a cake.

The answer is to use a portable oven thermometer. One that is compactly designed to stand on or hang from the over shelf is convenient. Made of black metal with chrome trim, this thermometer has a round, clock-like face which shows at a glance the temperature inside the oven. This is a reliable guide to the new cook in regulating the heat to maintain the temperatures needed for baking or roasting.

Navy Military Sea Transportation Service Reveals Enviable Record

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Navy's Military Sea Transportation Service, now a year old, has disclosed it's remarkable record.

Officials said that the service has successfully met the challenge of transporting thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of tons of vitally-needed war materials from the United States to the combat area in the Western Pacific.

The service is foregoing any celebration tomorrow of the first anniversary because it is too busy hauling military supplies.

MSTS is the main transportation system by sea for the military. It carries all troops and supply, except in rare instances when transportation is undertaken by aircraft carriers.

A steady stream of men, ammunition, food, aircraft, tanks, gasoline, medical supplies and all other equipment necessary to the support of a major fighting front has been moved across the Pacific in the past two months by MSTS ships.

Not one infantryman or a piece of equipment has been delayed for lack of shipping, it was announced.

In the two-months period following the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, 200,000 passengers were transported a total of three-quarters of a billion passenger miles. That represents more than 775,000 route miles.

(These are world-wide statistics and also covers what is known as "the Atlantic lift.")

In addition, under the heading of cargo, 1,625,000 measurement tons were carried. That cargo was lifted a total of seven and one-half billion ton miles.

On gasoline and other petroleum products the figures show twelve and one-quarter million barrels were transported over five and one-quarter billion ton miles.

In accomplishing this lift, it was announced, about 230 commercial vessels were used under charter by the navy. They carried a total of two and one-half million dead weight tons of shipping.

Naval officials made no effort to conceal their pride in what the MSTS has accomplished since it took over the transportation by sea of Army men and material just one year ago.

Bridegroom Of Day Dies In Auto Crash

Looking for POWER ?

Better Buy Buick!

THAT bold bonnet that stretches out before your eyes on a 1950 Buick isn't there just for show.

Lift it up, and you'll find that the space beneath is abundantly occupied, by one of the biggest hoodfuls of power you'll find in any motorcar.

What you're looking at is Buick's modern version of the high-compression valve-in-head engine, which gains extra wallop from the fact that it uses the exclusive Fireball combustion principle.

We could list a lot of mechanical reasons why fuel gives up extra power in a Fireball engine—how it's wrapped in a swirling, ball-shaped charge—how it burns with a smooth, clean thrust that delivers maximum action.

But the best way to find out what all this means is to touch off the eager horsepower out on the highway by a gentle nudge of your toe —and feel your shoulders press deep in the cushions behind them.

Now all this sounds thrilling, you say, but how about the feed-bills for all these horses? How about miles-per-gallon?

The practical answer to that one is found in this year's experience with the SUPER and SPECIAL—and even the ROADMASTER.

In all three, the horsepower was stepped up at the start of the year —and in all three, happy owners report the best mileage in modern Buick experience.

This is due to a little-known but authentic engineering fact—which is that an engine burns less gas when it doesn't have to labor. At any normal driving speed, therefore, extra power is extra thrifty.

So we say again—if you're looking for power—mighty power—buoyant power—silken power— thrifty power—better buy Buick.

City's Anti-Red Law Rests In Hands Of Court

Decision Delayed After Arguments

The future of Cumberland's month-old anti-communist law rests in the hands of the Fourth Judicial Circuit Court where arguments on its constitutionality and the intent of the reds were heard Saturday.

Attorneys for the petitioners arguing to have the municipal ordinance voided declared it violates Articles 18, 23, and 40 of the State Bill of Rights as well as the United States Constitution.

Council for the city argued that the communist party is not a political organization, but a group which plots the overthrow of the United States Government and therefore the city is justified in enacting a law to protect its citizens and property.

Associate Judges George Henderson and Patrick M. Schnauffer, who presided, said a decision will be handed down after lengthy study of the legal technicalities and arguments presented in the case.

Saturday's court session is the outgrowth of an equity suit filed by William Boyd Coleman, Arthur M. Schusterman and Clair R. Mease who requested the court to declare the city ordinance null and void.

Coleman and Schusterman both admitted they held membership in the Maryland and U. S. communist party at the time the suit was filed but have since publicly announced their resignations from the group.

Both men were arrested, tried in Trial Magistrates Court and fined $100 each under the city ordinance on charges of failing to register with city police.

Attorneys for the pair also caused a writ of certiorari to be issued by the court. It requires an examination of the facts of the lower court's findings by the Circuit Court.

The city ordinance specifically requires all members of the communist party residing in Cumberland to register with police and also prohibits distribution of red literature. Violations are punishable by fines or jail terms.

Representing the petitions in court were I. Duke Arnett, Mitchell Dubow and William H. Murphy, all of Baltimore. City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey presented the city government's case.

Assisting Cobey were C. William Gilchrist and Louis Fatkin. They entered the case "amicus curiae" or as friends of the city in its fight to have the law declared legal.

Pitzer Will Filed In Orphans Court

The will of Harry A. Pitzer, late president of the First National Bank, has been admitted to probate in Orphans Court. He died September 26 at his residence.

Under terms of the will, the First National Bank was named executor of the will. The bank was also selected as trustee for the estate for the benefit of Mrs. Theodosia Pitzer, widow of the deceased.

Mrs. Pitzer was left all of the personal and household effects and Mr. Pitzer's car. Under the trusteeship she will also receive $1,200 quarterly.

Pa. Reds Lose Fight To Recover Papers

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6 (AP)—The communist party of Western Pennsylvania has lost its fight in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to recover documents seized in a raid on party headquarters.

The state's highest court refused a writ of prohibition, sought by Communist Party Counsel Hymen Schlesinger, which would be ruled the seizure illegal.

Previously, Schlesinger won a round when the Supreme Court ordered Allegheny County officials to remove a padlock placed on the Pittsburgh communist party office following a raid Aug. 31.

Investigations Begin Under Md. Ober Law

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6 (AP)—Investigations already are under way under the Maryland anti-subversive Ober law.

O. Bowie Duckett, special assistant attorney general in charge of enforcing the law, said today that a number of unnamed individuals and organizations are being studied by his staff.

Duckett added, however, that no cases have been presented to a grand jury, and that probably none will be until a referendum on the law in November.

Weatherholt Quits Board

Because of his candidacy for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket, F. Allan Weatherholt has resigned as a member of the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Weatherholt, a local newspaperman, will be replaced by a Democrat as all except one member of the board are members of the Republican Party.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has received a letter from J. Milton Patterson, director of the Maryland Department of Welfare, asking the board to submit the names of two Democrats from which Weatherholt's successor will be selected.

Out of a total of 1,500,000 American deaths in 1948, more than 600,000 were due to heart disease.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Jes' Plain Folks

TODAY, once and for all, I'd like to give the lie to the libel that Hollywood folk are a breed apart—that they're exhibitionists who specialize in double-dealing and double-living. As I know them, and I know them plenty well, they just happend to be slightly more photogenic versions of your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda — ordinary citizens who work hard, send their kids to Sunday School and get misty-eyed when they see the Red, White and Blue spanking in the breeze.

Billy Rose

What's that? The gent in the checked vest wants proof? Okay, but since the principals in the tale coming up are modest people I'll have to alias up their names . . .

A few years ago Moira Gaye, one of the most publicized patootıes in filmdom, divorced Hubby No. 4, a scenario writer, and married Hubby No. 5, a set designer. These multiple marriages, I hasten to add, do not mean that Moira was promiscuous; they only go to show that, if it's love that makes the world go round, the star had such an overdose of this commodity that she went around a bit faster than most.

Toward the end of the war, as you may remember, a lot of writers and directors with Hungarian and Czech names were showing up in Hollywood, and because of their aristocratic backgrounds and accents most of them were received with open arms and salons. One in particular, a Czech director I'll call Matchek, was welcomed with particularly open arms by Moira who was so smitten that she decided to make him Hubby No. 6.

Moira, like any Main Street hausfrau, was naturally anxious for her prospective husband to be a bang-up success, and so she set out to sell him to the executives of her studio. "Matchek's a great director," she told them, "and it so happens he owns the rights to a story that would be perfect for me. Why don't you buy it for my next picture? There's only one condition—Matchek must direct."

The studio heads knew what Moira didn't—that she was no longer the box-office attraction she was quacked up to be, but they also knew that if she were properly handled her past glories might carry her along for another picture or two. And so, out of loyalty to an old money maker—and touched by her devotion to her next husband—they agreed to buy both Matchek and his story.

A couple of days after the film went into production, the refugee dropped in to see the studio boss. "As you know," he said, "I love dear Moira very much, but there's one think I love even more—my integrity as an artist. And when I make a picture I permit nothing—not even love—to stand in the way. Therefore, in all honesty, I got to tell you that in this particular picture dear Moira stinks, and I think you ought to replace her with—" And here the incorruptible one named an up-an-coming actress who had recently been signed by the studio.

"I'll see what I can do," said the understanding bossman.

The rest is quickly told. Moira was kicked out of the role and simultaneously out of Matchek's life, and the director, specializing in sentimental films about home life, went on to become one of the wonder boys of Hollywood.

As for Moira, I see her occasionally in one of the more shadowy midtown spots in Manhattan. As a rule, she's nursing a Martini and, if the scuttlebutt is to be believed, still carries a torch for the Czech who was to have been Hubby No. 6.

And that's all there is to this just-folksy tale about a boy and a girl in the land of the gold coconuts—dead ringers, I'm sure you'll agree, for your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda.

North End To Hold Parade

North End's official Halloween celebration will be a parade scheduled for Thursday evening, October 26.

Sponsored by the North End Playground Association, the event is expected to attract 1,500 costumed marchers, according to President Ralph Knieriem.

As has been the custom, every child participating will receive a treat at the playground. The line of march will be from Riehl Avenue to Fairview, Pulaski Street, Columbia Avenue, Holland Street and the playground.

Mrs. Joseph E. Mackert, chairman of the publicity committee, said donations are being solicited from residents in the neighborhood and collection depots are expected to be set up. Both money and merchandise for treats will be accepted, she said. Monetary contributions should be made to Frank H. Kaplon, 802 Edgewood Drive.

The association is planning on several musical organizations taking part. The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has already assured the committee of its participation.

Knieriem said the parade probably will be set off in four divisions, with a band or drum corps at the head of each division. Paul C. Weisenmiller, chairman of the parade committee, will also serve as marshal.

Following the parade, merrymaking will continue at the playground where refreshment booths will be set up and prizes awarded. The prize list is expected to be announced within the next few days.

Part of the celebration will be broadcast by a local radio station.

The North End "Mardi gras" was begun several years ago by the Playground Association in an effort to curtail vandalism during the Halloween period. According to Knieriem, the event is getting bigger every year. Last year more than 1,300 treats were distributed to participating children.

The association president asserted that adults may march in the parade but are not eligible for prizes. The parade will start at 7 p. m.

In the event of rain, the celebration will be held the following night, Friday, October 27.

All Officers Re-Elected In Dairy Cattle Group

The Allegany County Dairy Cattle Breeders Association officers were re-elected Thursday night at the annual meeting of the group at City Hall auditorium.

The officers are Clarence O. Miller, Midland, president; J. Tucker Mason, Cresaptown, secretary-treasurer; and three directors, C. W. Armstrong, Rawlings; Delbert Valentine and James Miltenberger, Ridgeley.

Speakers were Dr. E. J. Weatherby, manager of the Maryland Artificial Breeding Co-operative, and John W. Pou, extension dairyman of the University of Maryland.

Mason was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the Maryland Dairy Cattle Breeders Association to be held in Ellicott City in the near future.

Harry Miller, Frostburg, serves as full-time technician for the local association. The fifty-three members own herds totaling about 800 dairy cows.

Miller said 943 cows were bred in the county last year, some being owned by non-members of the local association.

Miller also conducts tests of butterfat production.

55 More Men To Be Called Here Soon

The second call in one week for 55 men to report October 23 in Martinsburg, W. Va., for pre-induction physical examinations received by draft board headquarters in the Union Street County Building.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said 25 men will be sent from Board No. 27 and the remaining 30 from Board No. 29. The contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a. m. and return to Cumberland the same day.

Earlier another order was received for Board Nos. 27 and 28 to supply 55 registrants for examinations today, making a total of 110 during the past week.

Meanwhile, military officials announced that some 300 Second Army area women reservists — WAC's, Army nurses and medical specialists —will be back in uniform by the end of next month.

That is the Second Army quota under a recent nation-wide Army request for 1,644 women organized reservists.

Army headquarters at Fort Meade said orders have gone out for 200 enlisted WAC's and 32 officers to report for physical examinations October 16 and 17. Of these, 26 officers and 127 enlisted women will be recalled to duty not later than November 15.

About 1,350 nurses and medical specialists are being sent questionnaires in order to weed out 250 for recall. In this first call, 23 medical specialists and 123 nurses will go back in uniform by November 29.

The Second Army covers Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Road Meeting Scheduled

A conference with John J. Smith, county engineer, has been asked by George B. Hale, resident maintenance engineer for the State Roads Commissioner, to discuss the drainage problem on the county road which intersects with State Route 36 in Homewood Addition.

Hale wrote to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners asking it to have Smith investigate the matter to determine the responsibility of the county in the matter.

The board asked Smith to meet with Hale as soon as possible to discuss the situation.

Hale said that during heavy rainstorms the surface water washes down onto the state road and the county is requested to eliminate the condition on the section of county road over which they have jurisdiction.

The board also received a request from Robert C. Gardner, of Ellerslie, asking that the county road from the railroad tracks to the state highway in that community be repaired. Smith was told to investigate the matter.

Smith presented an estimate from the Armco Steel Company of Baltimore for a large garage for use in the eastern section of the county.

The garage, of steel fabricated materials, would be erected in the Piney Plains section to house County Road Department equipment.

The dimensions would be 28 by 40 feet.

It may not be necessary to advertise for bids as the structure may be purchased in sections and none of the sections cost over $500. The total cost would be $1,827.74.

All county purchases over $500 must be advertised on bids.

The board stated that the building would be far less costly if it were built of wood. The need for such a structure is urgent, it is claimed.

More Election Expenses Filed

Clerk of Court Joseph E. Boden has reported that nine more candidates in the primary election September 18 have filed their expense accounts with him.

W. Earle Cobey, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for associate judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, listed his total expenses at $2,204.42.

Edward J. Ryan, of Frostburg, successful candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, spent a total of $1,564 in the primary.

County Commissioner James Holmes, who was renominated by the Republicans for the position he now holds, spent $511.52. He listed contributions of $300.

County Commissioner William H. Lemmert listed his total expenses at $835.55 in his successful bid for renomination on the Republican ticket for his present post.

Wilbur E. Fogle, candidate for sheriff in the Republican primary, lists expenses of $68.10 in his unsuccessful bid for nomination.

Chief Judge J. French Van Meter of Orphans Court lists expenses of $54.51. Judge William C. Abbott, of Orphans Court, lists expenses of $30. Judge Hugh Stevenson, of Orphans Court, lists expenses of $35. All three men were unopposed in the Republican primary and do not have any opposition from the Democrats.

John W. Sloan, a Republican candidate for House of Delegates, lists expenses of $193 in his unsuccessful bid for nomination.

A. Charles Stewart, register of wills, spent $80 in the Republican primary. He is unopposed by candidates from either party.

Jonathan Sleeman, of Frostburg, listed expenses of $243 in the Republican primary for House of Delegates. He was not nominated.

Marine Escapes Reds In Dress

U. S. MARINE DIVISION HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, (AP) — Tough old marines will blush at this. A Marine corporal hid behind a woman's skirts in the battle of Seoul.

He was Cpl. Charles Collins of Sumrall, Miss.

Marine Combat Correspondent Allen Mainard found out about it and wrote of the incident.

Corporal Collins led a patrol mission in the worst of the fighting for the Korean capital. The patrol collided headon with a North Korean counter-attack. Collins ordered his men back and stayed to cover their retreat.

He slowed the Reds enough for the patrol to escape. Then an American artillery bombardment began and he couldn't get back himself.

So Corporal Collins ducked into a house.

Hours later, said Mainard, Collins walked down the North Korean infested Seoul streets in a woman's dress and into the marine lines.

His buddies said he looked lovely.

Collins was not amused by their jibes.

In 1935 Americans ate less meat than in any other year in the Twentieth Century — 117 pounds a person.

City's Anti-Red Law Rests In Hands Of Court

Decision Delayed After Arguments

The future of Cumberland's [illegible]nth - old anti - communist law rests in the hands of the Fourth Judicial Circuit Court where arguments on its constitutionality and the intent of the reds were heard Saturday.

Attorneys for the petitioners arguing to have the municipal ordinance voided declared it violates Articles 18, 23, and 40 of the State Bill of Rights as well as the United States Constitution.

Council for the city argued that the communist party is not a political organization, but a group which plots the overthrow of the United States Government and therefore the city is justified in enacting a law to protect its citizens and property.

Associate Judges George Henderson and Patrick M. Schnauffer, who presided, said a decision will be handed down after lengthy study of the legal technicalities and arguments presented in the case.

Saturday's court session is the outgrowth of an equity suit filed by William Boyd Coleman, Arthur M. Schusterman and Clair R. Mease who requested the court to declare the city ordinance null and void.

Coleman and Schusterman both admitted they held membership in the Maryland and U. S. communist party at the time the suit was filed but have since publicly announced their resignations from the group.

Both men were arrested, tried in Trial Magistrates Court and fined $100 each under the city ordinance on charges of failing to register with city police.

Attorneys for the pair also caused a writ of certiorari to be issued by the court. It requires an examination of the facts of the lower court's findings by the Circuit Court.

The city ordinance specifically requires all members of the communist party residing in Cumberland to register with police and also prohibits distribution of red literature. Violations are punishable by fines or jail terms.

Representing the petitions in court were I. Duke Arnett, Mitchell Dubow and William H. Murphy, all of Baltimore. City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey presented the city government's case.

Assisting Cobey were C. William Gilchrist and Louis Fatkin. They entered the case "amicus curiae" or as friends of the city in its fight to have the law declared legal.

Pitzer Will Filed In Orphans Court

The will of Harry A. Pitzer, late president of the First National Bank, has been admitted to probate in Orphans Court. He died September 26 at his residence.

Under terms of the will, the First National Bank was named executor of the will. The bank was also selected as trustee for the estate for the benefit of Mrs. Theodosia Pitzer, widow of the deceased.

Mrs. Pitzer was left all of the personal and household effects and Mr. Pitzer's car. Under the trusteeship she will also receive $1,200 quarterly.

Pa. Reds Lose Fight To Recover Papers

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6 (AP)—The communist party of Western Pennsylvania has lost its fight in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to recover documents seized in a raid on party headquarters.

The state's highest court refused a writ of prohibition, sought by Communist Party Counsel Hymen Schlesinger, which would be ruled the seizure illegal.

Previously, Schlesinger won a round when the Supreme Court ordered Allegheny County officials to remove a padlock placed on the Pittsburgh communist party office following a raid Aug. 31.

Investigations Begin Under Md. Ober Law

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6 (AP)—Investigations already are under way under the Maryland anti-subversive Ober law.

O. Bowie Duckett, special assistant attorney general in charge of enforcing the law, said today that a number of unnamed individuals and organizations are being studied by his staff.

Duckett added, however, that no cases have been presented to a grand jury, and that probably none will be until a referendum on the law in November.

Weatherholt Quits Board

Because of his candidacy for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket, F. Allan Weatherholt has resigned as a member of the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Weatherholt, a local newspaperman, will be replaced by a Democrat as all except one member of the board are members of the Republican Party.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has received a letter from J. Milton Patterson, director of the Maryland Department of Welfare, asking the board to submit the names of two Democrats from which Weatherholt's successor will be selected.

Out of a total of 1,500,000 American deaths in 1948, more than 600,000 were due to heart disease.

TODAY, once and for all, I'd like to give the lie to the libel that Hollywood folk are a breed apart—that they're exhibitionists who specialize in double-dealing and double-living. As I know them, and I know them plenty well, they just happend to be slightly more photogenic versions of your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda — ordinary citizens who work hard, send their kids to Sunday School and get misty-eyed when they see the Red, White and Blue spanking in the breeze.

Billy Rose

What's that? The gent in the checked vest wants proof? Okay, but since the principals in the tale coming up are modest people I'll have to alias up their names . . .

A few years ago Moira Gaye, one of the most publicized patooties in filmdom, divorced Hubby No. 4, a scenario writer, and married Hubby No. 5, a set designer. These multiple marriages, I hasten to add, do not mean that Moira was promiscuous; they only go to show that, if it's love that makes the world go round, the star had such an overdose of this commodity that she went around a bit faster than most.

Toward the end of the war, as you may remember, a lot of writers and directors with Hungarian and Czech names were showing up in Hollywood, and because of their aristocratic backgrounds and accents most of them were received with open arms and salons. One in particular, a Czech director I'll call Matchek, was welcomed with particularly open arms by Moira who was so smitten that she decided to make him Hubby No. 6.

Moira, like any Main Street hausfrau, was naturally anxious for her prospective husband to be a bang-up success, and so she set out to sell him to the executives of her studio. "Matchek's a great director," she told them, "and it so happens he owns the rights to a story that would be perfect for me. Why don't you buy it for my next picture? There's only one condition—Matchek must direct."

The studio heads knew what Moira didn't—that she was no longer the box-office attraction she was quacked up to be, but they also knew that if she were properly handled her past glories might carry her along for another picture or two. And so, out of loyalty to an old money maker—and touched by her devotion to her next husband—they agreed to buy both Matchek and his story.

A couple of days after the film went into production, the refugee dropped in to see the studio boss. "As you know," he said, "I love dear Moira very much, but there's one think I love even more—my integrity as an artist. And when I make a picture I permit nothing—not even love—to stand in the way. Therefore, in all honesty, I got to tell you that in this particular picture dear Moira stinks, and I think you ought to replace her with—" And here the incorruptible one named an up-an-coming actress who had recently been signed by the studio.

"I'll see what I can do," said the understanding bossman.

The rest is quickly told. Moira was kicked out of the role and simultaneously out of Matchek's life, and the director, specializing in sentimental films about home life, went on to become one of the wonder boys of Hollywood.

As for Moira, I see her occasionally in one of the more shadowy midtown spots in Manhattan. As a rule, she's nursing a Martini and, if the scuttlebutt is to be believed, still carries a torch for the Czech who was to have been Hubby No. 6.

And that's all there is to this just-folksy tale about a boy and a girl in the land of the gold coconuts—dead ringers, I'm sure you'll agree, for your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda.

North End To Hold Parade

North End's official Halloween celebration will be a parade scheduled for Thursday evening, October 26.

Sponsored by the North End Playground Association, the event is expected to attract 1,500 costumed marchers, according to President Ralph Knieriem.

As has been the custom, every child participating will receive a treat at the playground. The line of march will be from Riehl Avenue to Fairview, Pulaski Street, Columbia Avenue, Holland Street and the playground.

Mrs. Joseph E. Mackert, chairman of the publicity committee, said donations are being solicited from residents in the neighborhood and collection depots are expected to be set up. Both money and merchandise for treats will be accepted, she said. Monetary contributions should be made to Frank H. Kaplon, 802 Edgewood Drive.

The association is planning on several musical organizations taking part. The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has already assured the committee of its participation.

Knieriem said the parade probably will be set off in four divisions, with a band or drum corps at the head of each division. Paul C. Weisenmiller, chairman of the parade committee, will also serve as marshal.

Following the parade, merrymaking will continue at the playground where refreshment booths will be set up and prizes awarded. The prize list is expected to be announced within the next few days.

Part of the celebration will be broadcast by a local radio station.

The North End "Mardi gras" was begun several years ago by the Playground Association in an effort to curtail vandalism during the Halloween period. According to Knieriem, the event is getting bigger every year. Last year more than 1,300 treats were distributed to participating children.

The association president asserted that adults may march in the parade but are not eligible for prizes. The parade will start at 7 p. m.

In the event of rain, the celebration will be held the following night, Friday, October 27.

All Officers Re-Elected In Dairy Cattle Group

The Allegany County Dairy Cattle Breeders Association officers were re-elected Thursday night at the annual meeting of the group at City Hall auditorium.

The officers are Clarence O. Miller, Midland, president; J. Tucker Mason, Cresaptown, secretary-treasurer; and three directors, C. W. Armstrong, Rawlings; Delbert Valentine and James Miltenberger, Ridgeley.

Speakers were Dr. E. J. Weatherby, manager of the Maryland Artificial Breeding Co-operative, and John W. Pou, extension dairyman of the University of Maryland.

Mason was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the Maryland Dairy Cattle Breeders Association to be held in Ellicott City in the near future.

Harry Miller, Frostburg, serves as full-time technician for the local association. The fifty-three members own herds totaling about 800 dairy cows.

Miller said 943 cows were bred in the county last year, some being owned by non-members of the local association.

Miller also conducts tests of butterfat production.

Land Use Week Gets Underway

Cumberland and Allegany County people will have almost unlimited opportunity this week to learn something about conservation and what it means.

For some weeks now plans have been in preparation for the observance of Maryland Land Use and Fire Prevention Week, which started yesterday and moves into high gear today.

City people for the most part have been told little about the importance of saving America's all-important topsoil, possibly because there is little they can do directly to stop the heavy losses of topsoil through poor land uses.

But city people, too, have a stake in soil conservation. As the topsoil is washed away the product of the farms diminishes, timber resources become smaller and streams and rivers become choked with silt. The result is a deterioration of the economy.

To give city people some understanding of conservation and what conservation practices are, six farms in Allegany County today will hold "open house" and anyone who wants to get a first hand look is invited.

An even dozen community meetings have been scheduled in the county, with most of them to be held tonight. These meetings will feature short talks and movies.

There will be displays of wildlife and equipment at Constitution Park throughout the week, beginning at 6 p.m. today. Speaking programs and movies likewise are scheduled there nightly. On Wednesday night, 4-H club boys will give tractor driving demonstrations. Fire prevention by volunteer fire departments will be the feature at the park Thursday night and the observance will wind up Saturday with a parade of volunteer firemen along with Cumberland's paid department. The parade will include conservation floats.

Fire prevention week has been tied in with Land Use Week this year for one particular reason. The theme of fire prevention week is that fire is the farmer's greatest hazard, and just as fire is his greatest hazard so is saving the topsoil one of his greatest responsibilities.

Cold Is Hard To Catch

It is unfortunate that the related group of pesky ailments, most of them called rhinitis by physicians, should ever have become known in plain American as colds. The word "cold" has another meaning, as in "Baby, it's cold outside," which has served to perpetuate the belief that a person who is cold is likely to catch cold.

That is largely false (though it is bad hygiene, of course, to become chilled, particularly after being overheated). The main reason people catch more colds in winter is that they are often confined in closed rooms and vehicles with coughers and sneezers who are broadcasting their germs. In the summer there are usually enough air currents, even indoors, to disperse the germs.

This isn't mere theory. People on Arctic expeditions are often cold, but they rarely catch cold because there aren't many germs around. Physicist Gerald Taylor of Paris, who recently spent 17 months on the great ice cap of Greenland, is the latest to confirm this.

His scientific team of 30 men, living at temperatures ranging from 90 below up as high as zero on warm days, rarely had colds. When one of them did catch cold, it lasted only a few hours. Because so few germs were present, wounds also healed without festering.

Strange as it seems to most persons, heat is more likely than cold to cause colds. The scientists in Greenland kept their living quarters at 50 degrees. If people kept their homes and offices in the low 60s instead of in the high 70s, they would be colder but would have fewer colds.

Thomas Jefferson's preventive for colds was to wash his feet in icy water every morning. Winter air contains so much less moisture that the nasal membranes are dried out when indoor temperatures are raised, and contagion has a better chance.

Canadian Dollar Rises

When the Canadian dollar was left free in the world markets to seek its own valuation rating, it speedily rose in terms of the United States dollar.

Canada has been protecting the purchasing power of its money by foregoing orgies of spending and by maintaining balanced budgets. As a result, for the first time since before World War I taxes in Canada are lower than in the United States.

Left free, the Canadian dollar will, in time, be valued higher than the United States dollar as a result of the sound policies pursued by the Canadian government.

This explains some of the "flight" from the American dollar which has been occurring recently. Investment funds have been going into Canada and elsewhere, seeking safer harbor. But the Canadian wheat producer who exports most of his crop, will now receive less because he is paid in United States dollars which are worth less in terms of Canadian dollars. Canadian paper mills are expected to raise their prices to compensate for the lower priced U. S. dollars they will get.

This hopping around of the valuation of currencies of various countries is causing many to sigh for the gold standard, which was a stern taskmaster in keeping all currencies in line with their true value.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Unconscious Fireburgs

CARELESSNESS, untidiness, and ignorance lead to many fires. This is serious, considering that each year 11,000 humans lose their lives and the property damage amounts to 700 million dollars. More American women die or are maimed by fire in the home than in any other country in the world. The vulnerability of our households lies in our high standard of living, comfortable wooden houses, electrical gadgets, and the daily use of more than 850 million matches. In addition, many of us smoke and every one knows how dangerous a lighted cigaret can be. All this adds up to the fact that we must be on guard and do everything possible in the way of protection.

What are some of the most common origins of fire in the home? It has been said that a clean house seldom burns. This refers to the mystery blazes that result from spontaneous combustion stemming from oily rags, old newspapers, clothes, mattresses, and a thousand odds and ends of trash accumulated in the attic, cellar or closet. A cleanup campaign should be started today by getting rid of this junk.

Carelessness in smoking and the use of matches is responsible for 30 per cent of all fires of known cause. Smoking in bed, failure to snuff out cigarets, and flicking the live ashes into a wastebasket are the usual offenders. In addition, matches must be kept out of reach of children and tots should never be left alone where matches are available. These precautions sound simple but such rules are broken every day and your household may be next.

Conflagrations have followed the improper use of electrical gadgets. Just after the war the market was flooded with cheap substandard irons, percolators, refrigerators, heaters, and waffle irons. These devices had not been inspected for safety and the short circuiting that ensued contributed to the sharp increase of 40,000 fires in this period. The amateur electrician also unconsciously becomes a firebug. He overloads the circuit with extension cords, fiddles with fuses, and runs wires under rugs and chairs where they become frayed and exposed. How often have we read of an electric wire causing a tragic fire?

Cleaning fluids can be dangerous and in New York City alone the mishandling of flammable liquids produces 6,000 fires annually. Some are dangerous to inhale and the majority are explosive. Most of the vapors are heavier than air and settle to the ground. They follow air currents and when a flame or spark is contacted it flashes back to the source. The sparks may generate from static electricity in rubbing wet garments and stirring or pouring the liquid. Switching on the light in a room in which dry cleaning is being done has been the end of more than one individual. Undertakers become rich because gasoline is used in electric washing machines.

It is advisable to have the house checked for fire hazards that stem from the furnace or kitchen where heating units are located. More fireproofing measures should be instituted by utilizing fire resistant materials such as paints and roofing. Cut-off valves for the gas meter are available and more than one home has been saved by a sprinkling system over the heating plant and in the stairwell. All of this should remind us of the adage, "A good house is one you can get out of."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Congressman Walter Brehm of Ohio recently called me a liar for exposing his "kickback" manipulations with his office payroll.

I suppose it might be appropriate to remind Congressman Brehm that some of his ex-colleagues referred to me in the same language, notably ex-Congressman J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and ex-Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky, though they later went to jail.

However, I prefer to answer Congressman Brehm by giving some additional facts in the case and letting the public decide who is really guilty of telling lies.

The total kickbacks Brehm received from Mrs. Clara Soliday, a 75-year-old widow formerly employed in his office for three years, amounted to approximately $7,300.

Here is a month-to-month account of how this money was paid to Brehm from the time she went on his payroll Jan. 10, 1945, until she was summarily discharged Jan. 31, 1948, after having broken her arm.

Mrs. Soliday was paid $232.22 for the first part-month she was employed. Of this, she had to kick back $100 to her boss. In the next five months, from February 1 to July 1, 1945, she received $332.72 monthly, of which she returned $150 each month to Brehm.

Her salary went up in July to $359.16 a month (net after regular income and withholding taxes) and so did her kickbacks. From July to December 31, Mrs. Soliday regularly returned $175 of her monthly earnings to Brehm.

For the first six months of 1946 Mrs. Soliday kicked back $180 a month out of a $373.86 net salary. From June 30, 1946, until she lost her job Jan. 31, 1948, her listed salary was $442 a month. However, during all this 19-month period Mrs. Soliday kicked back $240 a month to Brehm.

In other words, during the entire 37 months the lady was employed, she was allowed to keep only about half her earnings.

Since a congressman's payroll is financed by the taxpayers, it is a violation of public trust, as well as the law, for him to require kickbacks from office assistants. However, all Brehm ever told Mrs. Soliday was that the money she gave him was needed by the GOP "committee" in Ohio for "campaign" purposes.

Troubles Pile Up

The aged lady's troubles really began to pile up in late 1947. While vacationing with a daughter in Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Soliday fell and broke her arm. However, another kickback to Brehm was due and she hastened back to Washington on Aug. 30, 1947, without stopping for medical treatment.

The arm was X-rayed in Washington and found to be broken, but before it could be set Mrs. Soliday went to the office of the House sergeant-at-arms on August 31 to cash her pay check. Then she went to a hospital, where she told a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, to get $240 from her (Mrs. Soliday's) pocketbook.

She then informed her daughter to put the money in an envelope also in the pocketbook.

The envelope, believe it or not, bore Brehm's free mailing frank, plus his return address in Washington in Brehm's own handwriting! In other words, Congressman Brehm made sure that his office clerk wouldn't forget her monthly kickback while she was on vacation.

Before Mrs. Soliday left, he gave her an envelope which he had addressed to himself in which to return the money.

"Isn't this a lot of cash to be sending in a letter?" Mrs. Hiser recalls asking her mother.

Up to this point—Aug. 31, 1947—Mrs. Hiser says that she didn't know about her mother's kickbacks, but learned about the payroll padding for the first time when she put the $240 in the envelope and mailed it to Brehm.

Last Kickback

A son, Ray Soliday, an Interstate Commerce Commission official in Washington, personally delivered the last kickback to Brehm after Mrs. Soliday, still ailing from her accident and unable to meet Brehm's efficiency standards, was fired.

Soliday went to Brehm's Capitol Hill office the first week in February, 1948, with the $240 in cash. However, he urged the Congressman to permit his mother to keep the final payment "in view of the circumstances" (her being discharged) and the fact that she had no visible means of support."

However, Brehm refused, saying that the "committee" (in Ohio) expected the money and that he, Brehm, could not go back on his "arrangement" with the committee.

"I don't care what the committee thinks," retorted Soliday. "My mother is entitled to this money and she should be allowed to keep it."

Finally, Brehm agreed to let Soliday return $100 of the $240 to his mother—a sort of kickback in reverse—but he pocketed the remaining $140 for the "committee."

Ray Soliday didn't see Congressman Brehm again until last July when he was summoned to Brehm's apartment in the Methodist building and informed him that "Drew Pearson is after a story about me."

"If Drew Pearson or any of his employes contact you—don't talk to them," instructed Brehm.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Poisoned Chalice

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT Truman and W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, have been trying to persuade Chester Barnard, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, to stick his head in a noose. The noose is, of course, the chairmanship of the Economic Stabilization Agency, the vital price and wage control job.

Whether or not this poisoned chalice is accepted by Barnard, or by another (and the appointment may be made before this report appears in print) the polite but firm refusals which Truman and Symington have already had from a number of able men are significant. For there is no longer the faintest doubt that the whole hideous apparatus of full controls will soon have to be imposed on the economy. And the plain fact is that the situation which the new version of Chester Bowles will be asked to control is already very nearly uncontrollable.

It is not yet widely understood just how vicious is the inflation which has begun to attack the national economy. One measure is the fact that current defense appropriations will buy almost $5 billion less than would have been the case only a few weeks ago. Another measure is that for the first time "frightened money" is beginning to run from the dollar, favoring Canadian or South American currencies, on the theory that the value of the dollar is no longer stable.

Some Hikes Indicate Greed

The hair of those who understand the meaning of post-Korea price rises is almost visibly standing on end. Since Korea, industrial raw materials have shot up 27 per cent; foodstuffs, 16 per cent; commodity averages, 23 per cent; rubber, 77 per cent; wool, 38 per cent; tin, 34 per cent; and so on. Some of these price rises represent the greediest sort of profit taking, since the rearmament program has not yet had any real impact at all on the economy.

The meaning of this is very simple. Unless the upsurge is very soon brought under control, the whole rearmament program will bog down, because the money appropriated for defense will not buy what is needed; and the national economy will be knocked lopsided in the process.

From the very start it has been obvious that some sort of controls would be necessary. Yet there is just one reason why the country is now faced with the horrible prospect of rigid, total controls. This is that both the Congress and the Truman administration, instead of being tough-minded, have been about as wishy-washy as it is possible to be.

This is no fault of Symington and his subordinates in the Resources Board, who from the beginning have recognized the danger and wished to deal with it. The fault rests rather with the familiar business-as-usual group within the Administration, and with the special interest groups in Congress.

Regulations For Toughness

The Truman administration's pet isolationist rightwinger, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, has been in charge of the vital field of allocations, priorities and inventories, where a little toughness might have worked wonders. Instead of toughness, there has been a series of regulations which boil down pretty much to the advice, "consult your conscience." In the equally vital field of consumer credit, the Federal Reserve Board has issued regulations which have hardly done more than formalize existing credit practices. Thus while Chairman Thomas McCabe has been warning piously of the dangers of inflation, consumer credit has been shooting to new heights, vastly increasing inflationary pressures.

As for taxes, in view of defense needs, the $4.7 billion tax increase asked by the Administration and voted by Congress, and already canceled out by rising prices, is a sour joke. And the sourest joke of all — for which the Congressional farm bloc is principally responsible — is a farm policy which forces the government to hoard masses of food in a time of explosively rising food prices.

This is the sort of thing which has made it inevitable that the wearily familiar paraphernalia of price and wage controls and all the rest of it will soon be imposed. And to top the whole mess is the fact that Congress, responding to nudges from all sorts of pressure groups, passed a control bill which will certainly work very badly indeed, if it can be made to work at all.

The astonishingly productive American economy can carry an enormously heavy load. But it cannot support both a huge defense load and at the same time a booming civilian economy in which every pressure group gets exactly what it wants. That is the road to a debauched currency, which, as Nikolai Lenin pointed out long ago, is the easiest means of defeating the Soviet Union's enemies. It is not yet generally realized how far we have traveled down this road already. If Barnard or any one else can halt the process now, he will merit this country's fervent thanks, rather than the kicks he will almost certainly get.

City Population Decline Is Opportunity For Towns

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—It is an old saying that "every cloud has a silver lining." Certainly, this applies to the bomb scares through which certain big cities are now passing. These scares offer great opportunities to wide-awake small cities.

What Statistics Show

The figures which have come out show clearly that the largest cities have passed the zenith of population growth within their corporate limits. The indications are that many of the cities have had a distinct decline in rate of increase since 1945, while the suburbs are the greatest winners.

This trend against living in large cities has shown itself in other ways. Some banks and insurance companies are less willing to take loans on business property in such cities. Some investors are selling out their stocks of the public utilities of these vulnerable cities. Real estate operators are feeling the results of the public's fear of living in these big cities with the accompanying increased demand for suburban home and business locations.

Decentralization Important

Perhaps the most important factor against the big city and in favor of the small city are the official statements of our government that the best protection against atomic bombs is decentralization. Those placing government orders for vital supplies are giving preference to manufacturers who have several decentralized plants. They strongly recommend to those with only one large city plant, that a supplemental plant be built in some small community a reasonable distance away.

Only a few weeks ago a bill was prepared for submission to Congress for an appropriation of $150,000,000 to build a temporary "Capitol" about 60 miles from Washington in the hills of Maryland. The plan was tabled by two groups: (1) Senators from the Central West believe that—in an emergency—the Federal Departments now in Washington should be distributed amongst the safe capital cities of the Central Western States which already have the facilities for housing these Departments. (2) The real estate boards of the big cities—especially Washington — strongly oppose any such move for fear of its starting a real estate panic in these big cities.

What Cities Should Do

Certainly, this offers a great opportunity to the Chamber of Commerce of every small city. Don't be content with forming a "Defense Committee." Also form a "Decentralization Committee," to systematically canvass manufacturers with plants in nearby big cities to consider moving to your city, giving them its advantages and opportunities. There are several ways to do this but the most practical is as follows.

Hold a meeting of your businessmen and ask each firm to supply the secretary of your new "Decentralization Committee" with the names of concerns in large vulnerable cities from which they buy goods. Then have these big city firms allotted to different local businessmen who will be asked to write on their own letterheads to certain big city firms urging them:—first to protect their customers by having a plant in some safe small city; and secondly to consider "our city" for such a plant.

It is well for big cities to form defense committees; but no such committee will advise its business concerns to move out. True defense depends upon the activity of decentralization committees of the small and safe cities to urge such moving.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Question Of Sedition

ONE of the inevitable reactions to the McCarran bill is a consideration of the question of sedition in a free society. Averell Harriman, for instance, tried to make a case that Senator Taft approached the seditious when he opposed the President's policies.

Frank B. Ober, who has made a study of this problem, defined sedition as: "...the advocacy of, or membership in, an organization whose purpose is to overthrow by violence our federal or state governments. We are not concerned here with mere criticism of government or public officials, no matter how vitriolic or how unwarranted."

But suppose the advocacy is not for the overthrow of government by violence but the expansion of government by peaceful means? The overthrow might abolish constitutional government by force; the expansion could overthrow constitutional government by infiltration and the unwarranted assumption of power. Mussolini took power by force; Hitler by constitutional means. Both accomplished the same result.

Congress has been grappling with this problem almost since we became a nation. The American Revolution was not a unanimous decision, and after the revolution, many were opposed to the new government. The Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798 faced this problem, but public opinion was so outraged by its provisions concerning "seditious libels" that the Federalist party was destroyed. In a word, what has been recently called "thought control" has always been resented in the United States.

Ober makes the point that Congress has faced this problem principally in four ways:

"(1) To prevent naturalization of, or to deport seditious aliens; (2) to legislate directly against sedition; (3) to hinder and control sedition through alien and other registration statues; and (4) to purge the government and labor unions of communists or other seditious persons."

Normally in our history, sedition has not been serious. Differences of opinion have been beneficial to the development of our political system. The radicals of the right and of the left have hammered out ideas on the anvil of debate to the general advantage of the country.

In World War II, pro-Nazi elements in the population were trivial, most of them being fanatical but unimportant and often ridiculous antagonists of Jews. Objective study must establish that their numbers were few and their influence on American thought and life hardly worthy of notice.

When it comes to communists, however, we face a very peculiar situation in the organization of this party as an international espionage, infiltration and sabotage agency under the direction of Soviet Russia.

This involves the libertarian in the intellectual as well as emotional difficulties. For instance, the distinguished dramatic critic of the New York "Daily News," John Chapman, has written a moving defense of some of his theatrical friends whose names appear in "Red Channels." His point is that these friends of his are able, competent, interesting and worthy of his friendship. He is discussing them in terms of his world, which is of the theater.

I, myself, experienced some criticism when I wrote praisingly of certain musicians who also are regarded as having been pro-Russian and pro-Communist. I was thinking of them as musicians, not as politicians. I might even have praised them for playing music which the current orthodoxy of Stalin has excommunicated.

Mr. Chapman and I face, in this respect, the same problem that worries many other Americans — namely, that in the 1930's and early 1940's, Soviet Russia and communism captured so many intellectuals and artists of this country. Many of these persons played with popularity, followed the crowd, believed that they were pleasing the White House.

I, who have devoted myself to fighting Marxism since 1918, realize that the innocent ought to be given a chance to establish their innocence. Just as I have always welcomed converts from communism, so we must give the innocent, the opportunist, and even the erroneous a platform to proclaim their renunciation not only of error but of folly. But no one can merely deny association where association obviously existed.

Sedition, however, is something very different. It means serving the purposes of an enemy country, willfully, continuously, ceaselessly, by any means, to the end that the will to resist that country is dissipated. Those who engage in such activities either to overthrow the government by force or to expand the power of government over the people, with the object of eventually controlling that government, are seditious. Difference of view is not sedition. The distinction must be clear.

Land Use Week Gets Underway

Cumberland and Allegany County people will have almost unlimited opportunity this week to learn something about conservation and what it means.

For some weeks now plans have been in preparation for the observance of Maryland Land Use and Fire Prevention Week, which started yesterday and moves into high gear today.

City people for the most part have been told little about the importance of saving America's all-important topsoil, possibly because there is little they can do directly to stop the heavy losses of topsoil through poor land uses.

But city people, too, have a stake in soil conservation. As the topsoil is washed away the product of the farms diminishes, timber resources become smaller and streams and rivers become choked with silt. The result is a deterioration of the economy.

To give city people some understanding of conservation and what conservation practices are, six farms in Allegany County today will hold "open house" and anyone who wants to get a first hand look is invited.

An even dozen community meetings have been scheduled in the county, with most of them to be held tonight. These meetings will feature short talks and movies.

There will be displays of wildlife and equipment at Constitution Park throughout the week, beginning at 6 p.m. today. Speaking programs and movies likewise are scheduled there nightly. On Wednesday night, 4-H club boys will give tractor driving demonstrations. Fire prevention by volunteer fire departments will be the feature at the park Thursday night and the observance will wind up Saturday with a parade of volunteer firemen along with Cumberland's paid department. The parade will include conservation floats.

Fire prevention week has been tied in with Land Use Week this year for one particular reason. The theme of fire prevention week is that fire is the farmer's greatest hazard, and just as fire is his greatest hazard so is saving the topsoil one of his greatest responsibilities.

Cold Is Hard To Catch

It is unfortunate that the related group of pesky ailments, most of them called rhinitis by physicians, should ever have become known in plain American as colds. The word "cold" has another meaning, as in "Baby, it's cold outside," which has served to perpetuate the belief that a person who is cold is likely to catch cold.

That is largely false (though it is bad hygiene, of course, to become chilled, particularly after being overheated). The main reason people catch more colds in winter is that they are often confined in closed rooms and vehicles with coughers and sneezers who are broadcasting their germs. In the summer there are usually enough air currents, even indoors, to disperse the germs.

This isn't mere theory. People on Arctic expeditions are often cold, but they rarely catch cold because there aren't many germs around. Physicist Gerald Taylor of Paris, who recently spent 17 months on the great ice cap of Greenland, is the latest to confirm this.

His scientific team of 30 men, living at temperatures ranging from 90 below up as high as zero on warm days, rarely had colds. When one of them did catch cold, it lasted only a few hours. Because so few germs were present, wounds also healed without festering.

Strange as it seems to most persons, heat is more likely than cold to cause colds. The scientists in Greenland kept their living quarters at 50 degrees. If people kept their homes and offices in the low 60s instead of in the high 70s, they would be colder but would have fewer colds.

Thomas Jefferson's preventive for colds was to wash his feet in icy water every morning. Winter air contains so much less moisture that the nasal membrames are dried out when indoor temperatures are raised, and contagion has a better chance.

Canadian Dollar Rises

When the Canadian dollar was left free in the world markets to seek its own valuation rating, it speedily rose in terms of the United States dollar.

Canada has been protecting the purchasing power of its money by foregoing orgies of spending and by maintaining balanced budgets. As a result, for the first time since before World War I taxes in Canada are lower than in the United States.

Left free, the Canadian dollar will, in time, be valued higher than the United States dollar as a result of the sound policies pursued by the Canadian government.

This explains some of the "flight" from the American dollar which has been occurring recently. Investment funds have been going into Canada and elsewhere, seeking safer harbor. But the Canadian wheat producer who exports most of his crop, will now receive less because he is paid in United States dollars which are worth less in terms of Canadian dollars. Canadian paper mills are expected to raise their prices to compensate for the lower priced U. S. dollars they will get.

This hopping around of the valuation of currencies of various countries is causing many to sigh for the gold standard, which was a stern taskmaster in keeping all currencies in line with their true value.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Unconscious Fireburgs

CARELESSNESS, untidiness, and ignorance lead to many fires. This is serious, considering that each year 11,000 humans lose their lives and the property damage amounts to 700 million dollars. More American women die or are maimed by fire in the home than in any other country in the world. The vulnerability of our households lies in our high standard of living, comfortable wooden houses, electrical gadgets, and the daily use of more than 850 million matches. In addition, many of us smoke and every one knows how dangerous a lighted cigaret can be. All this adds up to the fact that we must be on guard and do everything possible in the way of protection.

What are some of the most common origins of fire in the home? It has been said that a clean house seldom burns. This refers to the mystery blazes that result from spontaneous combustion stemming from oily rags, old newspapers, clothes, mattresses, and a thousand odds and ends of trash accumulated in the attic, cellar or closet. A cleanup campaign should be started today by getting rid of this junk.

Carelessness in smoking and the use of matches is responsible for 30 per cent of all fires of known cause. Smoking in bed, failure to snuff out cigarets, and flicking the live ashes into a wastebasket are the usual offenders. In addition, matches must be kept out of reach of children and tots should never be left alone where matches are available. These precautions sound simple but such rules are broken every day and your household may be next.

Conflagrations have followed the improper use of electrical gadgets. Just after the war the market was flooded with cheap substandard irons, percolators, refrigerators, heaters, and waffle irons. These devices had not been inspected for safety and the short circuiting that ensued contributed to the sharp increase of 40,000 fires in this period. The amateur electrician also unconsciously becomes a firebug. He overloads the circuit with extension cords, fiddles with fuses, and runs wires under rugs and chairs where they become frayed and exposed. How often have we read of an electric wire causing a tragic fire?

Cleaning fluids can be dangerous and in New York City alone the mishandling of flammable liquids produces 6,000 fires annually. Some are dangerous to inhale and the majority are explosive. Most of the vapors are heavier than air and settle to the ground. They follow air currents and when a flame or spark is contacted it flashes back to the source. The sparks may generate from static electricity in rubbing wet garments and stirring or pouring the liquid. Switching on the light in a room in which dry cleaning is being done has been the end of more than one individual. Undertakers become rich because gasoline is used in electric washing machines.

It is advisable to have the house checked for fire hazards that stem from the furnace or kitchen where heating units are located. More fireproofing measures should be instituted by utilizing fire resistant materials such as paints and roofing. Cut-off valves for the gas meter are available and more than one home has been saved by a sprinkling system over the heating plant and in the stairwell. All of this should remind us of the adage, "A good house is one you can get out of."

DIARRHEA

R. D. M. writes: Is periodic diarrhea a sign of tuberculosis?

REPLY

This would be one of the more remote causes. An irritable bowel or sensitivity to a certain food are more likely culprits. X-rays and stool specimens are advised, however, because amebic dysentery is another possibility.

UNDULANT FEVER

L .P. writes: I have been a victim of chronic brucellosis for 16 years. Sometimes I feel good for weeks at a time but relapses always occur. At such times I have muscular pain, pleurisy, and great nervousness. I have had all kinds of shots with no results. Have you any advice to offer?

REPLY

Your symptoms are not unusual and demonstrate how miserable this disease can be. The latest remedies are aureomycin, chloromycetin, and terramycin.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Congressman Walter Brehm of Ohio recently called me a liar for exposing his "kickback" manipulations with his office payroll.

I suppose it might be appropriate to remind Congressman Brehm that some of his ex-colleagues referred to me in the same language, notably ex-Congressman J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and ex-Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky, though they later went to jail.

However, I prefer to answer Congressman Brehm by giving some additional facts in the case and letting the public decide who is really guilty of telling lies.

The total kickbacks Brehm received from Mrs. Clara Soliday, a 75-year-old widow formerly employed in his office for three years, amounted to approximately $7,300.

Here is a month-to-month account of how this money was paid to Brehm from the time she went on his payroll Jan. 10, 1945, until she was summarily discharged Jan. 31, 1948, after having broken her arm.

Mrs. Soliday was paid $232.22 for the first part-month she was employed. Of this, she had to kick back $100 to her boss. In the next five months, from February 1 to July 1, 1945, she received $332.72 monthly, of which she returned $150 each month to Brehm.

Her salary went up in July to $359.16 a month (net after regular income and withholding taxes) and so did her kickbacks. From July to December 31, Mrs. Soliday regularly returned $175 of her monthly earnings to Brehm.

For the first six months of 1946 Mrs. Soliday kicked back $180 a month out of a $373.86 net salary. From June 30, 1946, until she lost her job Jan. 31, 1948, her listed salary was $442 a month. However, during all this 19-month period Mrs. Soliday kicked back $240 a month to Brehm.

In other words, during the entire 37 months the lady was employed, she was allowed to keep only about half her earnings.

Since a congressman's payroll is financed by the taxpayers, it is a violation of public trust, as well as the law, for him to require kickbacks from office assistants. However, all Brehm ever told Mrs. Soliday was that the money she gave him was needed by the GOP "committee" in Ohio for "campaign" purposes.

Troubles Pile Up

The aged lady's troubles really began to pile up in late 1947. While vacationing with a daughter in Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Soliday fell and broke her arm. However, another kickback to Brehm was due and she hastened back to Washington on Aug. 30, 1947, without stopping for medical treatment.

The arm was X-rayed in Washington and found to be broken, but before it could be set Mrs. Soliday went to the office of the House sergeant-at-arms on August 31 to cash her pay check. Then she went to a hospital, where she told a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, to get $240 from her (Mrs. Soliday's) pocketbook.

She then informed her daughter to put the money in an envelope also in the pocketbook.

The envelope, believe it or not, bore Brehm's free mailing frank, plus his return address in Washington in Brehm's own handwriting! In other words, Congressman Brehm made sure that his office clerk wouldn't forget her monthly kickback while she was on vacation.

Before Mrs. Soliday left, he gave her an envelope which he had addressed to himself in which to return the money.

"Isn't this a lot of cash to be sending in a letter?" Mrs. Hiser recalls asking her mother.

Up to this point—Aug. 31, 1947—Mrs. Hiser says that she didn't know about her mother's kickbacks, but learned about the payroll padding for the first time when she put the $240 in the envelope and mailed it to Brehm.

Last Kickback

A son, Ray Soliday, an Interstate Commerce Commission official in Washington, personally delivered the last kickback to Brehm after Mrs. Soliday, still ailing from her accident and unable to meet Brehm's efficiency standards, was fired.

Soliday went to Brehm's Capitol Hill office the first week in February, 1948, with the $240 in cash. However, he urged the Congressman to permit his mother to keep the final payment "in view of the circumstances" (her being discharged) and the fact that she had no visible means of support."

However, Brehm refused, saying that the "committee" (in Ohio) expected the money and that he, Brehm, could not go back on his "arrangement" with the committee.

"I don't care what the committee thinks," retorted Soliday. "My mother is entitled to this money and she should be allowed to keep it."

Finally, Brehm agreed to let Soliday return $100 of the $240 to his mother—a sort of kickback in reverse—but he pocketed the remaining $140 for the "committee."

Ray Soliday didn't see Congressman Brehm again until last July when he was summoned to Brehm's apartment in the Methodist building and informed him that "Drew Pearson is after a story about me."

"If Drew Pearson or any of his employes contact you—don't talk to them," instructed Brehm.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Poisoned Chalice

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT Truman and W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, have been trying to persuade Chester Barnard, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, to stick his head in a noose. The noose is, of course, the chairmanship of the Economic Stabilization Agency, the vital price and wage control job.

Whether or not this poisoned chalice is accepted by Barnard, or by another (and the appointment may be made before this report appears in print) the polite but firm refusals which Truman and Symington have already had from a number of able men are significant. For there is no longer the faintest doubt that the whole hideous apparatus of full controls will soon have to be imposed on the economy. And the plain fact is that the situation which the new version of Chester Bowles will be asked to control is already very nearly uncontrollable.

It is not yet widely understood just how vicious is the inflation which has begun to attack the national economy. One measure is the fact that current defense appropriations will buy almost $5 billion less than would have been the case only a few weeks ago. Another measure is that for the first time "frightened money" is beginning to run from the dollar, favoring Canadian or South American currencies, on the theory that the value of the dollar is no longer stable.

Some Hikes Indicate Greed

The hair of those who understand the meaning of post-Korea price rises is almost visibly standing on end. Since Korea, industrial raw materials have shot up 27 per cent; foodstuffs, 16 per cent; commodity averages, 23 per cent; rubber, 77 per cent; wool, 38 per cent; tin, 34 per cent; and so on. Some of these price rises represent the greediest sort of profit taking, since the rearmament program has not yet had any real impact at all on the economy.

The meaning of this is very simple. Unless the upsurge is very soon brought under control, the whole rearmament program will bog down, because the money appropriated for defense will not buy what is needed; and the national economy will be knocked lopsided in the process.

From the very start it has been obvious that some sort of controls would be necessary. Yet there is just one reason why the country is now faced with the horrible prospect of rigid, total controls. This is that both the Congress and the Truman administration, instead of being tough-minded, have been about as wishy-washy as it is possible to be.

This is no fault of Symington and his subordinates in the Resources Board, who from the beginning have recognized the danger and wished to deal with it. The fault rests rather with the familiar business-as-usual group within the Administration, and with the special interest groups in Congress.

Regulations For Toughness

The Truman administration's pet isolationist rightwinger, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, has been in charge of the vital field of allocations, priorities and inventories, where a little toughness might have worked wonders. Instead of toughness, there has been a series of regulations which boil down pretty much to the advice, "consult your conscience." In the equally vital field of consumer credit, the Federal Reserve Board has issued regulations which have hardly done more than formalize existing credit practices. Thus while Chairman Thomas McCabe has been warning piously of the dangers of inflation, consumer credit has been shooting to new heights, vastly increasing inflationary pressures.

As for taxes, in view of defense needs, the $4.7 billion tax increase asked by the Administration and voted by Congress, and already canceled out by rising prices, is a sour joke. And the sourest joke of all — for which the Congressional farm bloc is principally responsible — is a farm policy which forces the government to hoard masses of food in a time of explosively rising food prices.

This is the sort of thing which has made it inevitable that the wearily familiar paraphernalia of price and wage controls and all the rest of it will soon be imposed. And to top the whole mess is the fact that Congress, responding to nudges from all sorts of pressure groups, passed a control bill which will certainly work very badly indeed, if it can be made to work at all.

The astonishingly productive American economy can carry an enormously heavy load. But it cannot support both a huge defense load and at the same time a booming civilian economy in which every pressure group gets exactly what it wants. That is the road to a debauched currency, which, as Nikolai Lenin pointed out long ago, is the easiest means of defeating the Soviet Union's enemies. It is not yet generally realized how far we have traveled down this road already. If Barnard or any one else can halt the process now, he will merit this country's fervent thanks, rather than the kicks he will almost certainly get.

City Population Decline Is Opportunity For Towns

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—It is an old saying that "every cloud has a silver lining." Certainly, this applies to the bomb scares through which certain big cities are now passing. These scares offer great opportunities to wide-awake small cities.

What Statistics Show

The figures which have come out show clearly that the largest cities have passed the zenith of population growth within their corporate limits. The indications are that many of the cities have had a distinct decline in rate of increase since 1945, while the suburbs are the greatest winners.

This trend against living in large cities has shown itself in other ways. Some banks and insurance companies are less willing to take loans on business property in such cities. Some investors are selling out their stocks of the public utilities of these vulnerable cities. Real estate operators are feeling the results of the public's fear of living in these big cities with the accompanying increased demand for suburban home and business locations.

Decentralization Important

Perhaps the most important factor against the big city and in favor of the small city are the official statements of our government that the best protection against atomic bombs is decentralization. Those placing government orders for vital supplies are giving preference to manufacturers who have several decentralized plants. They strongly recommend to those with only one large city plant, that a supplemental plant be built in some small community a reasonable distance away.

Only a few weeks ago a bill was prepared for submission to Congress for an appropriation of $150,000,000 to build a temporary "Capitol" about 60 miles from Washington in the hills of Maryland. The plan was tabled by two groups: (1) Senators from the Central West believe that—in an emergency—the Federal Departments now in Washington should be distributed amongst the safe capital cities of the Central Western States which already have the facilities for housing these Departments. (2) The real estate boards of the big cities—especially Washington — strongly oppose any such move for fear of its starting a real estate panic in these big cities.

What Cities Should Do

Certainly, this offers a great opportunity to the Chamber of Commerce of every small city. Don't be content with forming a "Defense Committee." Also form a "Decentralization Committee," to systematically canvass manufacturers with plants in nearby big cities to consider moving to your city, giving them its advantages and opportunities. There are several ways to do this but the most practical is as follows.

Hold a meeting of your businessmen and ask each firm to supply the secretary of your new "Decentralization Committee" with the names of concerns in large vulnerable cities from which they buy goods. Then have these big city firms allotted to different local businessmen who will be asked to write on their own letterheads to certain big city firms urging them:—first to protect their customers by having a plant in some safe small city; and secondly to consider "our city" for such a plant.

It is well for big cities to form defense committees; but no such committee will advise its business concerns to move out. True defense depends upon the activity of decentralization committees of the small and safe cities to urge such moving.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Question Of Sedition

ONE of the inevitable reactions to the McCarran bill is a consideration of the question of sedition in a free society. Averell Harriman, for instance, tried to make a case that Senator Taft approached the seditious when he opposed the President's policies.

Frank B. Ober, who has made a study of this problem, defined sedition as: ". . .the advocacy of, or membership in, an organization whose purpose is to overthrow by violence our federal or state governments. We are not concerned here with mere criticism of government or public officials, no matter how vitriolic or how unwarranted."

But suppose the advocacy is not for the overthrow of government by violence but the expansion of government by peaceful means? The overthrow might abolish constitutional government by force; the expansion could overthrow constitutional government by infiltration and the unwarranted assumption of power. Mussolini took power by force; Hitler by constitutional means. Both accomplished the same result.

Congress has been grappling with this problem almost since we became a nation. The American Revolution was not a unanimous decision, and after the revolution, many were opposed to the new government. The Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798 faced this problem, but public opinion was so outraged by its provisions concerning "seditious libels" that the Federalist party was destroyed. In a word, what has been recently called "thought control" has always been resented in the United States.

Ober makes the point that Congress has faced this problem principally in four ways:

"(1) To prevent naturalization of, or to deport seditious aliens; (2) to legislate directly against sedition; (3) to hinder and control sedition through alien and other registration statues; and (4) to purge the government and labor unions of communists or other seditious persons."

Normally in our history, sedition has not been serious. Differences of opinion have been beneficial to the development of our political system. The radicals of the right and of the left have hammered out ideas on the anvil of debate to the general advantage of the country.

In World War II, pro-Nazi elements in the population were trivial, most of them being fanatical but unimportant and often ridiculous antagonists of Jews. Objective study must establish that their numbers were few and their influence on American thought and life hardly worthy of notice.

When it comes to communists, however, we face a very peculiar situation in the organization of this party as an international espionage, infiltration and sabotage agency under the direction of Soviet Russia.

This involves the libertarian in the intellectual as well as emotional difficulties. For instance, the distinguished dramatic critic of the New York "Daily News," John Chapman, has written a moving defense of some of his theatrical friends whose names appear in "Red Channels." His point is that these friends of his are able, competent, interesting and worthy of his friendship. He is discussing them in terms of his world, which is of the theater.

I, myself, experienced some criticism when I wrote praisingly of certain musicians who also are regarded as having been pro-Russian and pro-Communist. I was thinking of them as musicians, not as politicians. I might even have praised them for playing music which the current orthodoxy of Stalin has excommunicated.

Mr. Chapman and I face, in this respect, the same problem that worries many other Americans — namely, that in the 1930's and early 1940's, Soviet Russia and communism captured so many intellectuals and artists of this country. Many of these persons played with popularity, followed the crowd, believed that they were pleasing the White House.

I, who have devoted myself to fighting Marxism since 1918, realize that the innocent ought to be given a chance to establish their innocence. Just as I have always welcomed converts from communism, so we must give the innocent, the opportunist, and even the erroneous a platform to proclaim their renunciation not only of error but of folly. But no one can merely deny association where association obviously existed.

Sedition, however, is something very different. It means serving the purposes of an enemy country, willfully, continuously, ceaselessly, by any means, to the end that the will to resist that country is dissipated. Those who engage in such activities either to overthrow the government by force or to expand the power of government over the people, with the object of eventually controlling that government, are seditious. Difference of view is not sedition. The distinction must be clear.

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT WILL USUALLY WORK

A GAG which usually will work is that of bidding a No Trump game when holding a long solid minor suit together with an apparently sure trick-winner in the suit bid at your right. If that suit is led, you use your single stopper and then run the needed additional tricks in the long minor. When you are on the defense against a declarer who had hopped into 3-No Trumps when 2-No Trumps would have been a forcing jump, it is well to consider whether he is trying this device. If you decide he is, the lead of some other suit may thwart his nefariousness.

In the West sat a player who had never encountered the kind of bidding tactics used by South in this instance. So, suspecting nothing particular, he made the natural lead of his partner's suit, a low card away from the A. East stuck in the Q and the K won. South thereupon ran eight club tricks to have his game, and added on an extra trick with the diamond A.

An old campaigner, used to bucking up against all manner of stratagems, would have suspected South's bidding. The suspicious thing about it was his bid of 3-No Trumps when a call of 2-No Trumps would have been forcing in 999 cases out of 1,000. The lower bid is what practically every fine player would have made if he had the normal kind of hand with enough general strength to feel sure of a No Trump game. It would have invited additional bidding from his partner, showing he had nothing to fear, whereas the 3-No Trumps was clearly calculated to shut off any more conversation.

A veteran, who had been victimized by this device before, would have been likely to lead the unbid major. The spade 2 lead to the A, followed by a heart lead from East, would have killed South's entire hand and would have ruined him, as the dummy never could have put South in to score his clubs.

Donald P. Sheffler Weds Theresa Spisak

Miss Theresa Spisak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Spisak, Johnstown, Pa., became the bride of Donald J. Sheffler, 711 Louisiana Avenue, September 30. The double ring ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock in St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church, Johnstown, by Rev. A. P. Sabados.

Miss Mary Louise Sheffler, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's maid of honor and William R. Turner, Jr., city, served as Mr. Sheffler's best man.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Johnstown High School and until her resignation was employed by the Harris-Boyer Company in Johnstown. Her fiance is a graduate of LaSalle High School and is employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company in Johnstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Spisak entertained with a wedding breakfast at their home following the ceremony and a reception in the evening at the Marrelville Fire Hall.

Halloween Party Planned

The Polish Mountain Homemakers Club answered roll call with reports of what they canned during the summer, at the meeting recently at the club house. Mrs. Harry Hartman presided.

A story, "What Makes Leaves Turn Their Color," was read by Mrs. Hartman. The program also included the group singing of "America," and "The Lord's Prayer," led by Mrs. Josephine Smith.

Plans were formulated for a Halloween party and chairmen appointed. They are Mrs. Thomas Dixon, Mrs. Robert Twigg, and Mrs. James Fisher. It is to be held October 28.

Announcement was made that the group won $12 prize for its theme booth at the fair.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Josephine Smith and Mrs. Emory Davis.

For safety's sake, give them a brake!

• A school bus, a bouncing ball, a running child—these are signs for all of us to be extra careful while driving.

Accidents don't "just happen." Most of them can be prevented. That's why you'll find that, with telephone men and women, safety comes first—always, all ways.

Last year, for example, telephone drivers in Maryland covered 7,740,000 miles of streets and highways—in all kinds of weather. More than 1,700 of them completed that year without a single accident. And 44% have safety records that range from five to thirty years.

Our people are proud of these records—and rightfully so. But they'll never stop trying to better them in every way they can—with caution, concentration, control and courtesy.

Mary Claudice Fraley Is Bride Of David C. Johnson

Ceremony, Performed In Alexandria, Va.

Miss Mary Claudice Fraley, daughter of State Senator and Mrs. Neil C. Fraley, Oakland, became the bride of David Campbell Johnson, Wauwatosa, Wisc., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Johnson, in a double ring ceremony performed September 30 at 5 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Alexandria, Va. Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, Jr., rector, officiated.

Mrs. Robert H. Schildwachter, Baltimore, was her sister's only attendant. Robert Johnson was his brother's best man.

The bride wore a pastel pink wool street length dress with orchid corsage and carried a prayer book. Her attendant wore a blue crepe dress with red rosebud corsage.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates from the Conservatory of Music at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, in June. At present Mrs. Johnson is continuing her study of music at Julliard School of Music, New York City, where she has an honorary scholarship. Mr. Johnson, an organist, is studying for his master's degree at Columbia University, New York.

Following the ceremony there was a dinner at the Army and Navy Country Club, Arlington, for members of the immediate families.

Couple To Wed Nov. 23

The approaching marriage of Miss Alma Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Adams, Fort Ashby, to William Frase, son of Mrs. Nettie Frase, also of Fort Ashby, has been announced.

Rev. James H. Lotspeich is to officiate at the ceremony at 7 o'clock Thanksgiving evening in Trinity Methodist Church, Fort Ashby.

IT WILL USUALLY WORK

A GAG which usually will work is that of bidding a No Trump game when holding a long solid minor suit together with an apparently sure trick-winner in the suit bid at your right. If that suit is led, you use your single stopper and then run the needed additional tricks in the long minor. When you are on the defense against a declarer who had hopped into 3-No Trumps when 2-No Trumps would have been a forcing jump, it is well to consider whether he is trying this device. If you decide he is, the lead of some other suit may thwart his nefariousness.

Fort Hill And LaSalle Open Intra-City Grid Series Friday

Irish To Seek First Victory Over Sentinels

Unbeaten Hilltoppers Have Won 17 Games In Explorer Series

The Fort Hill Sentinels and the LaSalle Explores will blow the lid off the 1950 city series when the two elevens clash in Fort Hill stadium Friday night in the 19th renewal of their intra-city rivalry.

Fort Hill first began its battling with the Explorers in 1938 and the teams have met every year since then, including two games each in 1943, 1944 and 1945.

LaSalle will be seeking its first victory over the Sentinels—in a two-fold sense. The Explorers have yet to win a game this season in four games and likewise have never beaten the Hilltoppers since they began playing. Fort Hill has won 18 of the tilts while the 1938 clash ended in a scoreless tie.

Coach Bill Hahn's defending city champions have won four straight this year, including a 19-7 decision over a strong Washington-Lee eleven from Arlington, Va. Other Sentinel victories are over Moorefield, 32-0, Keyser, 39-6, and Martinsburg 28-7.

LaSalle has lost four straight this season, dropping decisions to Romney, 47-13, St. Wendelin High of Pittsburgh, 25-6, St. Mary's High of Pittsburgh, 7-0, and DeLone High of McSherrytown, Pa., 26-0. The Explorers were idle last week.

The worst beating the underdog Irish eleven has taken from the Red Raiders was a 55-0 shellacking in 1947, while the closest score was 7-6 in the first of two games played in 1943.

Fort Hill's unbeaten eleven has averaged three or more touchdowns in every game this year and is sparked by the passing of Quarterback Lynn Beightol and the running of Halfback Dick Beard.

Beightol has twice been selected "Player of the Week" this year while Beard is the city's leading scorer with 58 points.

LaSalle, under the direction of Coach Phil Carolan, has been unable to get a consistent attack going and has tallied only three touchdowns in four games to date.

Other games Friday night will find Ridgeley's Blackhawks invading Moorefield for a Potomac Valley Conference clash, Franklin at Petersburg in another PVC tilt, University High of Morgantown at Romney, Shinnston at Parsons, Terra Alta at Thomas and Bedford at Huntingdon.

Saturday games will pit Keyser and Allegany at Fort Hill in a renewal of the section's oldest gridiron rivalry, Montgomery Junior College at Potomac State in Keyser and West Virginia School for Deaf at Virginia School for Deaf.

Loyola Trounces St. Mary's 48-0

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP)—St. Mary's Gaels, who pulled a major surprise by holding Georgia to a 7-7 tie 10 days ago, were soundly thrashed by Loyola University today, 48 to 0. It was the first Loyola win over the Gaels in eleven tries.

Loyola went into the game before an estimated 17,000 fans in Gilmore stadium boasting of its best team in many years. The Lions quickly made good the boast, scoring the first time they got the ball and racking up three more touchdowns in the second quarter to hold a 27-0 lead at half time.

Dick Loring Suffers Broken Leg In Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—West Virginia University's crippled football forces got more bad news today—word that Quarterback Dick Loring would be sidelined the rest of the season and that Guard Jimmy Danter would miss at least the next game.

Loring, a junior from Morgantown, was injured in the closing minutes of the George Washington game Friday night. One leg was fractured in two places, later examination showed.

Ladies Shuffle Loop To Open Wednesday

Twelve teams were represented at the final organizational meeting of the Ladies Shuffleboard League last week when plans were made to open the season October 11.

Those present were Ruth's Tavern, American Legion of Frostburg, Clingerman's Restaurant, Century Club, Frostburg, Woodmen of the World, VFW, Redmen Squaws, Cresap Tavern, Stadium Inn, Frostburg, Jimmy's Tavern, Moose and South End Republican Club.

Opening games will be Woodmen at the VFW, Cresap Tavern at Squaws, Jimmy's at Stadium Inn, Moose at Republican Club, American Legion host to Ruth's, and Clingerman's visiting Century Club.

Tantieme Is Winner

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP) — Tantieme, three year old colt owned by Francois Dupre, won the Prix De L'Arc de Triomphe—Europe's richest horse race—today.

The triumph meant 44,000,000 francs (about $125,000) for the owner.

Frostburg Church Loop Meets Today

FROSTBURG, Oct. 8—The Frostburg Church Basketball League will hold its first meeting Monday night at 7:30 in the social room of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, Broadway.

This will be the fourth year of operation for the league which permits all boys who have not reached their sixteenth birthday on the date the season opens to participate, provided they fulfill the requirements of attending Sunday School or Church 75 per cent of each month. Also, a boy may not change his church affiliation in order to play basketball.

Last year the league operated with 16 teams representing nearly every church in Frostburg and Eckhart. Frostburg Presbyterian won the circuit's 1949 championship.

Mueller Knocks Out Stonewall Jackson

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—German middleweight champion Peter Mueller knocked out Stonewall Jackson, young negro middleweight from Washington, D. C., after two minutes, ten seconds of a scheduled ten-round bout today.

Mueller's heavy right floored Jackson twice before he hit the canvas for the final count, Mueller weighed 157, Jackson 147 pounds.

New York Giants Rally To Top Redskins, 21-17, In Mud

Yanks, Bears, Lions Cop Pro Grid Games

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—With less than six minutes to go, Chuck Conerly preserved the unbeaten record of the New York Giants today with a touchdown pass to Gene Roberts for 39 yards that nosed out the Washington Redskins, 21-17.

Until that payoff pitch, the Redskins and the 19,288 fans who sat through a steady drizzle had visions of a first class upset.

For the Redskins had held the lead on three different occasions, 7-0, 14-7 and finally 17-14.

But twice the Giants roared back to tie. And then, when it really counted, they went ahead.

For the Giants it was their third straight National Football League victory. For the Redskins, it was their third licking in a row after winning the opener over Baltimore.

But you'd never guess that the Redskins were supposed to be an easy mark today. Even after the Giants had scored the winning touchdown, the Redskins' Frank Spaniel ran the kickoff back 41 yards to the Giants' 49. Washington moved on down to the 35, but there Charley Brazenovich dropped the slippery ball and with that fumble all chances for an upset slipped away. Score:

LIONS TOPS 49'ERS, 24-7

DETROIT, Oct. 8 (AP) — Armed Bobby Layne found the murkiness and sogginess of Briggs Stadium to his liking today as he ran and passed the Detroit Lions to a 24-7 decision over the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

A crowd of 17,941 chilled and wet spectators saw the California club go down to its fourth straight defeat of the National Football League season.

Neither the driving rain or the poor visibility seemed to bother Layne who completed 15 of 32 passes for 205 yards and a pair of touchdowns. The former Texas star added the Lions' other touchdowns on a buck from the one inch to give the Detroiters their third win in four NFL starts.

The Forty-niners' attack failed to click during the first half as they penetrated Detroit territory only once with an interception ending that thrust on Detroit's 38.

The Forty-niners' famed southpaw passing ace, Frankie Albert, suffered a rib injury on the final play of the half and sat out the rest of the game. Score:

San Francisco	0	0	7	0— 7

YANKS TOP PACKERS, 44-31

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 8 (AP) — The sprightly New York Yanks outsped the Green Bay Packers 44-31, today before 23,871 fans at City Stadium in a National Football League game.

A six-touchdown third quarter set the pace in this sizzling battle under sunny skies after the Yanks had posted two touchdowns in two minutes as the first half ended to take a 17-3 margin.

Each club counted three times in the 41-point period and the Packers added another midway in the fourth to cut the margin to a bare six points. But the Yanks, holding grimly to a three-way share of the National Division leadership, intercepted a pass and cashed it for the final tally. Score:

New York Giants	3	14	20	7—44

LUJACK RUNS WILD

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP) — Passer Johnny Lujack turned into a running demon in a neat about-face today to steer the Chicago Bears over their south side rivals, the Cardinals, 27-6 in a rain-drenched National Football League game.

The Bears accomplished their amphibious mission before 48,025 soaked fans in Wrigley Field. It continued their domination in one of pro football's most ancient rivalries, being the Northsiders' 41st win over the Cards in 31 years.

Lujack, always recognized as a running threat although seldom given the chance because of injury possibilities, was like a rabbit on the loose. The Bears, after a scoreless first period, scored twice in the second for a 14-0 halftime edge and then counted one touchdown in the third and fourth. Score:

CARDINALS	0	0	6	0— 6
BEARS	0	14	6	7—27

Club And Spa Bar Sweep Matches

Retains Leads In City Loop Divisions

Club Recreation and Spa Bar dux teams scored sweeps in their matches in the City Men's Bowling League to retain their positions at the tops of their respective divisions in the 16-team loop.

Club retained a slim one-game margin over McIntyres in the National division by downing Kelso Juniors 3-0 while McIntyres were also sweeping past Diamond 3-0.

In other National division matches Roxy Juniors topped Liberty Lanes 2-1 and Harbaugh's Book Store edged Capital 2-1.

Bill Clark was high man for McIntyres with a 206 game and 527 set while Tom McGeady had 166-466 to top the Club team.

Army-Michigan Battle Heads Grid Slate This Week

Cadets Are Unbeaten; Upsets Rule Saturday

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Army, emerging as one of the nation's best football teams, gets its first real test this weekend in facing Michigan as college football set out on uncharted paths — with the Notre Dame landmark swept away.

So shocking was Purdue's upset of Notre Dame, 28-14, after 39 consecutive games without defeat, that many fans found it hard to believe football would be the same again.

But Army, ranked fourth in the AP poll last week and anxious to seize the top spot vacated by Notre Dame, marshalled its hosts at West Point to prove that if football won't be the same, at least it will be exciting. The Cadets tuned up for Michigan by trouncing Penn State, 41-7, while Michigan knocked down Dartmouth, 27-7.

Game Sold Out

Yankee Stadium, in New York, where the world series ended Saturday, is completely sold out for the big game — 65,000 seats. Some luster was taken off by Michigan's loss to Michigan State the previous week, 14-7. But Michigan still is tough enough to provide an answer for the question as to how good is Army.

Army, however, has a formidable rival for the number one spot in Southern Methodist. The brilliant, high-scoring S. M. U. team, which bested Missouri, 21-0, meets undefeated Oklahoma A & M (which, however, was tied by Drake 14-14 Friday night) in a night game in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. This is the second part of a football extravaganza, the first being an afternoon game in the bowl between two top undefeated teams — Texas, idle last Saturday, and Oklahoma, which barely beat out Texas A & M 34-28.

Purdue's sophomore-studded team that upset Notre Dame takes on Miami of Florida at Lafayette, Ind., in a game that will seem like an anti-climax after what happened at South Bend. Notre Dame will seek to set a new victory string in motion by playing Tulane at New Orleans. Tulane took it easy by defeating Louisiana College, 64-0 last Saturday.

The amazing thing to the football public about Notre Dame's defeat was that the stage was fully set for a last-quarter rally, in traditional Notre Dame style — but it was Purdue that rallied. Purdue led, 21-0, at the half and Notre Dame came back confidently to make it 21-14 going into the final period. Then Sophomore Dale Samuels tossed a pass to Mike Maccioli, and the 56-yard touchdown play dashed all Irish hopes.

Michigan State Beaten

Michigan State, ranked second to Notre Dame in the AP poll, crashed too. Maryland did the trick, 34-7, and prepared this week to mow down Georgetown. Michigan State takes on William and Mary in an intersectional game.

Kentucky, sixth-ranked team, had no trouble with Dayton, winning 40-0, and should not get much more of a test this Saturday from Cincinnati.

One of the top intersectional games on the program occurs Friday night, pitting U. C. L. A. against Illinois in the Coliseum at Los Angeles. Both teams lost heart-breaking one-pointers, Washington defeating U. C. L. A., 21-20, and Wisconsin beating Illinois, 7-6.

Ninth-ranking California, which struck a tartar in Pennsylvania but won 14-7, takes on Southern California, lucky to get a tie with Washington State, 20-20.

In other leading games eighth-ranked Stanford beat Oregon State, 21-0, and turned its attention to Santa Clara; eleventh-ranked North Carolina was tied by Georgia, 0-0; Vanderbilt upset Alabama, 27-22; Tennessee came back powerfully to dump Duke from undefeated ranks, 28-7; Cornell beat Syracuse, 26-7 and will move to Harvard Saturday for what should be another victory; Indiana pulled a surprise by spilling Iowa, 20-7, and this Saturday meets Ohio State in a hard test.

Isbell Is Star

A big upset occurred Saturday night when Baylor defeated Mississippi State, 14-7. The previous week Mississippi State surprised by upsetting Tennessee, 7-0. Baylor was led by Quarterback Larry Isbell, brother of the famous Cecil Isbell of Purdue.

In other Saturday night games Texas Christian beat Arkansas, 13-6, Marquette romped over Kansas State, 46-6, and Rice won a thriller from Louisiana State, 35-20.

Among other Saturday games Columbia beat Harvard, 28-7, and this Saturday will take on Yale, victor 21-14 overFordham; Holy Cross beat Brown 41-2; Northwestern gave Navy another trouncing, 22-0; Nebraska astounded by beating Minnesota 32-26; and Princeton took a hard fought game from Rutgers 34-28.

Terps Get Rest

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 8 (AP) — Maryland football players and assistant coaches earned Sunday off because they beat Michigan State.

Coach Jim Tatum called off today's customary morning movie review of the game for coaches and tonight's squad meeting.

"We'll get down to hard work tomorrow," he promised.

Pearls' Sweep Keeps Gem Bowling Lead

A sweep of three games over the Sapphires kept the Pearls in first place in the Gem Ladies Bowling League last week. The second-place Opals won 2-1 from the Rubies and the Diamonds tripped Turquoise 2-1 in other matches. All matches were played on the Diamond alleys.

Shirley Morrison spilled 183-498 pins to pace the league-leaders while Hilda Cox was high for the Sapphires with 140-352. Top game of the night was turned in by Elsie McKee of Turquoise with a 203. Elsie had a 460 set. Mary Jane Robb's 151-415 led the Diamonds and Louise Carroll had 130-349 for the Rubies. The standings:

Hill Climb Is Set For Oct. 15

Rain Washes Out Class "A" Meet

The local class "A" hill climb which was scheduled for Wiley Ford, W. Va., yesterday was postponed until next Sunday because of the inclement weather, James M. Raupach, sponsor of the event, said last night.

Class A hill climbing flourishes only in the east, Raupach stated, and 27 national champions and local riders were present at the Kline Farms for the event yesterday.

As this was the largest field ever to appear in the Cumberland area to hold forth in the "aristocrat of motorcycling" it was decided to hold the meet next Sunday, Oct. 15, and all riders promised to be back.

The climb, which is over 400 feet long and the largest in the east, is being sponsored by the Cumberland Motorcycle Club in conjunction with Raupach.

Several well known riders who were here for the event are Willard Brine, Paul Allen, Earl Buck and Howard Mitzell in addition to three Cumberland past national champions, Joe and "Tee" Hemmis and Clement "Buddy" Cosgrove.

The official referee for the climb will be George Mosser of Altoona, Pa.

Purdue Celebrates All Night Over Notre Dame Win

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP) — Purdue's 13,000 students had a colossal emotional hangover today after spending most the night whooping about their team's 28-14 football victory over Notre Dame.

Sniffles and bags under the eyes were high style in the residence hall and fraternity houses. The win-happy young folks ignored a rain storm to parade, sing and lionize the squad when it returned from South Bend at midnight. The team not only had won but had ended Notre Dame's string of 39 games without a defeat.

The fraternities had prepared gloating signs "just in case." They were ready to wave them from jalopies and convertibles — and they did.

There were no immediate plans for a special celebration tomorrow.

"Everybody's too tired right now," said Bob Woodworth, Purdue director of athletic publicity. "And (ahem) we have defeated Notre Dame before (19-0 in 1933)."

Coach Stuart K. "Stu" Holcomb and his team still glowed over yesterday's triumph.

"I don't know but that it looks even better today than it did yesterday," Holcomb said after rehashing the contest with his aides.

Beall Wins Second At Berkeley Springs

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 8—The Berkeley Springs High Indians dropped a 34-0 football game to Beall High of Frostburg here yesterday. It was the visitors' second straight victory.

An 82-yard run by Miller of Beall on the opening play was nullified by a penalty but he added an 80-yard romp moments later to spark the winners to their first score. Gaudion went across from the five for the touchdown.

Beall added another six-pointer in the initial stanza and scored once in each of the final three periods to complete the rout.

Brady, Gray, Hawkins and Burralls each tallied once in addition to Gaudio's score.

Richards Rumored Next Chisox Boss

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox tomorrow are expected to name their 1951 pilot, rumored to be Paul Richards, current manager of Seattle in the Pacific Coast League.

The incumbent Sox manager, John (Red) Corriden, got the job last May when Jack Onslow was fired. The White Sox this season finished sixth, the same as last year under Onslow.

Neither club Vice President Charles Comiskey nor General-Manager Frank Lane was available for comment tonight, but the Sox board of directors is tabbed to meet tomorrow when next season's field boss probably will be named.

Rain Postpones Area Activities

The heavy rain that fell all day yesterday postponed most all area sporting activities with several baseball playoff games, two softball games, a motorcycle hill climb and an inter-club golf match at the Cumberland Country Club among the victims.

Centerville's Reds, leading 2-0 in the best of five series for the Interstate Baseball League trophy, was scheduled to invade Romney for a 2 p. m. game yesterday with the Rockets.

Centerville made it two in a row by besting the Rockets at Romney Saturday by a 9-2 score. Deremer was the winning pitcher with Dave Rose the batting star with four hits, including a triple.

Westvaco's Papermakers were scheduled to be hosts to the Keyser Firemen in the fifth game of a best of seven playoff in the Bi-State League at Memorial Park, Westernport yesterday.

The two teams are tied at 2-2 and will play the fifth game Wednesday at Westernport, according to Pete Dicken, league secretary. Game time will be 3:30 p. m. The sixth game will get underway at Keyser, Saturday, at 3 p. m.

Keyser evened the series Saturday by edging the Papermakers 2-1 at Keyser behind the four-hit pitching of Wilfong. Dick Rotruck batted in both Keyser runs with a fly ball and a single. Harold Robertson produced Westvaco's tally with a homerun.

The opening contest in a best of five series for the County Softball League was postponed at Wellersburg because of the weather. LaVale will be host to Wellersburg Tuesday, Oct. 10, game time at 4:30 p. m.

The local Country Club's golf match with Fountain Head Club of Hagerstown was postponed until a later date. It was the rubber match between the two teams who split even in two matches to date.

Saddler, Maxim Face Non-Title Bouts This Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and light heavyweight king Joey Maxim, a pair of titleholders who like to keep busy, appear in non-title bouts this week.

Saddler, the sharp-punching New York negro, steps out against Harry LaSane of Houston, in a ten at St. Louis Thursday night.

Maxim faces heavyweight Bill Peterson of Chicago in a ten at Salt Lake City Tuesday night.

Lightweight contender Paddy DeMarco of New York clashes with Joey Scarlota, a fellow New Yorker, in the main ten at New York's St. Nicholas arena Wednesday night. This bout will be broadcast and telecast over the network by CBS.

The Friday night radio-TV show also will come from St. Nicks. Nick Barone, the rugged light heavyweight contender, takes on 20-year old Jimmy Beau of Norwalk, Conn., in a ten. The fight will be aired by ABC and videoed by NBC.

The week's program includes:

Monday — at Baltimore, Sonnyboy West, Washington, vs. Charlie Salas, Phoenix, lights, 10; at New Orleans, Carmen Basilio, Syracuse, vs. Johnny Forte, Philadelphia, welters. 10.

Tuesday — at White Plains, N. Y., Frankie Sodano, Philadelphia, vs. Henry Gault, Spartansburg, S. C., Bantams, eight.

Fort Hill And LaSalle Open Intra-City Grid Series Friday

Irish To Seek First Victory Over Sentinels

Unbeaten Hilltoppers Have Won 17 Games In Explorer Series

The Fort Hill Sentinels and the LaSalle Explores will blow the lid off the 1950 city series when the two elevens clash in Fort Hill stadium Friday night in the 19th renewal of their intra-city rivalry.

Fort Hill first began its battling with the Explorers in 1938 and the teams have met every year since then, including two games each in 1943, 1944 and 1945.

LaSalle will be seeking its first victory over the Sentinels—in a two-fold sense. The Explorers have yet to win a game this season in four games and likewise have never beaten the Hilltoppers since they began playing. Fort Hill has won 18 of the tilts while the 1938 clash ended in a scoreless tie.

Coach Bill Hahn's defending city champions have won four straight this year, including a 19-7 decision over a strong Washington-Lee eleven from Arlington, Va. Other Sentinel victories are over Moorefield, 32-0, Keyser, 39-6, and Martinsburg 28-7.

LaSalle has lost four straight this season, dropping decisions to Romney, 47-13, St. Wendelin High of Pittsburgh, 25-6, St. Mary's High of Pittsburgh, 7-0, and DeLone High of McSherrytown, Pa., 26-0. The Explorers were idle last week.

The worst beating the underdog Irish eleven has taken from the Red Raiders was a 55-0 shellacking in 1947, while the closest score was 7-6 in the first of two games played in 1943.

Fort Hill's unbeaten eleven has averaged three or more touchdowns in every game this year and is sparked by the passing of Quarterback Lynn Beightol and the running of Halfback Dick Beard.

Beightol has twice been selected "Player of the Week" this year while Beard is the city's leading scorer with 58 points.

LaSalle, under the direction of Coach Phil Carolan, has been unable to get a consistent attack going and has tallied only three touchdowns in four games to date.

Other games Friday night will find Ridgeley's Blackhawks invading Moorefield for a Potomac Valley Conference clash, Franklin at Petersburg in another PVC tilt, University High of Morgantown at Romney, Shinnston at Parsons, Terra Alta at Thomas and Bedford at Huntingdon.

Saturday games will pit Keyser and Allegany at Fort Hill in a renewal of the section's oldest gridiron rivalry, Montgomery Junior College at Potomac State in Keyser and West Virginia School for Deaf at Virginia School for Deaf.

Loyola Trounces St. Mary's 48-0

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP)—St. Mary's Gaels, who pulled a major surprise by holding Georgia to a 7-7 tie 10 days ago, were soundly thrashed by Loyola University today, 48 to 0. It was the first Loyola win over the Gaels in eleven tries.

Loyola went into the game before an estimated 17,000 fans in Gilmore stadium boasting of its best team in many years. The Lions quickly made good the boast, scoring the first time they got the ball and racking up three more touchdowns in the second quarter to hold a 27-0 lead at half time.

Dick Loring Suffers Broken Leg In Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—West Virginia University's crippled football forces got more bad news today—word that Quarterback Dick Loring would be sidelined the rest of the season and that Guard Jimmy Danter would miss at least the next game.

Loring, a junior from Morgantown, was injured in the closing minutes of the George Washington game Friday night. One leg was fractured in two places, later examination showed.

Ladies Shuffle Loop To Open Wednesday

Twelve teams were represented at the final organizational meeting of the Ladies Shuffleboard League last week when plans were made to open the season October 11.

Those present were Ruth's Tavern, American Legion of Frostburg, Clingerman's Restaurant, Century Club, Frostburg, Woodmen of the World, VFW, Redmen Squaws, Cresap Tavern, Stadium Inn, Frostburg, Jimmy's Tavern, Moose and South End Republican Club.

Opening games will be Woodmen at the VFW, Cresap Tavern at Squaws, Jimmy's at Stadium Inn, Moose at Republican Club, American Legion host to Ruth's, and Clingerman's visiting Century Club.

Tantieme Is Winner

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP) — Tantieme, three year old colt owned by Francois Dupre, won the Prix De L'Arc de Triomphe—Europe's richest horse race—today.

The triumph meant 44,000,000 francs (about $125,000) for the owner.

Frostburg Church Loop Meets Today

FROSTBURG, Oct. 8—The Frostburg Church Basketball League will hold its first meeting Monday night at 7:30 in the social room of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, Broadway.

This will be the fourth year of operation for the league which permits all boys who have not reached their sixteenth birthday on the date the season opens to participate, provided they fulfill the requirements of attending Sunday School or Church 75 per cent of each month. Also, a boy may not change his church affiliation in order to play basketball.

Last year the league operated with 16 teams representing nearly every church in Frostburg and Eckhart. Frostburg Presbyterian won the circuit's 1949 championship.

Mueller Knocks Out Stonewall Jackson

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—German middleweight champion Peter Mueller knocked out Stonewall Jackson, young negro middleweight from Washington, D. C., after two minutes, ten seconds of a scheduled ten-round bout today.

Mueller's heavy right floored Jackson twice before he hit the canvas for the final count, Mueller weighed 157, Jackson 147 pounds.

New York Giants Rally To Top Redskins, 21-17, In Mud

Yanks, Bears, Lions Cop Pro Grid Games

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—With less than six minutes to go, Chuck Conerly preserved the unbeaten record of the New York Giants today with a touchdown pass to Gene Roberts for 39 yards that nosed out the Washington Redskins, 21-17.

Until that payoff pitch, the Redskins and the 19,288 fans who sat through a steady drizzle had visions of a first class upset.

For the Redskins had held the lead on three different occasions, 7-0, 14-7 and finally 17-14.

But twice the Giants roared back to tie. And then, when it really counted, they went ahead.

For the Giants it was their third straight National Football League victory. For the Redskins, it was their third licking in a row after winning the opener over Baltimore.

But you'd never guess that the Redskins were supposed to be an easy mark today. Even after the Giants had scored the winning touchdown, the Redskins' Frank Spaniel ran the kickoff back 41 yards to the Giants' 49. Washington moved on down to the 35, but there Charley Brazenovich dropped the slippery ball and with that fumble all chances for an upset slipped away. Score:

LIONS TOPS 49'ERS, 24-7

DETROIT, Oct. 8 (AP) — Armed Bobby Layne found the murkiness and sogginess of Briggs Stadium to his liking today as he ran and passed the Detroit Lions to a 24-7 decision over the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

A crowd of 17,941 chilled and wet spectators saw the California club go down to its fourth straight defeat of the National Football League season.

Neither the driving rain or the poor visibility seemed to bother Layne who completed 15 of 32 passes for 205 yards and a pair of touchdowns. The former Texas star added the Lions' other touchdowns on a buck from the one inch to give the Detroiters their third win in four NFL starts.

The Forty-niners' attack failed to click during the first half as they penetrated Detroit territory only once with an interception ending that thrust on Detroit's 38.

The Forty-niners' famed southpaw passing ace, Frankie Albert, suffered a rib injury on the final play of the half and sat out the rest of the game. Score:

San Francisco	0	0	7	0— 7

YANKS TOP PACKERS, 44-31

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 8 (AP) — The sprightly New York Yanks outsped the Green Bay Packers 44-31, today before 23,871 fans at City Stadium in a National Football League game.

A six-touchdown third quarter set the pace in this sizzling battle under sunny skies after the Yanks had posted two touchdowns in two minutes as the first half ended to take a 17-3 margin.

Each club counted three times in the 41-point period and the Packers added another midway in the fourth to cut the margin to a bare six points. But the Yanks, holding grimly to a three-way share of the National Division leadership, intercepted a pass and cashed it for the final tally. Score:

New York Giants	3	14	20	7—44

LUJACK RUNS WILD

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP) — Passer Johnny Lujack turned into a running demon in a neat about-face today to steer the Chicago Bears over their south side rivals, the Cardinals, 27-6 in a rain-drenched National Football League game.

The Bears accomplished their amphibious mission before 48,025 soaked fans in Wrigley Field. It continued their domination in one of pro football's most ancient rivalries, being the Northsiders' 41st win over the Cards in 31 years.

Lujack, always recognized as a running threat although seldom given the chance because of injury possibilities, was like a rabbit on the loose. The Bears, after a scoreless first period, scored twice in the second for a 14-0 halftime edge and then counted one touchdown in the third and fourth. Score:

CARDINALS	0	0	6	0— 6
BEARS	0	14	6	7—27

Club And Spa Bar Sweep Matches

Army-Michigan Battle Heads Grid Slate This Week

Cadets Are Unbeaten; Upsets Rule Saturday

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Army, emerging as one of the nation's best football teams, gets its first real test this weekend in facing Michigan as college football set out on uncharted paths — with the Notre Dame landmark swept away.

So shocking was Purdue's upset of Notre Dame, 28-14, after 39 consecutive games without defeat, that many fans found it hard to believe football would be the same again.

But Army, ranked fourth in the AP poll last week and anxious to seize the top spot vacated by Notre Dame, marshalled its hosts at West Point to prove that if football won't be the same, at least it will be exciting. The Cadets tuned up for Michigan by trouncing Penn State, 41-7, while Michigan knocked down Dartmouth, 27-7.

Game Sold Out

Yankee Stadium, in New York, where the world series ended Saturday, is completely sold out for the big game — 65,000 seats. Some luster was taken off by Michigan's loss to Michigan State the previous week, 14-7. But Michigan still is tough enough to provide an answer for the question as to how good is Army.

Army, however, has a formidable rival for the number one spot in Southern Methodist. The brilliant, high-scoring S. M. U. team, which bested Missouri, 21-0, meets undefeated Oklahoma A & M (which, however, was tied by Drake 14-14 Friday night) in a night game in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. This is the second part of a football extravaganza, the first being an afternoon game in the bowl between two top undefeated teams — Texas, idle last Saturday, and Oklahoma, which barely beat out Texas A & M 34-28.

Purdue's sophomore-studded team that upset Notre Dame takes on Miami of Florida at Lafayette, Ind., in a game that will seem like an anti-climax after what happened at South Bend. Notre Dame will seek to set a new victory string in motion by playing Tulane at New Orleans. Tulane took it easy by defeating Louisiana College, 64-0 last Saturday.

The amazing thing to the football public about Notre Dame's defeat was that the stage was fully set for a last-quarter rally, in traditional Notre Dame style — but it was Purdue that rallied. Purdue led, 21-0, at the half and Notre Dame came back confidently to make it 21-14 going into the final period. Then Sophomore Dale Samuels tossed a pass to Mike Maccioli, and the 56-yard touchdown play dashed all Irish hopes.

Michigan State Beaten

Michigan State, ranked second to Notre Dame in the AP poll, crashed too. Maryland did the trick, 34-7, and prepared this week to mow down Georgetown. Michigan State takes on William and Mary in an intersectional game.

Kentucky, sixth-ranked team, had no trouble with Dayton, winning 40-0, and should not get much more of a test this Saturday from Cincinnati.

One of the top intersectional games on the program occurs Friday night, pitting U. C. L. A. against Illinois in the Coliseum at Los Angeles. Both teams lost heart-breaking one-pointers, Washington defeating U. C. L. A., 21-20, and Wisconsin beating Illinois, 7-6.

Ninth-ranking California, which struck a tartar in Pennsylvania but won 14-7, takes on Southern California, lucky to get a tie with Washington State, 20-20.

In other leading games eighth-ranked Stanford beat Oregon State, 21-0, and turned its attention to Santa Clara; eleventh-ranked North Carolina was tied by Georgia, 0-0; Vanderbilt upset Alabama, 27-22; Tennessee came back powerfully to dump Duke from undefeated ranks, 28-7; Cornell beat Syracuse, 26-7 and will move to Harvard Saturday for what should be another victory; Indiana pulled a surprise by spilling Iowa, 20-7, and this Saturday meets Ohio State in a hard test.

Isbell Is Star

A big upset occurred Saturday night when Baylor defeated Mississippi State, 14-7. The previous week Mississippi State surprised by upsetting Tennessee, 7-0. Baylor was led by Quarterback Larry Isbell, brother of the famous Cecil Isbell of Purdue.

In other Saturday night games Texas Christian beat Arkansas, 13-6, Marquette romped over Kansas State, 46-6, and Rice won a thriller from Louisiana State, 35-20.

Among other Saturday games Columbia beat Harvard, 28-7, and this Saturday will take on Yale, victor 21-14 overFordham; Holy Cross beat Brown 41-2; Northwestern gave Navy another trouncing, 22-0; Nebraska astounded by beating Minnesota 32-26; and Princeton took a hard fought game from Rutgers 34-28.

Terps Get Rest

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 8 (AP) — Maryland football players and assistant coaches earned Sunday off because they beat Michigan State.

Coach Jim Tatum called off today's customary morning movie review of the game for coaches and tonight's squad meeting.

"We'll get down to hard work tomorrow," he promised.

Pearls' Sweep Keeps Gem Bowling Lead

A sweep of three games over the Sapphires kept the Pearls in first place in the Gem Ladies Bowling League last week. The second-place Opals won 2-1 from the Rubies and the Diamonds tripped Turquoise 2-1 in other matches. All matches were played on the Diamond alleys.

Shirley Morrison spilled 183-498 pins to pace the league-leaders while Hilda Cox was high for the Sapphires with 140-352. Top game of the night was turned in by Elsie McKee of Turquoise with a 203. Elsie had a 460 set. Mary Jane Robb's 151-415 led the Diamonds and Louise Carroll had 130-349 for the Rubies. The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Pearls	10	2	.833
Opals	8	4	.667
Diamonds	6	6	.500
Rubies	5	7	.417
Turquoise	4	8	.333
Sapphires	3	9	.250

Hill Climb Is Set For Oct. 15

Rain Washes Out Class "A" Meet

The local class "A" hill climb which was scheduled for Wiley Ford, W. Va., yesterday was postponed until next Sunday because of the inclement weather, James M. Raupach, sponsor of the event, said last night.

Class A hill climbing flourishes only in the east, Raupach stated, and 27 national champions and local riders were present at the Kline Farms for the event yesterday.

As this was the largest field ever to appear in the Cumberland area to hold forth in the "aristocrat of motorcycling" it was decided to hold the meet next Sunday, Oct. 15, and all riders promised to be back.

The climb, which is over 400 feet long and the largest in the east, is being sponsored by the Cumberland Motorcycle Club in conjunction with Raupach.

Several well known riders who were here for the event are Willard Brine, Paul Allen, Earl Buck and Howard Mitzell in addition to three Cumberland past national champions, Joe and "Tee" Hemmis and Clement "Buddy" Cosgrove.

The official referee for the climb will be George Mosser of Altoona, Pa.

Purdue Celebrates All Night Over Notre Dame Win

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP) — Purdue's 13,000 students had a colossal emotional hangover today after spending most the night whooping about their team's 28-14 football victory over Notre Dame.

Sniffles and bags under the eyes were high style in the residence hall and fraternity houses. The win-happy young folks ignored a rain storm to parade, sing and lionize the squad when it returned from South Bend at midnight. The team not only had won but had ended Notre Dame's string of 39 games without a defeat.

The fraternities had prepared gloating signs "just in case." They were ready to wave them from jalopies and convertibles — and they did.

There were no immediate plans for a special celebration tomorrow.

"Everybody's too tired right now," said Bob Woodworth, Purdue director of athletic publicity. "And (ahem) we have defeated Notre Dame before (19-0 in 1933)."

Coach Stuart K. "Stu" Holcomb and his team still glowed over yesterday's triumph.

"I don't know but that it looks even better today than it did yesterday," Holcomb said after rehashing the contest with his aides.

Beall Wins Second At Berkeley Springs

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 8—The Berkeley Springs High Indians dropped a 34-0 football game to Beall High of Frostburg here yesterday. It was the visitors' second straight victory.

An 82-yard run by Miller of Beall on the opening play was nullified by a penalty but he added an 80-yard romp moments later to spark the winners to their first score. Gaudion went across from the five for the touchdown.

Beall added another six-pointer in the initial stanza and scored once in each of the final three periods to complete the rout.

Brady, Gray, Hawkins and Burralls each tallied once in addition to Gaudio's score.

Richards Rumored Next Chisox Boss

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox tomorrow are expected to name their 1951 pilot, rumored to be Paul Richards, current manager of Seattle in the Pacific Coast League.

The incumbent Sox manager, John (Red) Corriden, got the job last May when Jack Onslow was fired. The White Sox this season finished sixth, the same as last year under Onslow.

Neither club Vice President Charles Comiskey nor General-Manager Frank Lane was available for comment tonight, but the Sox board of directors is tabbed to meet tomorrow when next season's field boss probably will be named.

Rain Postpones Area Activities

The heavy rain that fell all day yesterday postponed most all area sporting activities with several baseball playoff games, two softball games, a motorcycle hill climb and an inter-club golf match at the Cumberland Country Club among the victims.

Centerville's Reds, leading 2-0 in the best of five series for the Interstate Baseball League trophy, was scheduled to invade Romney for a 2 p. m. game yesterday with the Rockets.

Centerville made it two in a row by besting the Rockets at Romney Saturday by a 9-2 score. Deremer was the winning pitcher with Dave Rose the batting star with four hits, including a triple.

Westvaco's Papermakers were scheduled to be hosts to the Keyser Firemen in the fifth game of a best of seven playoff in the Bi-State League at Memorial Park, Westernport yesterday.

The two teams are tied at 2-2 and will play the fifth game Wednesday at Westernport, according to Pete Dicken, league secretary. Game time will be 3:30 p. m. The sixth game will get underway at Keyser, Saturday, at 3 p. m.

Keyser evened the series Saturday by edging the Papermakers 2-1 at Keyser behind the four-hit pitching of Wilfong. Dick Rotruck batted in both Keyser runs with a fly ball and a single. Harold Robertson produced Westvaco's tally with a homerun.

The opening contest in a best of five series for the County Softball League was postponed at Wellersburg because of the weather. LaVale will be host to Wellersburg Tuesday, Oct. 10, game time at 4:30 p. m.

The local Country Club's golf match with Fountain Head Club of Hagerstown was postponed until a later date. It was the rubber match between the two teams who split even in two matches to date.

Saddler, Maxim Face Non-Title Bouts This Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and light heavyweight king Joey Maxim, a pair of titleholders who like to keep busy, appear in non-title bouts this week.

Saddler, the sharp-punching New York negro, steps out against Harry LaSane of Houston, in a ten at St. Louis Thursday night.

Maxim faces heavyweight Bill Peterson of Chicago in a ten at Salt Lake City Tuesday night.

Lightweight contender Paddy DeMarco of New York clashes with Joey Scarlota, a fellow New Yorker, in the main ten at New York's St. Nicholas arena Wednesday night. This bout will be broadcast and telecast over the network by CBS.

The Friday night radio-TV show also will come from St. Nicks. Nick Barone, the rugged light heavyweight contender, takes on 20-year old Jimmy Beau of Norwalk, Conn., in a ten. The fight will be aired by ABC and videoed by NBC.

The week's program includes:

Monday — at Baltimore, Sonnyboy West, Washington, vs. Charlie Salas, Phoenix, lights, 10; at New Orleans, Carmen Basilio, Syracuse, vs. Johnny Forte, Philadelphia, welters, 10.

Tuesday — at White Plains, N. Y., Frankie Sodano, Philadelphia, vs. Henry Gault, Spartansburg, S. C., Bantams, eight.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8. (INS)—The one and only Tallulah Bankhead—she of the husky voice—is receiving a caller this coming week, carrying with him a Hollywood contract for her to sign.

Tallulah Bankhead

Said visitor, Arthur Curland has already sent Tallu the script of "Biography" and she likes it and will talk business when he arrives in New York. I think you can say it's as good as settled that Tallulah will come to Hollywood to star in the motion picture version of the Broadway play.

Irving Reis has been asked to direct her, and, naturally, he's interested. It's all set for Columbia to release it.

Tallulah was a little irked over "Glass Menagerie," when at the 11th hour, the mother role was given to Gertrude Lawrence.

Joan Fontaine tells me she knows everything she is going to do—day by day—for the next two months. She goes to Honolulu tomorrow with Harry Crocker, Ann Miller, and William O'Conner on the initial trip of United Airlines, then to New York for two weeks, and then back here to start "Alice Sit by the Fire," with John Lund on November 6.

Yes, it's all set for Joan to star in the famous Barrie play, but the title comes up "Rendezvous." Don't ask me why, I don't know. But Harry Tugend who is writing the adaptation, and who was responsible for getting the play out of the files, seems to think it will bring more people into the theater.

One of Clark Gable's close friends, Billy Hickman, is in a critical condition in a local hospital as the result of a freak accident on location.

Hickman was playing a soldier who is killed in action, in "Red Badge of Courage." The final scene called for him to fall into a haystack.

As he did, a brittle piece of straw penetrated his inner ear and into the brain. He has been in a coma ever since the accident last Thursday, and grave doubts are held for his recovery.

Gussie Moran, tennis queen, has really gone professional with a vengeance. She recently signed with Danny Grayson, who handles Bill Boyd's successful tie-ups.

I'll bet the first thing put on the market bearing Gussie's name will be lace panties. Anyone care to take my wager?

Unfortunately, of late Howard Duff's dates with Ava Gardner, Ida Lupino, etc., occupy more space in the columns than his career—and it's too bad. Howard is a good actor, and has built up an enviable reputation with his Sam Spade radio show and his U. I. pictures.

Now he is to make an independent picture called "When I Grow Up" for Sam Spiegel and John Huston. Howard feels he will really grow in this, because it's the tender drama of a father and son—and not the blood and thunder yarns in which he has been appearing.

The author of "When I Grow Up" is Michael Kanin, who also makes his directorial debut in this picture.

Alison Skipworth, one of the great character actresses, wants me to tell the world she is very much alive. Now 87 years old, she is living in a private rest home and paying for it herself. It would be nice if some of her friends would write to her. She's at 202 Riverside Drive, New York City.

Six Hollywoodians, Cornel Wilde, Johnny Maschio, Ray Price, Dick Powell, Dennis Morgan and Dennis O'Keefe, who invested money in oil wells in Filmore, Calif., received good news. The oil came in to the tune of 174 barrels a day.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Bill Robson's marriage has gone on the rocks, and talk is the next Mrs. Robson will be Nancy Kelly, star of "Season in the Sun."

Stewart Granger is buying a house. Yes, you guessed it—it's for Jean Simmons. When they'll marry neither is saying. What happens to her English contract if she comes here to live? We'd love to have her.

From London comes word that David Farrar, who was so good in "Black Narcissus," has just undergone a serious major operation.

Judy Canova and her bridegroom, Philip Rivero, are in Apple Valley where Judy is trying to get rid of a bad cold before she checks in at Republic.

"The Medium" and "The Telephone" opening brought out many star names. Nancy Sinatra was with Bob Sterling, Rhonda Fleming with Dr. Morrill, and Patricia Medina was by her pretty self. Loren Welch, one of the cast, who formerly lived here, got a big hand from his friends in the audience.

Heck, what's a month! Abbott and Costello say their contract permitting television takes effect a whole month before Red Skelton's. They go on television in September 1951, while poor Red has to wait until October 1951.

Tuesday night Nelson Eddy opens his concert season at the Fox Theater in Santa Barbara. Amazing the way, year after year, his popularity continues. Not so amazing when you think what a personality and voice Nelson has.

Ingrid Bergman and Rossellini have bought a home overlooking the sea outside Rome. The address they will keep to themselves since so many uninvited guests have been dropping in to see Mr. and Mrs. Rossellini.

Cleo Moore, former daughter-in-law of the late Huey Long, plays the other woman in "On the Riviera" with Danny Kaye. She was formerly married to Palmer Long, Huey's son.

Yvonne De Carlo made an audition for Rodgers and Hammerstein for the Linda Darnell role in "Anna and the King of Siam" on Broadway.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

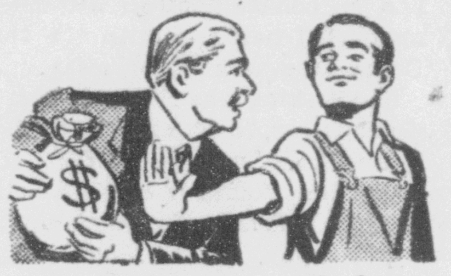
MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a stepfather discipline teen-agers?

Answer: Not if it can be avoided—the most he can wisely do is to "back up" their mother. For you cannot really make a child obey you once he's old enough to go about by himself, and if he does so at all—at least, when you are not looking—it will be only because he loves and trusts you. The average adolescent longs to find someone to whom he can go for advice and will turn gladly to a person he feels has his welfare at heart, but to give him orders before you have won his confidence will only spur him to defy them.



Do men work mainly for money?

Answer: No, report industrial psychologists who have studied labor-management relations. Research uniformly shows that "job security" is more important to the average worker than high wages and that once this is achieved, what he wants next is "ego-satisfaction." Morale and efficiency are highest where the worker feels his job is regarded as important by the "higher-ups," and that his ideas will receive consideration. A demand for more pay frequently is an unconscious protest against being denied recognition as a person.

Will "will power" cure alcoholism?

Answer: No, maintains Dwight Anderson, self-styled "dry drunkard," in his comprehensive and illuminating book, "The Other Side of the Bottle." "I don't know of a single dry alcoholic who has managed it by will alone. An alcoholic must be so profoundly convinced that alcohol is harmful to him that he will automatically resist the idea of taking a drink." Until sad experience has brought him this conviction, mere determination not to drink serves mainly to keep the idea of drinking in his mind and give it "a glamour that is almost irresistible."

Are American women appreciated. Read this fan letter from a tall, dark and handsome male and you will know!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

NOT all the letters from male readers of this column ask me to help with some feminine foible they would particularly like to see put asunder. Many are pure paeans of praise for you as attested by the following one which I just received.

"As an advertising man, I read 'Secrets of Charm' daily. My work demands a knowledge of women's interests, and so, of course, it was no surprise to me to find that the American girl's goal is to make the most of her natural attractive self. But I am constantly amazed by the sincerity and perseverance women apply to the accomplishment—and especially by the high degree of success attained.

The Male Viewpoint

"Just before reading a recent column I had been pondering the curious American failing of seldom pausing to express appreciation of the things we cherish most. So, after reading your column, what was more natural than for me to follow up my thought with a letter to you, asking you to pass along to your readers one man's esteem?

"Back during the second world war, most people thought the boys were fighting for apple pie and the girls back home. But as one of the guys who did a lot of traveling and sat in on many a bull session during that war, I can tell you that we all thought apple pie was pretty nice — but not worth that much trouble, even a la mode.

"But the American girl — there's quite a different matter! And hot as our bull sessions got, there was always one point on which we agreed: our girls, we vowed, are in a class by themselves. Different, indispensable and wonderful!

"What's more, they always will be as long as they stick to that goal of making the most of their natural selves. That's what makes their sweetness so appealing and what makes lugs like us idolize, protect and respect our women in general and do anything in the world to please the one in our lives who is special.

Biggest Secret of All

"Some wise woman said, 'Be pretty if you can, witty if you must, but sweet if it kills you.' That's just about the biggest secret of charm that there is, and one I'd say a whale of a lot of our girls follow, whether they've ever heard of it or not. And as long as they continue to keep it in mind, they're sure to be loved and esteemed accordingly.

"Would you mind passing along to the charmers who read your column my thanks for being the way they are?" D. J. M.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

When Joe E. Lewis is on-stage, he hates to be bothered by noisy or inattentive patrons. One night at the Copacabana, a lady with an enormous, beplumed hat and floppy feather boa sat at a ringside table and talked loudly to her companions straight through one of Joe's funniest songs. At its conclusion, Joe strode over to the offender's table, peered under her ridiculous chapeau, and announced, "Don't look now, lady, but I think you've had a head-on collision with a buzzard."

By BOB HOPE

Henry, hand me my passport.

Yes sir, our group of gypsies has been getting ready to take a little trip through the Pacific at the request of the armed forces.

Honestly, the fact that my latest picture has just been released has nothing to do with my leaving the country.

Going along are Marilyn Maxwell, Jimmy Wakely, Judy Kelly, the band, and other members of the Hi-Hatters, Les Brown and his band, and other members of the show.

We've been photographed, finger printed, processed, and inoculated and the boys in the band were happy about the whole thing. They're always ready for a few free shots.

I think the guy who gave me my shots must have been a disc jockey. He was using a life-time needle and said: "At what speed shall I spin you ... 33 or 78?"

We're very happy about going and we've been waiting on pins and needles for Jolson to give us the okay.

When we took off on the first leg of our flight I was not nervous ...but every one told me I looked very distinctive with that rabbit's foot tucked behind my left ear.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8. (INS)—The one and only Tallulah Bankhead—she of the husky voice—is receiving a caller this coming week, carrying with him a Hollywood contract for her to sign.

Tallulah Bankhead

Said visitor, Arthur Curland has already sent Tallu the script of "Biography" and she likes it and will talk business when he arrives in New York. I think you can say it's as good as settled that Tallulah will come to Hollywood to star in the motion picture version of the Broadway play.

Irving Reis has been asked to direct her, and, naturally, he's interested. It's all set for Columbia to release it.

Tallulah was a little irked over "Glass Menagerie," when at the 11th hour, the mother role was given to Gertrude Lawrence.

Joan Fontaine tells me she knows everything she is going to do—day by day—for the next two months. She goes to Honolulu tomorrow with Harry Crocker, Ann Miller, and William O'Conner on the initial trip of United Airlines, then to New York for two weeks, and then back here to start "Alice Sit by the Fire," with John Lund on November 6.

Yes, it's all set for Joan to star in the famous Barrie play, but the title comes up "Rendezvous." Don't ask me why, I don't know. But Harry Tugend who is writing the adaptation, and who was responsible for getting the play out of the files, seems to think it will bring more people into the theater.

One of Clark Gable's close friends, Billy Hickman, is in a critical condition in a local hospital as the result of a freak accident on location.

Hickman was playing a soldier who is killed in action, in "Red Badge of Courage." The final scene called for him to fall into a haystack.

As he did, a brittle piece of straw penetrated his inner ear and into the brain. He has been in a coma ever since the accident last Thursday, and grave doubts are held for his recovery.

• — • — •

Gussie Moran, tennis queen, has really gone professional with a vengeance. She recently signed with Danny Grayson, who handles Bill Boyd's successful tie-ups.

I'll bet the first thing put on the market bearing Gussie's name will be lace panties. Anyone care to take my wager?

• — • — •

Unfortunately, of late Howard Duff's dates with Ava Gardner, Ida Lupino, etc., occupy more space in the columns than his career—and it's too bad. Howard is a good actor, and has built up an enviable reputation with his Sam Spade radio show and his U. I. pictures.

Now he is to make an independent picture called "When I Grow Up" for Sam Spiegel and John Huston. Howard feels he will really grow in this, because it's the tender drama of a father and son—and not the blood and thunder yarns in which he has been appearing.

The author of "When I Grow Up" is Michael Kanin, who also makes his directorial debut in this picture.

• — • — •

Alison Skipworth, one of the great character actresses, wants me to tell the world she is very much alive. Now 87 years old, she is living in a private rest home and paying for it herself. It would be nice if some of her friends would write to her. She's at 202 Riverside Drive, New York City.

Six Hollywoodians, Cornel Wilde, Johnny Maschio, Ray Price, Dick Powell, Dennis Morgan and Dennis O'Keefe, who invested money in oil wells in Filmore, Calif., received good news. The oil came in to the tune of 174 barrels a day.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Bill Robson's marriage has gone on the rocks, and talk is the next Mrs. Robson will be Nancy Kelly, star of "Season in the Sun."

Stewart Granger is buying a house. Yes, you guessed it—it's for Jean Simmons. When they'll marry neither is saying. What happens to her English contract if she comes here to live? We'd love to have her.

From London comes word that David Farrar, who was so good in "Black Narcissus," has just undergone a serious major operation.

Judy Canova and her bridegroom, Philip Rivero, are in Apple Valley where Judy is trying to get rid of a bad cold before she checks in at Republic.

"The Medium" and "The Telephone" opening brought out many star names. Nancy Sinatra was with Bob Sterling, Rhonda Fleming with Dr. Morrill, and Patricia Medina was by her pretty self. Loren Welch, one of the cast, who formerly lived here, got a big hand from his friends in the audience.

Heck, what's a month! Abbott and Costello say their contract permitting television takes effect a whole month before Red Skelton's. They go on television in September 1951, while poor Red has to wait until October 1951.

Tuesday night Nelson Eddy opens his concert season at the Fox Theater in Santa Barbara. Amazing the way, year after year, his popularity continues. Not so amazing when you think what a personality and voice Nelson has.

Ingrid Bergman and Rossellini have bought a home overlooking the sea outside Rome. The address they will keep to themselves since so many uninvited guests have been dropping in to see Mr. and Mrs. Rossellini.

Cleo Moore, former daughter-in-law of the late Huey Long, plays the other woman in "On the Riviera" with Danny Kaye. She was formerly married to Palmer Long, Huey's son.

Yvonne De Carlo made an audition for Rodgers and Hammerstein for the Linda Darnell role in "Anna and the King of Siam" on Broadway.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND
By LAWRENCE GOULD Consulting Psychologist

Should a stepfather discipline teen-agers?

Answer: Not if it can be avoided—the most he can wisely do is to "back up" their mother. For you cannot really make a child obey you once he's old enough to go about by himself, and if he does so at all—at least, when you are not looking—it will be only because he loves and trusts you. The average adolescent longs to find someone to whom he can go for advice and will turn gladly to a person he feels has his welfare at heart, but to give him orders before you have won his confidence will only spur him to defy them.

Do men work mainly for money?

Answer: No, report industrial psychologists who have studied labor-management relations. Research uniformly shows that "job security" is more important to the average worker than high wages and that once this is achieved, what he wants next is "ego-satisfaction." Morale and efficiency are highest where the worker feels his job is regarded as important by the "higher-ups," and that his ideas will receive consideration. A demand for more pay frequently is an unconscious protest against being denied recognition as a person.

Will "will power" cure alcoholism?

Answer: No, maintains Dwight Anderson, self-styled "dry drunkard," in his comprehensive and illuminating book, "The Other Side of the Bottle." "I don't know of a single dry alcoholic who has managed it by will alone. An alcoholic must be so profoundly convinced that alcohol is harmful to him that he will automatically resist the idea of taking a drink." Until sad experience has brought him this conviction, mere determination not to drink serves mainly to keep the idea of drinking in his mind and give it "a glamour that is almost irresistible."

Are American women appreciated. Read this fan letter from a tall, dark and handsome male and you will know!

SECRETS OF CHARM
by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

NOT all the letters from male readers of this column ask me to help with some feminine foible they would particularly like to see put asunder. Many are pure paeans of praise for you as attested by the following one which I just received.

"As an advertising man, I read 'Secrets of Charm' daily. My work demands a knowledge of women's interests, and so, of course, it was no surprise to me to find that the American girl's goal is to make the most of her natural attractive self. But I am constantly amazed by the sincerity and perseverance women apply to the accomplishment—and especially by the high degree of success attained.

The Male Viewpoint

"Just before reading a recent column I had been pondering the curious American failing of seldom pausing to express appreciation of the things we cherish most. So, after reading your column, what was more natural than for me to follow up my thought with a letter to you, asking you to pass along to your readers one man's esteem?

"Back during the second world war, most people thought the boys were fighting for apple pie and the girls back home. But as one of the guys who did a lot of traveling and sat in on many a bull session during that war, I can tell you that we all thought apple pie was pretty nice — but not worth that much trouble, even a la mode.

"But the American girl — there's quite a different matter! And hot as our bull sessions got, there was always one point on which we agreed: our girls, we vowed, are in a class by themselves. Different, indispensable and wonderful!

"What's more, they always will be as long as they stick to that goal of making the most of their natural selves. That's what makes their sweetness so appealing and what makes lugs like us idolize, protect and respect our women in general and do anything in the world to please the one in our lives who is special.

Biggest Secret of All

"Some wise woman said, 'Be pretty if you can, witty if you must, but sweet if it kills you.' That's just about the biggest secret of charm that there is, and one I'd say a whale of a lot of our girls follow, whether they've ever heard of it or not. And as long as they continue to keep it in mind, they're sure to be loved and esteemed accordingly.

"Would you mind passing along to the charmers who read your column my thanks for being the way they are?" D. J. M.

Try And Stop Me

When Joe E. Lewis is on-stage, he hates to be bothered by noisy or inattentive patrons. One night at the Copacabana, a lady with an enormous, beplumed hat and floppy feather boa sat at a ringside table and talked loudly to her companions straight through one of Joe's funniest songs. At its conclusion, Joe strode over to the offender's table, peered under her ridiculous chapeau, and announced, "Don't look now, lady, but I think you've had a head-on collision with a buzzard."

Rogers and Hammerstein have announced that they will base one of their fabulous musical plays on the plot of the successful novel and motion picture, "Anna and the King of Siam." Bernie Hart says he has just the name for it: "Babes in Thailand."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Billy Rose Without Elephants

"THE Billy Rose Show" should come as no surprise to anyone who has ever read the Billy Rose column, which must comprise most of the literate population of the earth. The Rose column is even carried now by one of the largest papers in Japan and, when I haven't anything else to do, I like to sit and dream about a Japanese, cross-legged on a wooden mat in Kobe, reading about "Know-It-All-Louie," "Nick the Carp" and the other hep characters that inhabit the Rose world. What's the Japanese for "hep," anyhow?

John Crosby

The Rose show is a television dramatization of some of the stories that have appeared in his column. Most, but not all of them, center around Broadway; they are peopled by very tough and—I can't seem to avoid the word—hep characters; and invariably, while Mr. Rose rather deplores innocence, it triumphs in the end over the guilty usually through the intervention of fate which takes a pretty strong hand in many of the stories.

• — • — •

They're pretty good stories, though, and Mr. Rose is seeing to it that they are shown off at their best. He has enlisted the services as producer of Jed Harris, the farmer boy wonder, who is certainly the best man around to get the most out of the Rose yarns. "There'll be nothing spectacular," declared Mr. Rose on his opening show. "No showgirls and none of the razzmatazz and hoopla I've been mixed up with for the last twenty-five years. I'm not interested in six-inch elephants or inch and a half chorus girls. They're just little stories."

For a sixteen-inch medium, that's a wise decision. The first little story called "The Night They Made A Bum Out Of Helen Hayes"—a typical Rose title in that it probably startled a lot of people into looking at a story that had nothing to do with Helen Hayes—was about a poker game, more specifically about a single $23,000 pot. The chump in the story managed to outwit — or seemingly outwit—the hep character for the pot. But, as usual, there was the twist, Mr. Rose recognizing that chumps had best not tangle with hep characters very often if they value their skins.

It was, as Mr. Rose promised, a little story, hardly more than an anecdote, and very well suited to half an hour on television. The Harris production, completely in harmony with the littleness of the story, was one of extreme intimacy with small telling close-ups of hands and faces and cards and money — the television equivalent of the sharp, significant phrase in a short story. It also contained a vivid performance by a remarkably powerful actor named Murvyn Vye.

• — • — •

I'm afraid Mr. Rose and I disagree about the nature of table stakes poker, though. It is my understanding—and I even consulted that noted authority, John Lardner, on the subject—that a player cannot be forced out of a pot when his money runs out. He should, the way I play table stakes poker, have an equity in the pot up to the point where he covers the money. I hope these small misunderstandings don't creep into the Rose column. I'd hate to think of that Japanese out in Kobe getting into a table stakes poker game with the understanding that he can steal a pot simply by being richer than his opponent. The G.I.'s would never let him out alive.

Mr. Rose appears both at the beginning of his little stories and at the end, seated at a table at Lindy's. (I rather wish he'd pick another spot. Lindy's belongs pretty thoroughly to the late Damon Runyon.) Anyhow, the tale this week (ABC-TV 9 p. m. EST) will be "The Night Billy Rose Should Have Stood In Bed" with Burgess Meredith, whom Mr. Rose described as "the classiest bit of actor on Broadway." That's as good a sample as any of the Rose style.

• — • — •

One last not concerning another of Mr. Rose's far-flung activities. "The Canary Pet Show," a fifteen minute program of songs warbled by the Master Radio Canaries, returned to WOR for its fifteenth season yesterday. One of the songs they warbled on the opening program was "I Wanna Be Loved" which was written by Mr. Rose and contains one of the most passionate lyrics to be heard on the local jukeboxes. Frankly, Mr. R., I don't think that lyric—("I wanna be loved to desperation . . .")—is a fit thing for decent young canaries to be singing. I'm going to complain to the A.S.P.C.A.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

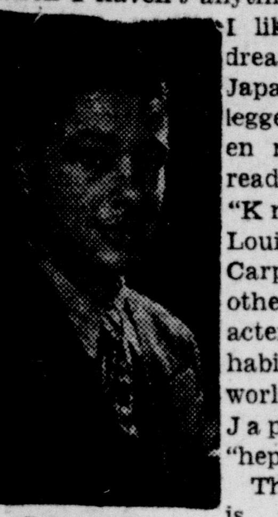
Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Billy Rose Without Elephants

"THE Billy Rose Show" should come as no surprise to anyone who has ever read the Billy Rose column, which must comprise most of the literate population of the earth. The Rose column is even carried now by one of the largest papers in Japan and, when I haven't anything else to do, I like to sit and dream about a Japanese, cross-legged on a wooden mat in Kobe, reading about "Know-It-All-Louie," "Nick the Carp" and the other hep characters that inhabit the Rose world. What's the Japanese for "hep," anyhow?



John Crosby

The Rose show is a television dramatization of some of the stories that have appeared in his column. Most, but not all of them, center around Broadway; they are peopled by very tough and—I can't seem to avoid the word—hep characters; and invariably, while Mr. Rose rather deplores innocence, it triumphs in the end over the guilty usually through the intervention of fate which takes a pretty strong hand in many of the stories.

• — • — •

They're pretty good stories, though, and Mr. Rose is seeing to it that they are shown off at their best. He has enlisted the services as producer of Jed Harris, the farmer boy wonder, who is certainly the best man around to get the most out of the Rose yarns. "There'll be nothing spectacular," declared Mr. Rose on his opening show. "No showgirls and none of the razzmatazz and hoopla I've been mixed up with for the last twenty-five years. I'm not interested in six-inch elephants or inch and a half chorus girls. They're just little stories."

For a sixteen-inch medium, that's a wise decision. The first little story called "The Night They Made A Bum Out Of Helen Hayes"—a typical Rose title in that it probably startled a lot of people into looking at a story that had nothing to do with Helen Hayes—was about a poker game, more specifically about a single $23,000 pot. The chump in the story managed to outwit — or seemingly outwit—the hep character for the pot. But, as usual, there was the twist, Mr. Rose recognizing that chumps had best not tangle with hep characters very often if they value their skins.

It was, as Mr. Rose promised, a little story, hardly more than an anecdote, and very well suited to half an hour on television. The Harris production, completely in harmony with the littleness of the story, was one of extreme intimacy with small telling close-ups of hands and faces and cards and money — the television equivalent of the sharp, significant phrase in a short story. It also contained a vivid performance by a remarkably powerful actor named Murvyn Vye.

• — • — •

I'm afraid Mr. Rose and I disagree about the nature of table stakes poker, though. It is my understanding—and I even consulted that noted authority, John Lardner, on the subject—that a player cannot be forced out of a pot when his money runs out. He should, the way I play table stakes poker, have an equity in the pot up to the point where he covers the money. I hope these small misunderstandings don't creep into the Rose column. I'd hate to think of that Japanese out in Kobe getting into a table stakes poker game with the understanding that he can steal a pot simply by being richer than his opponent. The G.I.'s would never let him out alive.

Mr. Rose appears both at the beginning of his little stories and at the end, seated at a table at Lindy's. (I rather wish he'd pick another spot. Lindy's belongs pretty thoroughly to the late Damon Runyon.) Anyhow, the tale this week (ABC-TV 9 p. m. EST) will be "The Night Billy Rose Should Have Stood In Bed" with Burgess Meredith, whom Mr. Rose described as "the classiest bit of actor on Broadway." That's as good a sample as any of the Rose style.

• — • — •

One last not concerning another of Mr. Rose's far-flung activities. "The Canary Pet Show," a fifteen minute program of songs warbled by the Master Radio Canaries, returned to WOR for its fifteenth season yesterday. One of the songs they warbled on the opening program was "I Wanna Be Loved" which was written by Mr. Rose and contains one of the most passionate lyrics to be heard on the local jukeboxes. Frankly, Mr. R., I don't think that lyric—("I wanna be loved to desperation . . .")—is a fit thing for decent young canaries to be singing. I'm going to complain to the A.S.P.C.A.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

QAUCHH FDC SCHHCU WH YUCNA,
PDNFCSCK ZXQ VXQK WAFX WF
FQKAH HXQK—DXKNYC.

Saturday's Cryptoquote—BUT HE THAT FILCHES FROM ME MY GOOD NAME, ROBS ME OF THAT WHICH NOT ENRICHES HIM—SHAKESPEARE.

BEGINNING: "DETOUR OF DOUBT."
ONE FINAL PAUSE FOR A GOOD-BYE LOOK AT OLD LOW LAKE, BEFORE THE ROAD TURNS. HOW PEACEFUL IT SLUMBERS... KNOWING IN THE MORNING IT WILL ARISE GARBED IN THE GAY ATTIRE OF RICH AUTUMN COLORS.
ONE FEELS LIKE A SISSY ENJOYING THE NORTH COUNTRY IN ITS PRIME... THEN RUNNING BACK TO CITY COMFORTS AS IT IS ABOUT TO DON WINTER UNDERWEAR.
HOPE SOME DAY TO RATE AN 'A' ON MY REPORT CARD HELPING THE OLD LAKE WRESTLE OUT WINTER'S ZEROS. OOPS! HERE'S THE TURN SOUTH!

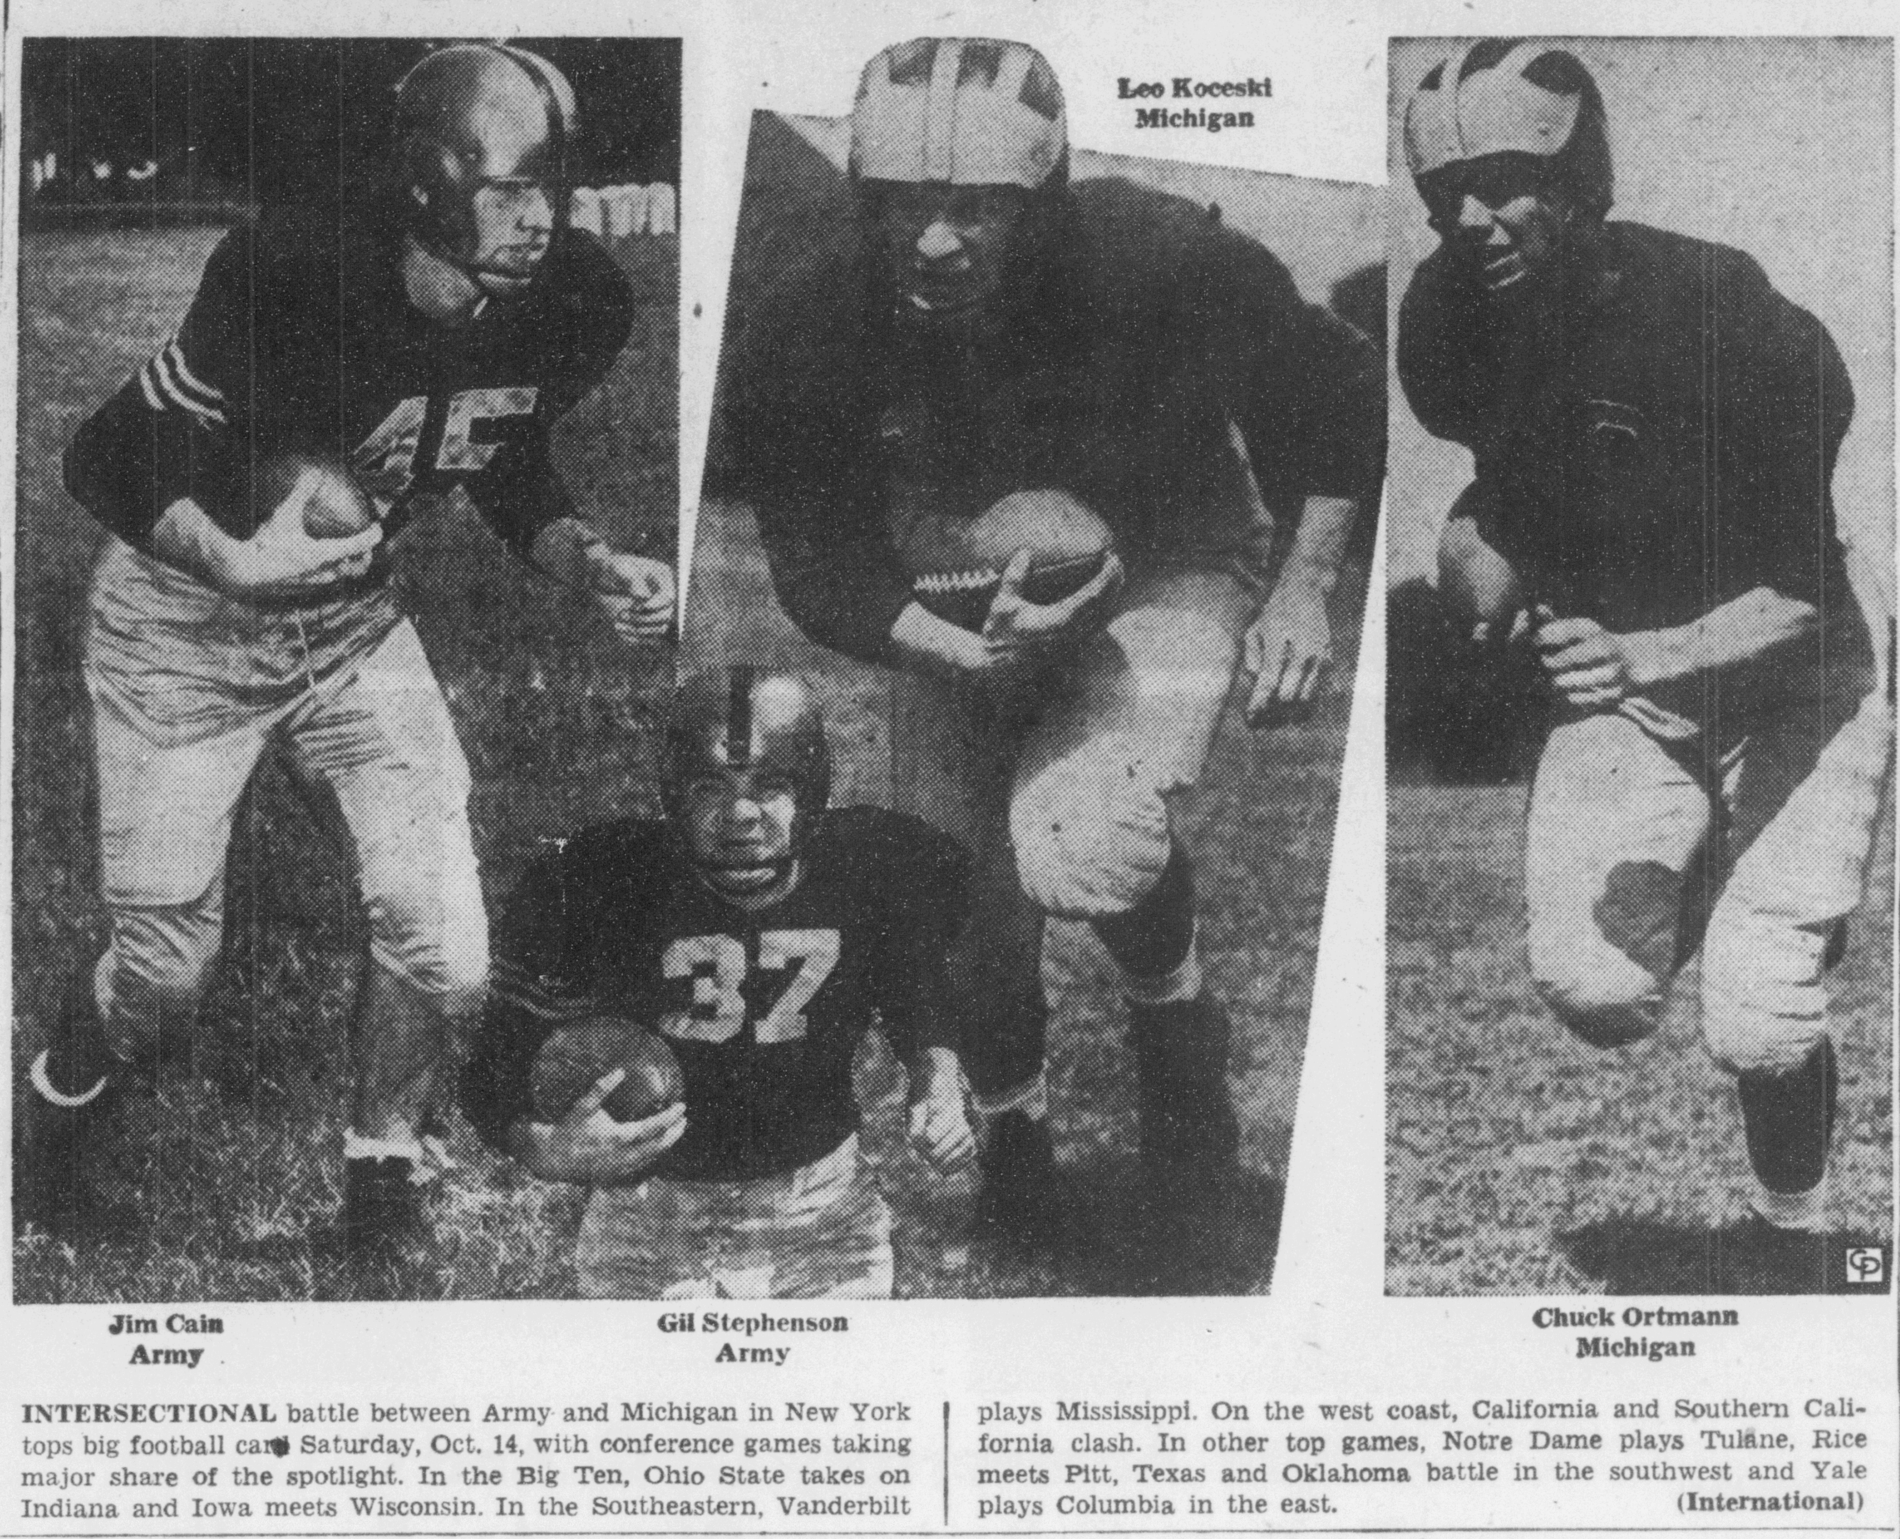
Army-Michigan Game Tops Big Grid Slate For Saturday



Leo Koceski Michigan

Jim Cain Army

Gil Stephenson Army

Chuck Ortmann Michigan

INTERSECTIONAL battle between Army and Michigan in New York tops big football card Saturday, Oct. 14, with conference games taking major share of the spotlight. In the Big Ten, Ohio State takes on Indiana and Iowa meets Wisconsin. In the Southeastern, Vanderbilt plays Mississippi. On the west coast, California and Southern California clash. In other top games, Notre Dame plays Tulane, Rice meets Pitt, Texas and Oklahoma battle in the southwest and Yale plays Columbia in the east. (International)

Deaths

Willison, LaJolla, Calif.; two granddaughters, Virginia and Elizabeth Miller, Alexandria, and two sisters, Mrs. Belle Robinette, Flintstone, and Mrs. Ida Burch, Roanoke, Va.

The body will be taken to Oakland for a service today at 2 p. m. in St. Matthew's Church. Rev. Frederick F. Myers, rector, will officiate and burial will be in Episcopal Cemetery there.

MRS. FIRLIE RITES

A service was held Saturday at the Stein Funeral Home for Mrs. Willie Marie Firlie, 61, Paw Paw, W. Va., formerly of this city, who died Thursday in Memorial Hospital. Rev. O. M. Raines, pastor of Paw Paw Methodist Church, officiated and burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Henry Miller, Vernon Hoover, Dayton Lee, Raymond Gordon, Edward Noland and Albert Simmons.

MRS. NELLIE ANDERSON

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Mrs. Nellie Jane Anderson, 59, wife of Frank C. Anderson, died yesterday about noon at her home, 30 East Fairview Street, Piedmont. She had been in failing health for some time and bedfast for two weeks.

She was born in Keyser, W. Va., August 16, 1891, a daughter of the late Donaldson and Laura Walters Rice.

She was a member of First Methodist Church, Mt. Olive Rebekah Lodge No. 31; Alkire Camp No. 10, OES; Ladies Auxiliary of Lodge No. 410, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; the Auxiliary of Canton Mary Ervin, IOOF, all of Keyser, and the Mineral Council of Homemakers Clubs.

Surviving are her husband; one son, Walter F. Anderson, Cresaptown; three sisters, Mrs. Birdie Hixenbaugh and Misses Maud and Annie Rice, all of McCoole; one brother, Raymond Rice, Keyser, and two grandchildren.

The body is at the Rice home in McCoole, where a funeral service will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. L. A. Steele, First Methodist Church, Keyser, and Rev. O. C. Mitchell, Trinity Church, Piedmont, will officiate. Burial will be in Queen's Point Cemetery, Keyser.

This is to give notice that an audit filed in the above entitled cause, distributing the funds in the hands of Edna Mary Feight, Committee, will be ready for ratification on the 17th day of October, 1950, unless cause to the contrary be shown.

JOSEPH E. BODEN
Clerk

Adv.—N-Oct. 7-9

Sheriff's Sale of Valuable Personal Property in Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, on Thursday, October 19, 1950, at 10:30 o'clock A. M.

Under and by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, at the suit of Walter A. Johnson vs. The Hawkinson Tread Service, Incorporated, of Winchester, Virginia, a non-resident corporation, the same being No. 3 Judicials, October Term, 1950, I, the undersigned Sheriff of Allegany County, Maryland, have levied upon, seized and taken in execution, all the right, title and interest of the said The Hawkinson Tread Service, Incorporated, of Winchester, Virginia, in the hereinafter mentioned articles of personal property which will be offered for sale on the above date and hour, at No. 319 South Centre Street, Cumberland, Maryland, where said articles are now stored, to wit:

One Air Compressor, nearly new
One Tire Spreader for tire repairing
One Oil Storage Tank
One large Tire Section Mold
One small Tire Section Mold
One Tire Balancer table and fittings
Lot of tire tools, wrenches, etc.
One Hydraulic Jack and one Hand Jack
One Electric Buffing Machine used for section work
One lot of pipe, fittings, electrical cables, etc.
One lot of rough lumber and plywood, etc.
One electric crane with track and fittings

(The property above mentioned and to be offered for sale is the property of a non-resident corporation and does not pertain in any manner to any local business operated under any similar or like name.)

I hereby give notice that on the above date and hour, at the above mentioned place in the City of Cumberland, Maryland, to satisfy the judgement in the above mentioned case, together with the costs thereon, I will sell to the highest bidder, for cash, all of the above described personal property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the judgment and costs.

The articles above will be first offered separately, and should the bids be insufficient to satisfy the claim and costs, bids will be reserved, and articles will then be offered in bulk, and sold in the manner realizing the larger amount.

EDWARD R. MUIR
Sheriff of Allegany County

Conservation Week

America and Homemakers Night is to be directed by Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent. Exhibits will be a feature.

Parade Saturday

Saturday's parade, Hitchcock said, will be predominantly firemen and farmers and include a number of floats and musical organizations. Local industries have contributed prizes which will be distributed equitably among those participating in the parade, Hitchcock said.

Mayor Thomas S. Post is expected to issue a proclamation today naming this "Cumberland Conservation Chautauqua." Hitchcock said it is hoped to make it an annual affair.

Among speakers expected here this week are George Williams, Romney, W. Va., attorney, who will speak on "The Savage River Dam's Portent to Soil Conservation"; and T. Alfred Fleming retired head of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, who will speak on fire prevention.

Beginning today, films will be distributed and shown at schools. The films are "A Word To The Wise," a fire prevention picture, and "My Country," a film on soil conservation.

The films will be shown at Gephart, Centre Street, SS Peter and Paul, Ursuline and John Humbird today; Mt. Royal, West Side, Johnson Heights, Columbia Street on Tuesday; Virginia Avenue and East Side Wednesday; Penn Avenue and St. Mary's Thursday, and Carver, LaSalle and St. Patrick's on Friday.

An electric wall outlet designed to protect children against shocks and burns has caps that rotate automatically to cover sockets not in use.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND DIRECTING THE PUBLICATION OF BILLS PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE.

WHEREAS, at its regular session of 1949, the General Assembly enacted Chapters 226, 407 and 714 proposing amendments to the State Constitution; and

WHEREAS, at its regular session of 1950, the General Assembly enacted Chapters 14 and 56 proposing amendments to the State Constitution; and

WHEREAS, it is the duty of the Governor under Section 1 of Article XIV of the Constitution, to order the publication of the bills proposing said amendments in advance of the General Election of November 7, 1950; and

WHEREAS, there will be presented on the ballot at said election the following proposed amendments to the Constitution, for adoption or rejection by the voters:

CHAPTER NO. 226

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 5 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the State Constitution, relating to the membership of the House of Delegates and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring). That the following section be, and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 5 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of Maryland, the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 5 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland:

SEC. 5. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 4 of this Article, the membership of the House of Delegates shall consist of one hundred and twenty-three (123) Delegates, apportioned as follows: Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's, and St. Mary's Counties, two Delegates each; Cecil, Garrett, Somerset, Talbot, and Worcester Counties, three Delegates each; Carroll, Dorchester, Harford, and Wicomico Counties, four Delegates each; Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Frederick, Montgomery, Prince George's, and Washington Counties, and each of the six legislative districts of Baltimore City, six Delegates each.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 407

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 5 of Article 15 of the State Constitution, title "Miscellaneous," providing that the Jury shall be the Judges of Law as well as of the fact in the trial of all criminal cases, except that the Court may pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a conviction.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all of the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring). That Section 5 of Article 15 of the State Constitution, title "Miscellaneous," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, to read as follows:

SEC. 5. In the trial of all criminal cases, the Jury shall be the Judges of Law, as well as of fact, except that the Court may pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a conviction.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 714

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Executive Department," relating to the reconsideration of Bills which are vetoed or which fail by reason of not being signed following the adjournment of the General Assembly.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Executive Department," the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

17. To guard against hasty or partial legislation and encroachments of the Legislative Department upon the coordinate Executive and Judicial Departments, every Bill which shall have passed the House of Delegates, and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor of the State; if he approves he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it with his objections to the House in which it originated, which House shall enter the objections at large on its Journal and proceed to reconsider the Bill; if, after such reconsideration, three-fifths of the members elected to that House shall pass the Bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if it pass by three-fifths of the members elected to that House it shall become a law; but in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the Governor within six days (Sundays excepted), after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he signed it, unless the General Assembly shall, by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Any bill which is vetoed by the Governor following the adjournment of the General Assembly, or any bill which fails to become a law by reason of not having been signed by the Governor following the adjournment of the General Assembly, shall be returned to the House in which it originated, immediately after said House shall have organized at the next regular or special session of the General Assembly. Said bill may then be reconsidered according to the procedure specified hereinabove. If the bill is passed over the veto of the Governor, it shall take effect on June 1 following, unless the bill is an emergency measure to take effect when passed.

The Governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any Bills making appropriations of money embracing distinct items, and the part or parts of the Bill approved shall be the law, and the item or items of appropriations disapproved shall be void unless repassed according to the rules or limitations prescribed for the passage of other Bills over the Executive veto.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the next general election to be held in November, 1950, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against the said proposed amendment, as directed by said Fourteenth Article of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article.

CHAPTER NO. 14

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 38 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," providing that a decree for payment of support for wife or children, or for alimony, shall not constitute a debt within the meaning of said section, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 38 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of Maryland, the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 38 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland:

38. No person shall be imprisoned for debt, but a valid decree of a court of competent jurisdiction OR AGREEMENT APPROVED BY DECREE OF SAID COURT for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony, shall not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election, to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 56

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Treasury Department," relating to the signing of state bonds, certificates or other evidences of indebtedness, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Treasury Department," the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland:

SEC. 3. The Treasurer shall receive the moneys of the State, and, until otherwise prescribed by law, deposit them, as soon as received to the credit of the State, in such bank or banks as he may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor, select (the said bank or banks giving security, satisfactory to the Governor, for the safekeeping and forthcoming, when required of said deposits), and he or such of his deputies as may be authorized to do so by the Legislature shall disburse the same for the purposes of the State according to law, upon warrants drawn by the Comptroller, or his duly authorized deputy, and on checks countersigned by the Comptroller, or his duly authorized deputy, and not otherwise. The Treasurer or such of his deputies as may be authorized to do so by the Legislalature shall take receipts for all moneys paid from the Treasury Department; and receipt for moneys received by him shall be endorsed upon warrants signed by the Comptroller, or such deputy as may be authorized to do so by law, without which warrants, so signed, no acknowledgement of money received into the Treasury shall be valid; and upon warrants issued by the Comptroller, or his duly authorized deputy, the Treasurer shall make arrangements for the payment of the interest of the public debt, and for the purchase thereof, on account of the sinking fund. Every bond, certificate, or other evidence of the debt of the State shall be signed by the Treasurer or Chief Deputy Treasurer, and countersigned by the Comptroller or Chief Deputy Comptroller; and no new certificate or other evidence intended to replace another shall be issued until the old one shall be delivered to the Treasurer, and authority executed in due form for the transfer of the same filed in his office, and the transfer accordingly made on the books thereof; and the certificate or other evidence cancelled; but the Legislature may make provisions for the loss of certificates, or other evidences of the debt; and may prescribe, by law, the manner in which the Treasurer shall receive and keep the moneys of the State.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the nex general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof, for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed, amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, WM. PRESTON LANE, JR. GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon me by the Constitution of Maryland, do by this, my proclamation, order that the bills proposing the aforegoing amendments shall be published in at least two newspapers in each County where so many may be published, and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the General Election to be held on November 7, 1950, at which Election the proposed amendments shall be submitted, in the form prescribed by the General Assembly, to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

GIVEN Under my Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, this 19th day of September in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty.

INTERSECTIONAL battle between Army and Michigan in New York tops big football card Saturday, Oct. 14, with conference games taking major share of the spotlight. In the Big Ten, Ohio State takes on Indiana and Iowa meets Wisconsin. In the Southeastern, Vanderbilt plays Mississippi. On the west coast, California and Southern California clash. In other top games, Notre Dame plays Tulane, Rice meets Pitt, Texas and Oklahoma battle in the southwest and Yale plays Columbia in the east. (International)

Deaths

Willison, LaJolla, Calif.; two granddaughters, Virginia and Elizabeth Miller, Alexandria, and two sisters, Mrs. Belle Robinette, Flintstone, and Mrs. Ida Burch, Roanoke, Va.

The body will be taken to Oakland for a service today at 2 p. m. in St. Matthew's Church. Rev. Frederick F. Myers, rector, will officiate and burial will be in Episcopal Cemetery there.

MRS. FIRLIE RITES

A service was held Saturday at the Stein Funeral Home for Mrs. Willie Marie Firlie, 61, Paw Paw, W. Va., formerly of this city, who died Thursday in Memorial Hospital. Rev. O. M. Raines, pastor of Paw Paw Methodist Church, officiated and burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Henry Miller, Vernon Hoover, Dayton Lee, Raymond Gordon, Edward Noland and Albert Simmons.

MRS. NELLIE ANDERSON

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Mrs. Nellie Jane Anderson, 59, wife of Frank C. Anderson, died yesterday about noon at her home, 30 East Fairview Street, Piedmont. She had been in failing health for some time and bedfast for two weeks.

She was born in Keyser, W. Va., August 16, 1891, a daughter of the late Donaldson and Laura Walters Rice.

She was a member of First Methodist Church, Mt. Olive Rebekah Lodge No. 31; Alkire Camp No. 10, OES; Ladies Auxiliary of Lodge No. 410, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; the Auxiliary of Canton Mary Ervin, IOOF, all of Keyser, and the Mineral Council of Homemakers Clubs.

Surviving are her husband; one son, Walter F. Anderson, Cresaptown; three sisters, Mrs. Birdie Hixenbaugh and Misses Maud and Annie Rice, all of McCoole; one brother, Raymond Rice, Keyser, and two grandchildren.

The body is at the Rice home in McCoole, where a funeral service will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. L. A. Steele, First Methodist Church, Keyser, and Rev. O. C. Mitchell, Trinity Church, Piedmont, will officiate. Burial will be in Queen's Point Cemetery, Keyser.

NOTICE OF AUDIT

In the Matter of the appointment of a committee of the person and property of James W. Feight. No. 20,120 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland. Cumberland, Maryland, Sept. 29, 1950.

This is to give notice that an audit filed in the above entitled cause, distributing the funds in the hands of Edna Mary Feight, Committee, will be ready for ratification on the 17th day of October, 1950, unless cause to the contrary be shown.

JOSEPH E. BODEN
Clerk

Adv.—N-Oct. 7-9

Sheriff's Sale of Valuable Personal Property in Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, on Thursday, October 19, 1950, at 10:30 o'clock A. M.

Under and by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, at the suit of Walter A. Johnson vs. The Hawkinson Tread Service, Incorporated, of Winchester, Virginia, a non-resident corporation, the same being No. 3 Judicials, October Term, 1950, I, the undersigned Sheriff of Allegany County, Maryland, have levied upon, seized and taken in execution, all the right, title and interest of the said The Hawkinson Tread Service, Incorporated, of Winchester, Virginia, in the hereinafter mentioned articles of personal property which will be offered for sale on the above date and hour, at No. 319 South Centre Street, Cumberland, Maryland, where said articles are now stored, to wit:

One Air Compressor, nearly new
One Tire Spreader for tire repairing
One Oil Storage Tank
One large Tire Section Mold
One small Tire Section Mold
One Tire Balancer table and fittings
Lot of tire tools, wrenches, etc.
One Hydraulic Jack and one Hand Jack
One Electric Buffing Machine used for section work
One lot of pipe, fittings, electrical cables, etc.
One lot of rough lumber and plywood, etc.
One electric crane with track and fittings

(The property above mentioned and to be offered for sale is the property of a non-resident corporation and does not pertain in any manner to any local business operated under any similar or like name.)

I hereby give notice that on the above date and hour, at the above mentioned place in the City of Cumberland, Maryland, to satisfy the judgement in the above mentioned case, together with the costs thereon, I will sell to the highest bidder, for cash, all of the above described personal property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the judgment and costs.

The articles above will be first offered separately, and should the bids be insufficient to satisfy the claim and costs, bids will be reserved, and articles will then be offered in bulk, and sold in the manner realizing the larger amount.

EDWARD R. MUIR
Sheriff of Allegany County

Adv.—N-Oct. 9-18

Conservation Week

America and Homemakers Night is to be directed by Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent. Exhibits will be a feature.

Parade Saturday

Saturday's parade, Hitchcock said, will be predominantly firemen and farmers and include a number of floats and musical organizations. Local industries have contributed prizes which will be distributed equitably among those participating in the parade, Hitchcock said.

Mayor Thomas S. Post is expected to issue a proclamation today naming this "Cumberland Conservation Chautauqua." Hitchcock said it is hoped to make it an annual affair.

Among speakers expected here this week are George Williams, Romney, W. Va., attorney, who will speak on "The Savage River Dam's Portent to Soil Conservation"; and T. Alfred Fleming retired head of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, who will speak on fire prevention.

Beginning today, films will be distributed and shown at schools. The films are "A Word To The Wise," a fire prevention picture, and "My Country," a film on soil conservation.

The films will be shown at Gephart, Centre Street, SS Peter and Paul, Ursuline and John Humbird today; Mt. Royal, West Side, Johnson Heights, Columbia Street on Tuesday; Virginia Avenue and East Side Wednesday; Penn Avenue and St. Mary's Thursday, and Carver, LaSalle and St. Patrick's on Friday.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND DIRECTING THE PUBLICATION OF BILLS PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE.

WHEREAS, at its regular session of 1949, the General Assembly enacted Chapters 226, 407 and 714 proposing amendments to the State Constitution; and

WHEREAS, at its regular session of 1950, the General Assembly enacted Chapters 14 and 56 proposing amendments to the State Constitution; and

WHEREAS, it is the duty of the Governor under Section 1 of Article XIV of the Constitution, to order the publication of the bills proposing said amendments in advance of the General Election of November 7, 1950; and

WHEREAS, there will be presented on the ballot at said election the following proposed amendments to the Constitution, for adoption or rejection by the voters:

CHAPTER NO. 226

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 5 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the State Constitution, relating to the membership of the House of Delegates and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring). That the following section be, and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 5 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of Maryland, the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 5 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland:

SEC. 5. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 4 of this Article, the membership of the House of Delegates shall consist of one hundred and twenty-three (123) Delegates, apportioned as follows: Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's, and St. Mary's Counties, two Delegates each; Cecil, Garrett, Somerset, Talbot, and Worcester Counties, three Delegates each; Carroll, Dorchester, Harford, and Wicomico Counties, four Delegates each; Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Frederick, Montgomery, Prince George's, and Washington Counties, and each of the six legislative districts of Baltimore City, six Delegates each.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 407

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 5 of Article 15 of the State Constitution, title "Miscellaneous," providing that the Jury shall be the Judges of Law as well as of the fact in the trial of all criminal cases, except that the Court may pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a conviction.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all of the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring). That Section 5 of Article 15 of the State Constitution, title "Miscellaneous," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, to read as follows:

SEC. 5. In the trial of all criminal cases, the Jury shall be the Judges of Law, as well as of fact, except that the Court may pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a conviction.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 714

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Executive Department," relating to the reconsideration of Bills which are vetoed or which fail by reason of not being signed following the adjournment of the General Assembly.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Executive Department," the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 17 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

17. To guard against hasty or partial legislation and encroachments of the Legislative Department upon the coordinate Executive and Judicial Departments, every Bill which shall have passed the House of Delegates, and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor of the State; if he approves he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it with his objections to the House in which it originated, which House shall enter the objections at large on its Journal and proceed to reconsider the Bill; if, after such reconsideration, three-fifths of the members elected to that House shall pass the Bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if it pass by three-fifths of the members elected to that House it shall become a law; but in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the Governor within six days (Sundays excepted), after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he signed it, unless the General Assembly shall, by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Any bill which is vetoed by the Governor following the adjournment of the General Assembly, or any bill which fails to become a law by reason of not having been signed by the Governor following the adjournment of the General Assembly, shall be returned to the House in which it originated, immediately after said House shall have organized at the next regular or special session of the General Assembly. Said bill may then be reconsidered according to the procedure specified hereinabove. If the bill is passed over the veto of the Governor, it shall take effect on June 1 following, unless the bill is an emergency measure to take effect when passed.

The Governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any Bills making appropriations of money embracing distinct items, and the part or parts of the Bill approved shall be the law, and the item or items of appropriations disapproved shall be void unless repassed according to the rules or limitations prescribed for the passage of other Bills over the Executive veto.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the next general election to be held in November, 1950, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against the said proposed amendment, as directed by said Fourteenth Article of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article.

CHAPTER NO. 14

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 38 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," providing that a decree for payment of support for wife or children, or for alimony, shall not constitute a debt within the meaning of said section, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 38 of Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of Maryland, the same, if adopted y the legal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 38 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland:

38. No person shall be imprisoned for debt, but a valid decree of a court of competent jurisdiction OR AGREEMENT APPROVED BY DECREE OF SAID COURT for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony, shall not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That he aforegoing section hereby proposed as n amendment to the Constitution of this tate shall be, at the next general election, o be held in this State in the year 1950, ubmitted to the legal and qualified voters herof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote n he said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

CHAPTER NO. 56

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Treasury Department," relating to the signing of state bonds, certificates or other evidences of indebtedness, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Treasury Department," the same, if adopted by the egal and qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 3 of Article 6 of the Constitution of Maryland:

SEC. 3. The Treasurer shall receive the moneys of the State, and, until otherwise rescribed by law, deposit them, as soon s received to the credit of the State, in uch bank or banks as he may, from time o time, with the approval of the Governor, select (the said bank or banks giving security, satisfactory to the Governor, for the safekeeping and forthcoming, when required of said deposits), and he or uch of his deputies as may be authorized o do so by the Legislature shall disburse he same for the purposes of the State ccording to law, upon warrants drawn y the Comptroller, or his duly authorized deputy, and on checks countersigned y the Comptroller, or his duly authorized leputy, and not otherwise. The Treasurer r such of his deputies as may be authorized to do so by the Legislalature shall ake receipts for all moneys paid from he Treasury Department; and receipt or moneys received by him shall be endorsed upon warrants signed by the Comptroller, or such deputy as may be uthorized to do so by law, without which warrants, so signed, no acknowledgement of money received into the Treasury shall be valid; and upon warrants issued by the Comptroller, or his duly authorized deputy, the Treasurer shall make arrangements for the payment of the interest of the public debt, and for the purchase thereof, on account of the sinking fund. Every bond, certificate, or other evidence of the debt of the State shall be signed by the Treasurer or Chief Deputy Treasurer, and countersigned by the Comptroller or Chief Deputy Comptroller; and no new certificate or other evidence intended to replace another shall be issued until the old one shall be delivered to the Treasurer, and authority executed in due form for the transfer of the same filed in his office, and the transfer accordingly made on the books thereof, and the certificate or other evidence cancelled; but the Legislature may make provisions for the loss of certificates, or other evidences of the debt; and may prescribe, by law, the manner in which the Treasurer shall eceive and keep the moneys of the State.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That he aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the nex general election to be held in this State in the year 1950, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof, for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, WM. PRESTON LANE, JR. GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon me by the Constitution of Maryland, do by this, my proclamation, order that the bills proposing the aforegoing amendments shall be published in at least two newspapers in each County where so many may be published, and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the General Election to be held on November 7, 1950, at which Election the proposed amendments shall be submitted, in the form prescribed by the General Assembly, to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

GIVEN Under my Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, this 19th day of September in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty.

Social Security To Cover 4,888 More Next Year

2,188 Beneficiaries Listed In Allegany

Another 4,800 persons will be covered by Social Security in Allegany County next year due to the extension of coverage to self-employed, domestics, farm workers and employes of charitable and governmental agencies.

James S. Getty, manager of the Cumberland area Social Security office, said there were about 25,500 persons in this county who were covered prior to the passage of amendments to the law on August 28, 1950.

The estimated Social Security beneficiaries in Allegany County are:

Retired workers, 854, who prior to the changes received $21,508 each month.

Wives of retired workers, who numbered 285, received another $3,750 monthly.

Another $8,036 was paid to 394 widows who were over 65 years old.

Some 641 children under 18 received $8,715.

Another 14 dependent parents received $230 each month.

The 2,188 beneficiaries, in August, received monthly checks totaling $42,339.

Each of the beneficiaries received a substantially larger insurance check this month.

Increases ranged from 100 per cent for those who were receiving the lowest amounts under the old law, to about 60 per cent for those in the highest brackets.

In the seven-county area, 3,188 beneficiaries received about $60,000.

Getty estimated that September payments for the area, which were mailed early this month will total about $109,000.

Getty said it is impossible to determine the number of persons eligible in this county since applications are being received each day.

He added that any worker who is 65 or over now needs only six quarters of coverage to be eligible for benefits subsequent to August 31, and added the worker can count all of his quarters since January 1, 1937, in determining if he has at least six.

McKeldin Hits Lane Deception

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP) — Theodore R. McKeldin has tabbed Governor Lane a "master in the art of deception."

The GOP candidate for the governor's chair said in a radio speech last night Lane's right to the title rests on three pillars:

1. "By telling county people and city people they are both getting more from the state treasury than they pay in — an obvious mathematical impossibility."

2. "By slandering Gov. O'Conor's state treasury, when the fact is that the financial condition of the state was infinitely better four years ago than it is today."

3. "By his unfounded assertion that he had to have the sales tax because of Baltimore City's financial condition, when the truth is that Baltimore never enjoyed a sounder and more stable financial standing than it did when I ended my term as mayor.

"Imagine a high official descending to such utter irresponsibility."

Then McKeldin jabbed at an obviously sore spot with the Lane camp.

"The explanation," McKeldin said, "is to be found in the governor's own sense of impending defeat, foreshadowed by the vote last month in which a majority in his own party renounced and rejected him."

Lane won the Democratic renomination in the convention vote count over George P. Mahoney, but Mahoney got the majority of the popular vote.

Celanese To Get Industry "Oscar"

Celanese Corporation of America has won the bronze "Oscar of Industry" award for the best annual report of the rayon industry in the 1949 survey conducted by the Financial World. This is the third time that Celanese has received this recognition in the ten years that the international competition has been held.

The trophy, signalizing the honor, will be presented to the company at the annual awards banquet at the Hotel Statler, October 30. More than 1,200 business and financial executives from the United States and Canada will attend.

Births Announced

Memorial Hospital announced the following births yesterday:

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bowman, Flintstone, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Beeman, Grantsville, a son, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, 764 Cleveland Avenue, a son, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lantz, Wiley Ford, W. Va., a son, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, Hyndman, Pa., a daughter, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Self, 554 Pine Avenue, a daughter, yesterday.

Allegany Hospital announced the following births yesterday:

Conservation Week To Begin Here Today

Constitution Park Scene Of Exhibits

Land conservation and fire prevention demonstrations and exhibits will mark the week-long observance of Cumberland's Conservation Chautauqua which gets underway here today and ends Saturday with a parade.

The featuring events, which will be presented at Constitution Park each night along with a series of motion pictures on the subjects, will be open to the public free of charge, according to George M. Hitchcock, general chairman. Today, "open house" will be held at six farms in the county. Twelve community meetings are scheduled too, most of them tonight.

Hundreds of persons are expected to participate in the week-long observance planned to make the general public more conscious of the necessity of conservation of land and nature.

The nightly events will get underway at the park at 6 p. m. with the parade, which will feature several firemen's organizations and musical groups set for 7 p. m. Saturday.

Farmers Night

Tonight is featured as "Farmer's Night" at the park and the remainder of the week's schedule looks like this:

Tuesday — Police and Wildlife Night. Police safety measures will be stressed. A display of animals native to Western Maryland has been set up in the recreation building. Each night of the observance movies will be shown in the amphitheatre, weather permitting.

Wednesday — Conservation Day. Talks on fire prevention and conservation will feature the day in the amphitheatre. The ball park will be artificially lighted for a tractor-driving contest.

Thursday — Volunteer Firemen's Night. Some 28 volunteer fire companies will participate in fire demonstrations under the lights on the ball diamond. The demonstrations have been sanctioned by the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Friday—4-H, Future Farmers of

Weather

A pelting rain—1.57 inches of it—beat down on Cumberland most of yesterday as the mercury fluctuated between a 62 for low and a 64 for high in the downtown area. The city's official reading set the day's high temperature at 60 degrees and gave an overnight low of 57 degrees. At 10 p. m. the official reading was back at 57. For today the weatherman predicted more of the same with a "cloudy and scattered showers" report.

HIGHEST TEMPERATURE READINGS

Trade School Course Opens

Ten Allegany County trade school instructors began Saturday a 30-week University of Maryland-sponsored extension course that will eventually lead to their certification for county teaching.

The classes, which will be conducted each Saturday from 9 a. m. to noon, are being conducted in Hancock High School with A. C. Roth, Hagerstown, presenting the first subject—teaching methods.

J. D. Lonnholm, supervisor of vocational education in the county, said the classes are being sponsored for the benefit of instructors in Allegany and Washington Counties.

Under the present set-up vocational teachers for the most part are authorized as instructors through the Veteran's Administration which is overseeing the GI education program. Once the GI program ends instructors will then need certification to continue teaching under the Board of Education.

Lonnholm said classes will continue for the next 30 weeks and will include such subjects as "trade and occupational analysis," "course content," "development of training aids" and "teaching methods."

Pastor Is Transferred

The transfer of Rt. Rev. Henry F. Graebenstein, pastor of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Washington, to St. Anthony's Church, Brookland, was announced over the weekend in pastoral appointments of the Archdiocese of Washington. Msgr. Graebenstein is a native of this city.

Chest Drive On Railroads Requires Timing, Teamwork

Company Community Chest campaigns are varied in the manner of operation but none requires more complicated organization than those conducted by the railroad groups.

In the first place, the personnel of the railroads faces a work schedule requiring 24-hour-a-day operation each of the seven days of the week. Then the operating crews cover a large territory, the division boundaries. Representatives of the various organizations and supervision team up to form the soliciting committees.

Included in Friday's report were two partial reports from chairmen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway which bear out the fact that it takes time and lots of work to see everyone about the Chest.

The B. and O. company campaign chairman, R. A. J. Morrison, who is also division superintendent, announced 343 subscriptions from employes totaling $1,109.50.

Has Own Pledge Cards

Included in the company campaign are the round house, locomotive shop, car department, storage department, rolling mill, bolt and forge shop, maintenance of way, transportation, freight house and division offices.

The Baltimore and Ohio was a pioneer in establishing a payroll deduction plan for employes in Cumberland. Each year the company prints its own pledge cards to assist the payroll department in making the proper deductions.

Clarence E. Gehr, division freight agent of the Western Maryland Railway, stated that the boundaries of their company campaign were not confined to the four walls of a single building either. The Elkins division extends west to Durbin a distance of 175 miles and on the new line to Connellsville for 100 miles.

The Western Maryland shops are actually located in West Virginia and a large portion of the train crews both live and work in that state. Gehr pointed out that the general attitude of their group was that since the Chest was a good thing for Cumberland and the Western Maryland Railway it was also a good thing for the employes.

Groups To Report

Gehr's report Friday included 63 subscriptions which totaled $224.

Committee members for the company campaign besides Gehr include Mrs. A. S. Hartung, vice chairman, and J. M. Miller, H. M. Smith, G. E. Smith, W. B. Lee, G. R. Lyming, W. P. Gilford, J. Byer, F. H. Ansel and J. L. Carnochan.

An attractive bulletin produced and signed by the committee is the signal for the start of the appeal among the group. Sometimes, in the case of engineers and crew who are not expected back in the territory, supplies have to be dispatched through the train crews to make sure reports are back on time.

The entire campaign organization will meet Tuesday at noon at Central YMCA for the second report.

100th Anniversary Of C. And O. Canal To Pass As Parkway Plans Are Expedited

By C. W. BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

The 100th anniversary of the opening of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in Cumberland will pass tomorrow, making scarcely a ripple in the lives of Western Maryland citizens.

In place of the impressive ceremony which occurred here a century ago as the first canal boats laden with coal from the Eckhart mines left for the trip to tidewater, there will be more of determination in the hearts of local citizens to make the dream of the C. and O. Parkway become a reality.

The development of the highway along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal route would be a fitting memorial to the historic waterway and to the thousands of men who strove for so many years to build the canal.

It was an impressive sight, just a century ago tomorrow, when the great of this area, led by the Independent Blues, a Baltimore band brought here for the occasion, led the way to the canal locks.

Barges Begin Trip

The Eckhart Artillery Company fired salutes as the five barges passed through the locks to begin the 186 mile journey.

General James M. Coale, president of the canal company, expressed the hope that the United States government would "sooner or later redeem its early pledges" and extend the canal to the Ohio River.

Following the festivities, the dignitaries embarked on two small boats, the packet "Jenny Lind" and the "C. B. Fisk" some 10 miles down the river to a spring where refreshments provided by the canal company were served.

Contemporary historians commented that "spring water was not the only beverage that was drunk."

It is significant that construction on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, major factors in the development of Western Maryland, began on the same day.

It was on July 4, 1828, that President John Quincy Adams turned up the first spadeful of earth at Georgetown to begin the canal construction while Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, was helping to lay a cornerstone for the paralleling Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Baltimore.

The B. and O. reached Cumberland first and eventually developed equipment which made the canal virtually obsolete as a carrier.

Was Great Waterway

The history of the C. and O. Canal leaps to life when recounted by Frederick C. "Buck" Dreyer, who still retains an abiding love for the canal which he terms one of the greatest waterways in the world.

The B. and O., Dreyer explains, reached Cumberland in 1842, eight years before the canal was completed, chiefly because of the 3,080 foot long Paw Paw tunnel.

The tunnel, he explained, cut three miles off the canal route but required about 16 years to complete due to the difficulties of construction.

Termed one of the masterpieces of construction of all time, it was cut through the mountain with pick and shovel and powder and has a usable width of 24 feet. The parkway route will include the tunnel.

Seven dams were constructed to provide the great canal route, Dreyer said, including the dam at Riverside Park, which he termed "the strongest built dam in the United States."

Dreyer characterized the construction of the canal one of the greatest engineering feats of all time and said the fact that most of the stones used to build dams, locks and viaducts over a century ago are still in place is a monument to the workmanship of the builders.

Opens Coal Fields

All of the stones used, he added, were hand cut and carefully fitted into place.

During the Civil War, when the canal was in maximum use, more than 600 boats made year round trips on the canal, except for the brief periods when ice covered the river.

The canal hauled some 17½ millions of tons of coal during its brief history and was one of the major factors in the development of Western Maryland.

Had the route been completed as originally planned, he said, the canal would have gone on upstream to Westernport, which had been planned as the western port of the canal.

From there it would have ascended the Savage River to Meadow Mountain, tunnel through that obstacle then go to what is now Deep Creek Lake, which would have provided the impounding basin before it entered the Youghiogheny. From that stream, it would have followed the Monongahela to the Ohio and then to Wheeling, W. Va.

Built By Immigrants

Virtually all work on the canal was performed by immigrant labor, chiefly Irish and German. Dreyer said that although the former provided many artisans, it was the Germans who were the mechanics and stonemasons and constructed the locks and gates of the great waterway.

The intense rivalry between the two, he said, made it necessary to work the nationalities in separate crews.

There were great fights each pay day, he said, due perhaps to the fact that whiskey sold for 60 cents a gallon.

The Civil War, he related, was an exciting time on the canal since the boaters usually took sides.

One instance was the burning of nine boats and the confiscation of over 70 mules by a Confederate force at the present site of the Cardinal Club as part of an effort to halt coal deliveries to Washington.

Fishermen, Dreyer said, may be interested to know that the canal was responsible for the presence of black bass on the eastern slopes of the Alleghenies.

It was in about 1850, after the B. and O. reached Wheeling, that an engineer named Shriver caught 20 small mouth bass in the Ohio.

Puts Bass In Canal

Dreyer said Shriver kept the fish in the tender of the locomotive until he reached Cumberland when he dumped them into the canal basin.

Prior to the industrialization of the Upper Potomac, the river was a great fishing stream, Dreyer said.

Not the least important part of the canal history are the courageous boaters who lived their lives on the great waterway.

They, and the mules who pulled the 115 ton capacity boats, often staged thrilling races to the locks.

Usually, Dreyer said, the boats were towed by mules which worked around the clock on six hour shifts.

The C. and O. mules, he said, had the first effective labor union in the United States and strictly enforced a six hour shift.

Had 6 Hour Shift

When the six hour stretch ended, Dreyer said, the mules simply stopped until they were relieved. It was no use to argue or beat them, he said. The only thing to do was to stop and hitch up the fresh team of mules to the boat.

But even the mules, he said, acted lively when rival boaters staged a race. At times like that, mules were jumped off the boat into the water and hitched up on the move.

Dreyer's grandfather, Frederick Christian Dreyer, helped build the canal and then went into the boat building business, the trade followed by his father.

"Buck" spent his boyhood on the canal and was the first to put motorboats on the waterway, making 10 trips to Washington before the canal closed in 1923.

The navigation of the Potomac River was considered as early as 1755, when Governor Horatio Sharp, of Maryland, and Sir John St. Clair, of the British Army, boarded a boat at Fort Cumberland and descended the river to the Great Falls near Georgetown to determine whether supplies for army operations in the West could be brought here by that route.

A few years later, serious efforts began toward the dream of making the river navigable.

Deaths

MRS. O. B. CASE

Mrs. Martha Bailey Case, 62, wife of Oscar B. Case, manager of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratories, died late yesterday afternoon in Memorial Hospital.

She was admitted to the local hospital yesterday at 3 a. m. after she became ill at her home at Pinto, where the plant operated by the Hercules Powder Company is located.

She was born October 3, 1888, in Antes Fort, Pa., a daughter of the late George L. and Elizabeth Dunbar Bailey.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Barton, Annapolis, and Bailey, Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. Hester Rhodes, Quinsy, Mass.; two brothers, Samuel and Ralph Bailey, Williamsport, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Carrie Miller, Erie, Pa.

The body will be at the Stein Funeral Home here today. It will be taken early Tuesday to the Page Funeral Home, Williamsport, Pa., for a service Wednesday at 3 p. m.

MRS. MISSOURI MURRAY

Mrs. Missouri Alice Murray, 81, widow of William Murray, died Saturday at her home, 306 Harrison Street, after a prolonged illness. She had been bedfast three years.

Born June 6, 1869, in Somerset County, Pa., Mrs. Murray had resided here 32 years. Her parents were the late Jacob and Sarah R. Shoemaker Martz. She was a member of St. Mark's Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Ladies Auxiliary of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

Surviving are a son, Sherman D. Murray, Frostburg; three daughters, Mrs. Laura Pyle, Kitzmiller; Mrs. Geraldine M. Smithem, this city, and Mrs. Sarah A. Close, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Mankameyer, Cumberland, and Mrs. Charles Poorbaugh, McKeesport, Pa.; 15 grandchildren and 27 great grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the Stein Funeral Home. Rev. Carl H. Clapp, pastor of St. Mark's Evangelical and Reformed Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Salisbury, Pa.

Top Democratic Candidates Will Hold Rally Here

To Visit Frostburg And Mt. Savage

Top Democratic candidates, headed by United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, will begin a whirlwind tour of Garrett and Allegany Counties today.

The group including Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., Attorney General Hall Hammond and State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, were entertained at a reception in the William James Hotel in Oakland last night.

The caravan will leave Oakland this morning and will make brief stops in Accident and Grantsville in Garrett County.

They are slated to arrive in Frostburg early this afternoon and will be at Stoops Restaurant, East Main Street, Frostburg, at 3:45 p. m.

They will be met there by Edward J. Ryan, candidate for judge of the circuit court, and Harold E. Naughton, candidate for state's attorney, and Frostburg members of the Democratic State Central Committee and Democratic party candidates.

The candidates will also visit the War Memorial in Mt. Savage at 5 p. m.

The highlight of the Western Maryland tour will be a dinner and rally to be held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 6:30 p. m. today.

Former Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, Hagerstown, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, will be present at the rally.

W. Earle Cobey will be toastmaster for the event which will include talks by Gov. Lane and Senator Tydings.

M. F. Prendergast, who it was announced would introduce Gov. Lane was admitted to Allegany Hospital several days ago. His condition was reported good last night.

William C. Walsh, former attorney general, will introduce Senator Tydings; William H. Buchholtz, Tawes; William L. Wilson, Jr., Hammond, and Matthew J. Mullaney, Hartle.

The committee on arrangements, which includes the State Central Committee and other party leaders of Allegany County, will meet today at noon to make final arrangements for the dinner and rally.

Tickets for the dinner and rally may be secured from members of the State Central Committee.

Equity Suits

Equity suits filed in Circuit Court include:

Bernice D. Little against Charles S. Little, and Grace V. Troutman against Edward Troutman.

Absolute divorces have been awarded to:

Mary S. Johns from Victor Johns; Ada S. Ferrins from John D. Ferrins, and James W. Wright from Mary F. Wright.

VFW State Department Will Continue Ober Act Campaign

Plans to continue campaigning to get the anti-communist Ober Law on Maryland's books were discussed yesterday at the Department of Maryland Council of Administration, Veterans of Foreign Wars, meeting.

The group, meeting in Mt. Savage at the home of Old Rail Post No. 6025, also completed preliminary work to kick off its membership drive with a goal of at least a 12½ per cent increase.

Department officials were informed that Frank J. Vallee, chairman of the campaign for the passage of a referendum to make the Ober Act state law, has sent out letters to every member of the state VFW.

The organization in conjunction with other state veteran groups is also distributing large display cards reminding every voter of the right to vote for the Ober Act.

The state membership campaign is set two and a half per cent higher than the national 10 per cent goal. Department officials said state membership has fallen way off.

The resolution adopted yesterday will ask each of the 16 Maryland Districts and each of the 114 post units to sponsor individual membership rallies to open the campaign drive.

Frank J. Webb, District No. 3 junior vice commander, said all veteran organizations will coordinate to call attention to the importance of the Ober Bill and its passage.

Gunter To Open Tour In Charles, St. Mary's Today

Will Join Butler, McKeldin There

William A. Gunter, Republican candidate for attorney general, left his home county early this morning to join Gubernatorial Candidate Theodore R. McKeldin and Senatorial Candidate John Marshall Butler for a tour of St. Mary's and Charles counties beginning today.

The three candidates on the GOP state ticket left Cumberland last Thursday night and then headed into Baltimore County, where a Reisterstown rally ended the tour.

Speaking to an overflow crowd of 600 at the Reisterstown Fire Hall, Gunter said George P. Mahoney is "the new leader of the Democratic Party," and referred to Governor William Preston Lane, Democratic nominee for re-election, as a "lame duck and a deadgone goose."

While Gunter is joining other state candidates in Southern Maryland, Rep. J. Glenn Beall, GOP nominee to succeed himself in the House of Representatives from the Sixth District, will carry his campaign to Montgomery County today.

He will be in Silver Spring and Takoma Park today and tomorrow and on Wednesday will address the Women's Republican Club at Bethesda. Rep. Beall will campaign in Frederick County on Thursday, with a meeting scheduled at Brunswick at night.

From another source came reports that "A high-ranking spokesman at Republican headquarters in Baltimore said daily promises of support for Theodore R. McKeldin are being received from 'Mahoney leaders' in the recent primary campaign."

Friday the Republican National Committee made available to the state GOP candidates two attractive envoys in the persons of Misses Mary and Louise Gore, of Potomac, Md.

The two blonde lovelies are scheduled to serve the candidates as advance agents for their speaking tours. They will go by station wagon a day ahead of time to county seats and other places where the "caravan of candidates" is to appear.

At the Reisterstown rally, Gunter's reference to Mahoney as the new party leader, was followed quickly by a warning that Lane is "intelligent, industrious, resourceful and a plodder." Gunter said "it would be a mistake for us to become overconfident."

After the rally, which saw large numbers standing in the street listening to speeches over the loudspeakers, Gunter estimated that more than half of the gathering was Democratic.

He pointed out that Democrats normally outnumber Republicans five to one in Baltimore County, but added that the GOP had a full ticket in that county this year.

McKeldin and, Butler also spoke at the Reistertown rally, and with Gunter took part in a parade and GOP demonstration. It wound up a tour of about 30 communities in the county.

Bishop Will Be Sentenced Today

Walter Bishop, 55, McConnellsburg, Pa., convicted of second degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his younger brother, Lester Bishop, 35, will be sentenced today in Common Pleas Court.

A jury deliberated for five and a half hours Saturday after hearing testimony for five days in the fatal shooting case, and then returned to announce its verdict.

Bishop was arrested in Cumberland June 17 after Pennsylvania State Police sounded a general alarm when they found the body of Lester Bishop after receiving a tip from "one of the Bishops."

Trooper Harry S. Bosley, Maryland State Police, said he arrested Bishop at a service station after recognizing the car from the description that was sent out.

Bishop admitted the slaying to Maryland State Police the following day and then waived extradition and was returned to Pennsylvania to stand trial. He was indicted by the October grand jury.

Police said the second degree murder charge carries a maximum sentence of 20 years. Merrill Kerlin, state-appointed counsel, represented Bishop at the trial.

Mt. Savage To Mark Fire Prevention Week

Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Company will launch a week-long observance of fire prevention and soil conservation practices tonight at 7:30 o'clock with a movie in the fire hall.

Thursday, with huge match sticks, cigarets and other common fire hazards to illustrate the theme, the firemen will sponsor a parade at 7 p.m. and on Sunday they will present a demonstration on fire prevention. It will be followed by refreshments.

News In Brief

The Willing Workers Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will meet Tuesday at 7.30 p. m. in the Sunday School room of the church.

Scouters and Cubbers of Cumberland District, Boy Scouts of America, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in St. Mary's Church to elect officers.

Social Security To Cover 4,888 More Next Year

2,188 Beneficiaries Listed In Allegany

Another 4,800 persons will be covered by Social Security in Allegany County next year due to the extension of coverage to self-employed, domestics, farm workers and employes of charitable and governmental agencies.

James S. Getty, manager of the Cumberland area Social Security office, said there were about 25,500 persons in this county who were covered prior to the passage of amendments to the law on August 28, 1950.

The estimated Social Security beneficiaries in Allegany County are:

Retired workers, 854, who prior to the changes received $21,508 each month.

Wives of retired workers, who numbered 285, received another $3,750 monthly.

Another $8,036 was paid to 394 widows who were over 65 years old.

Some 641 children under 18 received $8,715.

Another 14 dependent parents received $230 each month.

The 2,188 beneficiaries, in August, received monthly checks totaling $42,339.

Each of the beneficiaries received a substantially larger insurance check this month.

Increases ranged from 100 per cent for those who were receiving the lowest amounts under the old law, to about 60 per cent for those in the highest brackets.

In the seven-county area, 3,188 beneficiaries received about $60,000.

Getty estimated that September payments for the area, which were mailed early this month will total about $109,000.

Getty said it is impossible to determine the number of persons eligible in this county since applications are being received each day.

He added that any worker who is 65 or over now needs only six quarters of coverage to be eligible for benefits subsequent to August 31, and added the worker can count all of his quarters since January 1, 1937, in determining if he has at least six.

McKeldin Hits Lane Deception

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP) — Theodore R. McKeldin has tabbed Governor Lane a "master in the art of deception."

The GOP candidate for the governor's chair said in a radio speech last night Lane's right to the title rests on three pillars:

1. "By telling county people and city people they are both getting more from the state treasury than they pay in — an obvious mathematical impossibility."

2. "By slandering Gov. O'Conor's state treasury, when the fact is that the financial condition of the state was infinitely better four years ago than it is today."

3. "By his unfounded assertion that he had to have the sales tax because of Baltimore City's financial condition, when the truth is that Baltimore never enjoyed a sounder and more stable financial standing than it did when I ended my term as mayor.

"Imagine a high official descending to such utter irresponsibility."

Then McKeldin jabbed at an obviously sore spot with the Lane camp.

"The explanation," McKeldin said, "is to be found in the governor's own sense of impending defeat, foreshadowed by the vote last month in which a majority in his own party renounced and rejected him."

Lane won the Democratic renomination in the convention vote count over George P. Mahoney, but Mahoney got the majority of the popular vote.

Celanese To Get Industry "Oscar"

Celanese Corporation of America has won the bronze "Oscar of Industry" award for the best annual report of the rayon industry in the 1949 survey conducted by the Financial World. This is the third time that Celanese has received this recognition in the ten years that the international competition has been held.

The trophy, signalizing the honor, will be presented to the company at the annual awards banquet at the Hotel Statler, October 30. More than 1,200 business and financial executives from the United States and Canada will attend.

Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, 764 Cleveland Avenue, a son, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lantz, Wiley Ford, W. Va., a son, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, Hyndman, Pa., a daughter, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Self, 554 Pine Avenue, a daughter, yesterday.

Allegany Hospital announced the following births yesterday:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, 13 Lyons Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Barber, Salisbury, Pa., a son, Friday.

Conservation Week To Begin Here Today

Constitution Park Scene Of Exhibits

Land conservation and fire prevention demonstrations and exhibits will mark the week-long observance of Cumberland's Conservation Chautauqua which gets underway here today and ends Saturday with a parade.

The featuring events, which will be presented at Constitution Park each night along with a series of motion pictures on the subjects, will be open to the public free of charge, according to George M. Hitchcock, general chairman. Today, "open house" will be held at six farms in the county. Twelve community meetings are scheduled too, most of them tonight.

Hundreds of persons are expected to participate in the week-long observance planned to make the general public more conscious of the necessity of conservation of land and nature.

The nightly events will get underway at the park at 6 p. m. with the parade, which will feature several firemen's organizations and musical groups set for 7 p. m. Saturday.

Farmers Night

Tonight is featured as "Farmer's Night" at the park and the remainder of the week's schedule looks like this:

Tuesday — Police and Wildlife Night. Police safety measures will be stressed. A display of animals native to Western Maryland has been set up in the recreation building. Each night of the observance movies will be shown in the amphitheatre, weather permitting.

Wednesday — Conservation Day. Talks on fire prevention and conservation will feature the day in the amphitheatre. The ball park will be artificially lighted for a tractor-driving contest.

Thursday — Volunteer Firemen's Night. Some 28 volunteer fire companies will participate in fire demonstrations under the lights on the ball diamond. The demonstrations have been sanctioned by the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Friday—4-H, Future Farmers of

Weather

A pelting rain—1.57 inches of it—beat down on Cumberland most of yesterday as the mercury fluctuated between a 62 for low and a 64 for high in the downtown area. The city's official reading set the day's high temperature at 60 degrees and gave an overnight low of 57 degrees. At 10 p. m. the official reading was back at 57. For today the weatherman predicted more of the same with a "cloudy and scattered showers" report.

HIGHEST TEMPERATURE READINGS

Trade School Course Opens

Ten Allegany County trade school instructors began Saturday a 30-week University of Maryland-sponsored extension course that will eventually lead to their certification for county teaching.

The classes, which will be conducted each Saturday from 9 a. m. to noon, are being conducted in Hancock High School with A. C. Roth, Hagerstown, presenting the first subject—teaching methods.

J. D. Lonnholm, supervisor of vocational education in the county, said the classes are being sponsored for the benefit of instructors in Allegany and Washington Counties.

Under the present set-up vocational teachers for the most part are authorized as instructors through the Veteran's Administration which is overseeing the GI education program. Once the GI program ends instructors will then need certification to continue teaching under the Board of Education.

Lonnholm said classes will continue for the next 30 weeks and will include such subjects as "trade and occupational analysis," "course content," "development of training aids" and "teaching methods."

Pastor Is Transferred

The transfer of Rt. Rev. Henry F. Graebenstein, pastor of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Washington, to St. Anthony's Church, Brookland, was announced over the weekend in pastoral appointments of the Archdiocese of Washington. Msgr. Graebenstein is a native of this city.

Chest Drive On Railroads Requires Timing, Teamwork

Company Community Chest campaigns are varied in the manner of operation but none requires more complicated organization than those conducted by the railroad groups.

In the first place, the personnel of the railroads faces a work schedule requiring 24-hour-a-day operation each of the seven days of the week. Then the operating crews cover a large territory, the division boundaries. Representatives of the various organizations and supervision team up to form the soliciting committees.

Included in Friday's report were two partial reports from chairmen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway which bear out the fact that it takes time and lots of work to see everyone about the Chest.

The B. and O. company campaign chairman, R. A. J. Morrison, who is also division superintendent, announced 343 subscriptions from employes totaling $1,109.50.

Has Own Pledge Cards

Included in the company campaign are the round house, locomotive shop, car department, storage department, rolling mill, bolt and forge shop, maintenance of way, transportation, freight house and division offices.

The Baltimore and Ohio was a pioneer in establishing a payroll deduction plan for employes in Cumberland. Each year the company prints its own pledge cards to assist the payroll department in making the proper deductions.

Clarence E. Gehr, division freight agent of the Western Maryland Railway, stated that the boundaries of their company campaign were not confined to the four walls of a single building either. The Elkins division extends west to Durbin a distance of 175 miles and on the new line to Connellsville for 100 miles.

The Western Maryland shops are actually located in West Virginia and a large portion of the train crews both live and work in that state. Gehr pointed out that the general attitude of their group was that since the Chest was a good thing for Cumberland and the Western Maryland Railway it was also a good thing for the employes.

Groups To Report

Gehr's report Friday included 63 subscriptions which totaled $224.

Committee members for the company campaign besides Gehr include Mrs. A. S. Hartung, vice chairman, and J. M. Miller, H. M. Smith, G. E. Smith, W. B. Lee, G. R. Lyming, W. P. Gilford, J. Byer, F. H. Ansel and J. L. Carnochan.

An attractive bulletin produced and signed by the committee is the signal for the start of the appeal among the group. Sometimes, in the case of engineers and crew who are not expected back in the territory, supplies have to be dispatched through the train crews to make sure reports are back on time.

The entire campaign organization will meet Tuesday at noon at Central YMCA for the second report.

100th Anniversary Of C. And O. Canal To Pass As Parkway Plans Are Expedited

By C. W. BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

The 100th anniversary of the opening of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in Cumberland will pass tomorrow, making scarcely a ripple in the lives of Western Maryland citizens.

In place of the impressive ceremony which occurred here a century ago as the first canal boats laden with coal from the Eckhart mines left for the trip to tidewater, there will be more of determination in the hearts of local citizens to make the dream of the C. and O. Parkway become a reality.

The development of the highway along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal route would be a fitting memorial to the historic waterway and to the thousands of men who strove for so many years to build the canal.

It was an impressive sight, just a century ago tomorrow, when the great of this area, led by the Independent Blues, a Baltimore band brought here for the occasion, led the way to the canal locks.

Barges Begin Trip

The Eckhart Artillery Company fired salutes as the five barges passed through the locks to begin the 186 mile journey.

General James M. Coale, president of the canal company, expressed the hope that the United States government would "sooner or later redeem its early pledges" and extend the canal to the Ohio River.

Following the festivities, the dignitaries embarked on two small boats, the packet "Jenny Lind" and the "C. B. Fisk" some 10 miles down the river to a spring where refreshments provided by the canal company were served.

Contemporary historians commented that "spring water was not the only beverage that was drunk."

It is significant that construction on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, major factors in the development of Western Maryland, began on the same day.

It was on July 4, 1828, that President John Quincy Adams turned up the first spadeful of earth at Georgetown to begin the canal construction while Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, was helping to lay a cornerstone for the paralleling Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Baltimore.

The B. and O. reached Cumberland first and eventually developed equipment which made the canal virtually obsolete as a carrier.

Was Great Waterway

The history of the C. and O. Canal leaps to life when recounted by Frederick C. "Buck" Dreyer, who still retains an abiding love for the canal which he terms one of the greatest waterways in the world.

The B. and O., Dreyer explains, reached Cumberland in 1842, eight years before the canal was completed, chiefly because of the 3,080 foot long Paw Paw tunnel.

The tunnel, he explained, cut three miles off the canal route but required about 16 years to complete due to the difficulties of construction.

Termed one of the masterpieces of construction of all time, it was cut through the mountain with pick and shovel and powder and has a usable width of 24 feet. The parkway route will include the tunnel.

Seven dams were constructed to provide the great canal route, Dreyer said, including the dam at Riverside Park, which he termed "the strongest built dam in the United States."

Dreyer characterized the construction of the canal one of the greatest engineering feats of all time and said the fact that most of the stones used to build dams, locks and viaducts over a century ago are still in place is a monument to the workmanship of the builders.

Opens Coal Fields

All of the stones used, he added, were hand cut and carefully fitted into place.

During the Civil War, when the canal was in maximum use, more than 600 boats made year round trips on the canal, except for the brief periods when ice covered the river.

The canal hauled some 17½ millions of tons of coal during its brief history and was one of the major factors in the development of Western Maryland.

Had the route been completed as originally planned, he said, the canal would have gone on upstream to Westernport, which had been planned as the western port of the canal.

From there it would have ascended the Savage River to Meadow Mountain, tunnel through that obstacle then go to what is now Deep Creek Lake, which would have provided the impounding basin before it entered the Youghiogheny. From that stream, it would have followed the Monongahela to the Ohio and then to Wheeling, W. Va.

Built By Immigrants

Virtually all work on the canal was performed by immigrant labor, chiefly Irish and German. Dreyer said that although the former provided many artisans, it was the Germans who were the mechanics and stonemasons and constructed the locks and gates of the great waterway.

The intense rivalry between the two, he said, made it necessary to work the nationalities in separate crews.

There were great fights each pay day, he said, due perhaps to the fact that whiskey sold for 60 cents a gallon.

The Civil War, he related, was an exciting time on the canal since the boaters usually took sides.

One instance was the burning of nine boats and the confiscation of over 70 mules by a Confederate force at the present site of the Cardinal Club as part of an effort to halt coal deliveries to Washington.

Fishermen, Dreyer said, may be interested to know that the canal was responsible for the presence of black bass on the eastern slopes of the Alleghenies.

It was in about 1850, after the B. and O. reached Wheeling, that an engineer named Shriver caught 20 small mouth bass in the Ohio.

Puts Bass In Canal

Dreyer said Shriver kept the fish in the tender of the locomotive until he reached Cumberland when he dumped them into the canal basin.

Prior to the industrialization of the Upper Potomac, the river was a great fishing stream, Dreyer said.

Not the least important part of the canal history are the courageous boaters who lived their lives on the great waterway.

They, and the mules who pulled the 115 ton capacity boats, often staged thrilling races to the locks.

Usually, Dreyer said, the boats were towed by mules which worked around the clock on six hour shifts.

The C. and O. mules, he said, had the first effective labor union in the United States and strictly enforced a six hour shift.

Had 6 Hour Shift

When the six hour stretch ended, Dreyer said, the mules simply stopped until they were relieved. It was no use to argue or beat them, he said. The only thing to do was to stop and hitch up the fresh team of mules to the boat.

But even the mules, he said, acted lively when rival boaters staged a race. At times like that, mules were jumped off the boat into the water and hitched up on the move.

Dreyer's grandfather, Frederick Christian Dreyer, helped build the canal and then went into the boat building business, the trade followed by his father.

"Buck" spent his boyhood on the canal and was the first to put motorboats on the waterway, making 10 trips to Washington before the canal closed in 1923.

The navigation of the Potomac River was considered as early as 1755, when Governor Horatio Sharp, of Maryland, and Sir John St. Clair, of the British Army, boarded a boat at Fort Cumberland and descended the river to the Great Falls near Georgetown to determine whether supplies for army operations in the West could be brought here by that route.

A few years later, serious efforts began toward the dream of making the river navigable.

Deaths

MRS. O. B. CASE

Mrs. Martha Bailey Case, 62, wife of Oscar B. Case, manager of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratories, died late yesterday afternoon in Memorial Hospital.

She was admitted to the local hospital yesterday at 3 a. m. after she became ill at her home at Pinto, where the plant operated by the Hercules Powder Company is located.

She was born October 3, 1888, in Antes Fort, Pa., a daughter of the late George L. and Elizabeth Dunbar Bailey.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Barton, Annapolis, and Bailey, Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. Hester Rhodes, Quinsy, Mass.; two brothers, Samuel and Ralph Bailey, Williamsport, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Carrie Miller, Erie, Pa.

The body will be at the Stein Funeral Home here today. It will be taken early Tuesday to the Page Funeral Home, Williamsport, Pa., for a service Wednesday at 3 p. m.

MRS. MISSOURI MURRAY

Mrs. Missouri Alice Murray, 81, widow of William Murray, died Saturday at her home, 306 Harrison Street, after a prolonged illness. She had been bedfast three years.

Born June 6, 1869, in Somerset County, Pa., Mrs. Murray had resided here 32 years. Her parents were the late Jacob and Sarah R. Shoemaker Martz. She was a member of St. Mark's Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Ladies Auxiliary of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

Surviving are a son, Sherman D. Murray, Frostburg; three daughters, Mrs. Laura Pyle, Kitzmiller; Mrs. Geraldine M. Smithem, this city, and Mrs. Sarah A. Close, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Mankameyer, Cumberland, and Mrs. Charles Poorbaugh, McKeesport, Pa.; 15 grandchildren and 27 great grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the Stein Funeral Home. Rev. Carl H. Clapp, pastor of St. Mark's Evangelical and Reformed Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Salisbury, Pa.

Top Democratic Candidates Will Hold Rally Here

To Visit Frostburg And Mt. Savage

Top Democratic candidates, headed by United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, will begin a whirlwind tour of Garrett and Allegany Counties today.

The group including Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., Attorney General Hall Hammond and State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, were entertained at a reception in the William James Hotel in Oakland last night.

The caravan will leave Oakland this morning and will make brief stops in Accident and Grantsville in Garrett County.

They are slated to arrive in Frostburg early this afternoon and will be at Stoops Restaurant, East Main Street, Frostburg, at 3:45 p. m.

They will be met there by Edward J. Ryan, candidate for judge of the circuit court, and Harold E. Naughton, candidate for state's attorney, and Frostburg members of the Democratic State Central Committee and Democratic party candidates.

The candidates will also visit the War Memorial in Mt. Savage at 5 p. m.

The highlight of the Western Maryland tour will be a dinner and rally to be held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 6:30 p. m. today.

Former Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, Hagerstown, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, will be present at the rally.

W. Earle Cobey will be toastmaster for the event which will include talks by Gov. Lane and Senator Tydings.

M. F. Prendergast, who it was announced would introduce Gov. Lane was admitted to Allegany Hospital several days ago. His condition was reported good last night.

William C. Walsh, former attorney general, will introduce Senator Tydings; William H. Buchholtz, Tawes; William L. Wilson, Jr., Hammond, and Matthew J. Mullaney, Hartle.

The committee on arrangements, which includes the State Central Committee and other party leaders of Allegany County, will meet today at noon to make final arrangements for the dinner and rally.

Tickets for the dinner and rally may be secured from members of the State Central Committee.

Equity Suits

Equity suits filed in Circuit Court include:

Bernice D. Little against Charles S. Little, and Grace V. Troutman against Edward Troutman.

Absolute divorces have been awarded to:

Mary S. Johns from Victor Johns; Ada S. Ferrins from John D. Ferrins, and James W. Wright from Mary F. Wright.

VFW State Department Will Continue Ober Act Campaign

Plans to continue campaigning to get the anti-communist Ober Law on Maryland's books were discussed yesterday at the Department of Maryland Council of Administration, Veterans of Foreign Wars, meeting.

The group, meeting in Mt. Savage at the home of Old Rail Post No. 6025, also completed preliminary work to kick off its membership drive with a goal of at least a 12½ per cent increase.

Department officials were informed that Frank J. Vallee, chairman of the campaign for the passage of a referendum to make the Ober Act state law, has sent out letters to every member of the state VFW.

The organization in conjunction with other state veteran groups is also distributing large display cards reminding every voter of the right to vote for the Ober Act.

The state membership campaign is set two and a half per cent higher than the national 10 per cent goal. Department officials said state membership has fallen way off.

The resolution adopted yesterday will ask each of the 16 Maryland Districts and each of the 114 post units to sponsor individual membership rallies to open the campaign drive.

Frank J. Webb, District No. 3 junior vice commander, said all veteran organizations will coordinate to call attention to the importance of the Ober Bill and its passage.

Gunter To Open Tour In Charles, St. Mary's Today

Will Join Butler, McKeldin There

William A. Gunter, Republican candidate for attorney general, left his home county early this morning to join Gubernatorial Candidate Theodore R. McKeldin and Senatorial Candidate John Marshall Butler for a tour of St. Mary's and Charles counties beginning today.

The three candidates on the GOP state ticket left Cumberland last Thursday night and then headed into Baltimore County, where a Reisterstown rally ended the tour.

Speaking to an overflow crowd of 600 at the Reisterstown Fire Hall, Gunter said George P. Mahoney is "the new leader of the Democratic Party," and referred to Governor William Preston Lane, Democratic nominee for re-election, as a "lame duck and a deadgone goose."

While Gunter is joining other state candidates in Southern Maryland, Rep. J. Glenn Beall, GOP nominee to succeed himself in the House of Representatives from the Sixth District, will carry his campaign to Montgomery County today.

He will be in Silver Spring and Takoma Park today and tomorrow and on Wednesday will address the Women's Republican Club at Bethesda. Rep. Beall will campaign in Frederick County on Thursday, with a meeting scheduled at Brunswick at night.

From another source came reports that "A high-ranking spokesman at Republican headquarters in Baltimore said daily promises of support for Theodore R. McKeldin are being received from 'Mahoney leaders' in the recent primary campaign."

Friday the Republican National Committee made available to the state GOP candidates two attractive envoys in the persons of Misses Mary and Louise Gore, of Potomac, Md.

The two blonde lovelies are scheduled to serve the candidates as advance agents for their speaking tours. They will go by station wagon a day ahead of time to county seats and other places where the "caravan of candidates" is to appear.

At the Reisterstown rally, Gunter's reference to Mahoney as the new party leader, was followed quickly by a warning that Lane is "intelligent, industrious, resourceful and a plodder." Gunter said "it would be a mistake for us to become overconfident."

After the rally, which saw large numbers standing in the street listening to speeches over the loudspeakers, Gunter estimated that more than half of the gathering was Democratic.

He pointed out that Democrats normally outnumber Republicans five to one in Baltimore County, but added that the GOP had a full ticket in that county this year.

McKeldin and Butler also spoke at the Reisterstown rally, and with Gunter took part in a parade and GOP demonstration. It wound up a tour of about 30 communities in the county.

Bishop Will Be Sentenced Today

Walter Bishop, 55, McConnellsburg, Pa., convicted of second degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his younger brother, Lester Bishop, 35, will be sentenced today in Common Pleas Court.

A jury deliberated for five and a half hours Saturday after hearing testimony for five days in the fatal shooting case, and then returned to announce its verdict.

Bishop was arrested in Cumberland June 17 after Pennsylvania State Police sounded a general alarm when they found the body of Lester Bishop after receiving a tip from "one of the Bishops."

Trooper Harry S. Bosley, Maryland State Police, said he arrested Bishop at a service station after recognizing the car from the description that was sent out.

Bishop admitted the slaying to Maryland State Police the following day and then waived extradition and was returned to Pennsylvania to stand trial. He was indicted by the October grand jury.

Police said the second degree murder charge carries a maximum sentence of 20 years. Merrill Kerlin, state-appointed counsel, represented Bishop at the trial.
